MEDIA PARKING

Limited media parking is available immediately behind the press box on the west side of the stadium (enter off Western Blvd.). Overflow parking is available approximately three blocks from the press box in the OSU Foundation lot.

PHOTOGRAPHY REGULATIONS

Photo passes will be issued only to accredited photographers on assignment. Photographers should proceed to the north-east corner of the stadium to obtain a vest per Pac-12 Conference rules. NCAA regulations forbid photographers from being between the 25-yard lines.

PRESS BOX

The fourth level of the Reser Stadium press box serves as the media center. Radio and television booths are located from approximately the 50-yard line to the left as you look onto the field. The remainder of the seating is for the print media. A photo deck runs nearly the length of the press box and is located off the fourth level. Lunch or dinner is served in the press box.

POSTGAME WORK AREAS

Two working areas postgame are available for use – the press box at Reser Stadium or the media room in Gill Coliseum (located near the opponents' locker room). The usual statistical packets with quotes will be delivered to both areas.

PROFESSIONAL SCOUTS

Professional scouts are generally seated in the second row of the press box, behind the print media. Some seats have partially obstructed views.

PRACTICES

Practices are closed to the media and public with the exception of the last 20 minutes. Generally, player and coach interviews are conducted post-practice on Mondays-Thursdays for Saturday games. Video may be shot of the last 20 minutes of practice, please see the on-field Communications personnel for that day's schedule.

OSU HISTORY & TRADITIONS

THE FIGHT SONG

*OSU our hats are off to you,
Beavers, Beavers, fighters thru and thru,
We'll cheer throughout the land,
We'll root for every plan,
That's made for old OSU.*

*Watch our team go tearing down the field;
Those of iron, their strength will never yield.
Hail! Hail! Hail! Hail!
Hail to old OSU
(OSU Fight! B-E-A-V-E-R-S)*

NICKNAME — THE BEAVERS

In the early days of the institution, Oregon State University's athletic teams were known as the Aggies. When orange uniforms replaced the drab sweatshirt gray and tan jerseys, the teams were referred to as the Orangemen.

In 1916 the school yearbook was renamed "The Beaver" and the name Beaver became associated with the school. It is believed the press also had some influence in changing the name, particularly L.H. Gregory of The Oregonian newspaper. The name gained instant popularity among alumni and students.

The Beaver is the state's official animal.

THE MASCOT — BENNY

Benny Beaver was adopted as Oregon State University's mascot in 1952 after the school had a reported three previous mascots. The first mascot in 1893 was a coyote named Jimmie, owned by M.M.H. Kriebel. In 1909, a second mascot appeared on the scene. Dr. John Bell, a Corvallis pastor and former regent of Corvallis when the college was taken over by the state and became Oregon Agricultural College. In the early 1900s, "Doc Bell" was considered to be the varsity football squad's "mascot" because of his steadfast attendance and advising. In 1921 there was an attempt to make a live Beaver, "Bevo", into the school mascot, but with little success.

Benny Beaver, OSU's current mascot, was introduced to the student body by the school's rally squad on September 18, 1952, in an effort to pick up sagging school spirit.

"Benny Beaver, the rally squad's candidate for hand-somest man in school, has never been on campus before," according to The Barometer (student paper), at the time.

"The animal stands six-feet tall, wears vivid orange knickerbockers, a black jersey, and his familiar orange and black rooters lid."

Adopted as the official mascot in 1952, Benny Beaver still fires up the crowds at OSU athletic events today.

Benny Beaver, while officially accepted as the school's mascot in 1952, actually can be traced back to the 1940-41 school year. A statue of a beaver named "Benny" appears in the school's yearbook, and later a Barometer sports columnist used the pen name "Benny Beaver."

TEAM COLORS — ORANGE & BLACK

Oregon State was known as Corvallis College until the mid 1890s and the school color was navy blue. A faculty committee appointed by school President John Bloss voted to replace blue with orange. Not long after, black was selected by the student body as a background color. A local tailor named J.H. Harris donated black uniforms for the baseball team in this time frame, and it is believed to be where the black color scheme began in athletics, although that is debatable. An article in the local Corvallis Gazette-Times in 1892 describes the use of orange and black in commencement ceremonies, nearly a year prior to orange becoming the official color.

While orange was originally the official color, over the years black has become more universally accepted as one of the official colors. Today, nearly all of OSU accepts orange and black as the official colors.

TELEVISION

PAC-12 TV PARTNERS — As a member of the Pac-12 Conference, Beaver games air regionally and nationally on ABC, ESPN, ESPN2, FOX and the family of Pac-12 Networks.

PAC-12 NETWORKS — The Pac-12 Networks launched August 15, 2012 and consists of one national and six regional networks devoted solely to the Pac-12. RADIO GAME DAY — Beaver Sports Properties, a division of Learfield, produces game-day radio broadcasts and special programming, syndicated on the Beaver Sports Radio Network. The 8-hour broadcasts consist of over 30 stations across Oregon and is anchored by the Portland flagship station NewsRadio 1190 KEX/Rip City Radio 620.

Mike Parker, the “voice of the Beavers”, handles the play-by-play and is joined in the booth by former Beaver lineman and OSU Hall of Famer Jim Wilson. Ron Callan handles the pregame, postgame and sideline duties during the broadcasts. Fellow Hall of Famer Steve Preece also joins the team for pregame analysis.

Beaver Sports Network programming begins two hours before kickoff with the “Countdown to Kickoff Show” and signs off approximately two hours after each game following the popular “Beaver Wrap Up Show.”

NewsRadio 1190 KEX, owned locally by iHeartRadio, is the home of the Beaver Sports Radio Network. Along with its extended football coverage, KEX or its sister station, Rip City Radio 620 AM, broadcast Beaver men’s basketball and baseball games, and every Beaver Sports Talk (Tues. or Wed.) from late August through early April. Oregon State enjoys the strongest comprehensive radio package in the Pac-12 Conference by offering the most total hours of play-by-play and auxiliary programming.

There are several options to complement local radio with football and men’s basketball games available on XM Satellite Radio (official partner of the Pac-12 Conference), internet audio and video live streams via osubeavers.com.

TUNEIN — In addition, Oregon State Athletics offers radio broadcasts online via the TuneIn application. TuneIn enables people to discover, follow and listen to what’s most important to them — from the Beavers, to news, to music, to talk. TuneIn provides listeners access to over 100,000 real radio stations and more than four million podcasts streaming from every continent.

BEAVER SPORTS TALK — In addition, Beaver stations also carry “Beaver Sports Talk” a weekly statewide call-in show every Wednesday (Tuesdays for weekday games) night from 6-7 p.m. featuring head coach Gary Andersen and Mike Parker. BST is live from Buffalo Wild Wings on Ninth Street in Corvallis and airs on most of the Beaver Sports Radio Network stations on www.osubeavers.com.

THE JOE BEAVER SHOW — Each weekday from noon to 2 p.m. Mike Parker and Jon Warren host an OSU sports-themed show in the Greater

MIKE PARKER

Mike Parker is entering his 19th season calling OSU football, men’s basketball and baseball action and has been behind the microphone for some of the school’s crowning achievements on the athletic fields.

The “voice of the Beavers” is a 1982 graduate of the University of Oregon with a bachelor’s degree in rhetoric and communications. His broadcasting career includes play-by-play for football, basketball and baseball for high school sports in Oregon, beginning in 1977. He was the voice of the Eugene Emeralds (1983-86) minor league baseball club and the Oregon women’s basketball program (1983-87). He also was the play-by-play voice of the AAA Portland Beavers from 1987-92.

Parker hosted a show on all-sports KFXR Radio from 1990-95 before moving to KEX Radio as host of Sportsline and the Fifth Quarter program following Portland Trail Blazers games. Parker has been named the Oregon Sportscaster of the Year six times. Mike and his wife Missy have two daughters, Lydia and Ellie.

RON CALLAN

Ron Callan has spent over 35 years in the broadcast media business, all in the Pacific Northwest, and is in his ninth year as a member of the Beaver broadcast team. Callan handles sideline duties as well as hosting the pre- and post-game shows. He has been named the Associated Press Sportscaster of the Year three times.

Callan spent seven seasons as the sideline reporter for the Seattle Seahawks’ radio network after a 10-year stint hosting the Washington Huskies’ postgame show on KIRO TV in Seattle.

The 1974 Linfield College graduate also has worked for KVDO TV in Salem, KTUV TV in Boise, KHQ TV in Spokane and Root Sports. Callan, a former opera singer, has three children – Cassie, Daniel and Lily.

JIM WILSON

Jim Wilson is in his 14th year on the OSU football radio crew, and has also worked as a color analyst on OSU baseball broadcasts.

He is one of the top two-sport student-athletes in the history of the school, participating in baseball and football.

Wilson, a member of the OSU Sports Hall of Fame, still holds the school record for home runs in one season with 21 and for single season (.829) and career (.640) slugging percentage. He was the Pac-10 Conference’s Northern Division MVP and third team All-American in 1982. Wilson was drafted by the Cleveland Indians in 1982 and played Major League Baseball with the Indians and Seattle Mariners, and in Japan. Wilson lettered in football as an offensive lineman in 1980 and ’81.

Jim and his wife Lisa have been married for 25 years and have twin daughters, Esti and Evan.

STEVE PREECE

Steve Preece has been a mainstay with the Beavers both on the field as a quarterback on the famed 1967 “Giant Killers” team and in the booth as a color analyst for Beaver broadcasts. The 1969 OSU graduate played nine seasons in the NFL for the New Orleans Saints, Philadelphia Eagles, Denver Broncos, Los Angeles Rams and Seattle Seahawks. He played on four conference championship teams with the Rams.

Preece adds insight on network pre-game radio. He is married to Karen Renee Hammer. Preece has two sons, Travis and Nick, and a daughter Whitney and her husband Pete. He also has one grandson, Travis.

THE FIGHT SONG

*OSU our hats are off to you,
 Beavers, Beavers, fighters thru and thru,
 We'll cheer throughout the land,
 We'll root for every plan,
 That's made for old OSU.*

*Watch our team go tearing down the field;
 Those of iron, their strength will never yield.
 Hail! Hail! Hail! Hail!
 Hail to old OSU

NICKNAME — THE BEAVERS

In the early days of the institution, Oregon State University's athletic teams were known as the Aggies. When orange uniforms replaced the drab sweatshirt gray and tan jerseys, the teams were referred to as the Orangemen.

In 1916 the school yearbook was renamed "The Beaver" and the name Beaver became associated with the school. It is believed the press also had some influence in changing the name, particularly L.H. Gregory of The Oregonian newspaper. The name gained instant popularity among alumni and students.

The Beaver is the state's official animal.

THE MASCOT — BENNY

Benny Beaver was adopted as Oregon State University's mascot in 1952 after the school had a reported three previous mascots. The first mascot in 1893 was a coyote named Jimmie, owned by M.M.H. Kriebel. In 1909, a second mascot appeared on the scene. Dr. John Bell, a Corvallis pastor and former regent of Corvallis when the college was taken over by the state and became Oregon Agricultural College. In the early 1900s, "Doc Bell" was considered to be the varsity football squad's "mascot" because of his steadfast attendance and advising. In 1921 there was an attempt to make a live Beaver, "Bevo", into the school mascot, but with little success.

Benny Beaver, OSU's current mascot, was introduced to the student body by the school's rally squad on September 18, 1952, in an effort to pick up sagging school spirit.

"Benny Beaver, the rally squad's candidate for handsomest man in school, has never been on campus before," according to The Barometer (student paper), at the time.

"The animal stands six-feet tall, wears vivid orange knickerbockers, a black jersey, and his familiar orange and black rooters lid."

Adopted as the official mascot in 1952, Benny Beaver still fires up the crowds at OSU athletic events today.

Benny Beaver, while officially accepted as the school's mascot in 1952, actually can be traced back to the 1940-41 school year. A statue of a beaver named "Benny" appears in the school's yearbook, and later a Barometer sports columnist used the pen name "Benny Beaver."

TEAM COLORS — ORANGE & BLACK

Oregon State was known as Corvallis College until the mid 1890s and the school color was navy blue. A faculty committee appointed by school President John Bloss voted to replace blue with orange. Not long after, black was selected by the student body as a background color. A local tailor named J.H. Harris donated black uniforms for the baseball team in this time frame, and it is believed to be where the black color scheme began in athletics, although that is debatable. An article in the local Corvallis Gazette-Times in 1892 describes the use of orange and black in commencement ceremonies, nearly a year prior to orange becoming the official color.

While orange was originally the official color, over the years black has become more universally accepted as one of the official colors. Today, nearly all of OSU accepts orange and black as the official colors.

Brandon Arnold, Oregon State safety, aiming for better 'nose for the ball' in 2017

By Gina Mizell
 The Oregonian

March 9, 2016

CORVALLIS — Brandon Arnold calls getting his first-career college start a “dream come true.” But the Oregon State safety is also quick to note the challenges of playing that position in the Pac-12.

“If a play is made on you,” Arnold said, “(if) they catch a long pass on you or you miss a tackle or someone scores on you, like coaches say, ‘Always have amnesia. Go on to the next play.’ That’s the toughest thing.”

Last week against UCLA, Arnold stepped in for Justin Strong (concussion), the Beavers’ most consistent defensive back and arguably their most underrated overall performer on that side of the ball. Though Arnold had seen a fair amount of playing time in 2015 — his interception at Washington State serves as the biggest highlight — Saturday marked his first chance to take the game’s first defensive snap.

And Arnold, a sophomore, had one of those “amnesia plays” early on, when Josh Rosen lofted a pass over Arnold’s head and into the arms of Thomas Duarte for the Bruins' first touchdown.

"No matter what," Arnold said, "When something happens, you're always thinking about that. 'Is that gonna happen again on me?' You start just having random thoughts."

Arnold, who finished with six tackles against UCLA, will get another chance to strike that mental balance this week. With Strong officially ruled out for Saturday's contest at California, Arnold will next match up against future NFL quarterback Jared Goff and a talented crop of Golden Bears receivers.

"Hopefully it continues," Arnold said. "Keep doing the right thing on the field."

Elu Aydon, Oregon State defensive lineman, a smooth singer off the field

By Gina Mizell
The Oregonian

September 16, 2016

CORVALLIS — Noah Togiai felt the skeptical stares as he and Elu Aydon walked onto the stage in front of a packed auditorium for Oregon State athletics' "Other Side" talent show this past spring.

Togiai, the Beavers tight end, began strumming on his guitar. And then Aydon, the 327-pound defensive tackle, opened his mouth.

"To the top of the clouds, we're floating away," Aydon smoothly sang, the crowd bursting into cheers as his notes kept rising while extending the last word of the line in John Legend's tune, "So High."

That's Aydon, the redshirt freshman starter who possesses physical power while manning the trenches on the football field and silky vocals off of it.

"Once he started singing, everyone was like, 'Wow,'" Togiai recently recalled. "Even I sometimes am like, 'How the heck does that (voice) come out of that (guy)?"

Aydon understands why his imposing size and athlete status — or the fact that he's more soft-spoken in conversation — could spark a surprised reaction when people initially discover his no-longer-so-hidden talent. But in reality, Aydon is a natural entertainer.

He recorded himself doing the Running Man Challenge in the middle of a Corvallis street and broke into a freestyle rap on an episode of the Pac-12 Network's docu-series, "The Drive." He posts clips of his vocal chops on Twitter, including a song he wrote for his mom on Mother's Day.

"It's a passion," Aydon said. "I think it's a gift from God, a talent that he's blessed me with. I'll use it in a positive way."

That passion was first instilled in Aydon while growing up in Leone, American Samoa. He started singing in church when he was about 7. He was a member of his high school choir for three years, including a stint in a group called "Poly Heartbeat" when he spent his freshman year at Saint Louis High in Honolulu. His music tastes are broad, ranging from hip-hop and R&B to gospel to his favorite, reggae.

And at OSU, Aydon has bonded with teammates over music. He and Togiai, who learned how to play the guitar from his older brother, started collaborating after overhearing each other's talents while living in the same freshman dorm. Linebacker Manase Hungalu also often accompanies them on guitar. Sometimes, they'll even break out a ukulele.

They call it the perfect way to wind down after a long day of football and school obligations.

"Music helps me get away from life for a little bit," Aydon said. "It's a great way to relax myself, take time away from stress ... it helps me get through everything that I go through in the day and the week.

"It just makes life a little easier."

The athletes' talent show — an event where all teams must be represented — naturally gave Aydon and Togiai their biggest on-campus platform. They were not notified until the day of that they would be football's act, ducking out of an evening study hall session and rehearsing quickly in the back of the room before settling onto two stools in the middle of the stage.

"We thought it was gonna be small," Togiai said. "We walked in and it was a full auditorium. We were like, 'What the...'"

Aydon acknowledges he was nervous for that performance. But he and Togiai were a massive hit with the audience and judges, winning the competition.

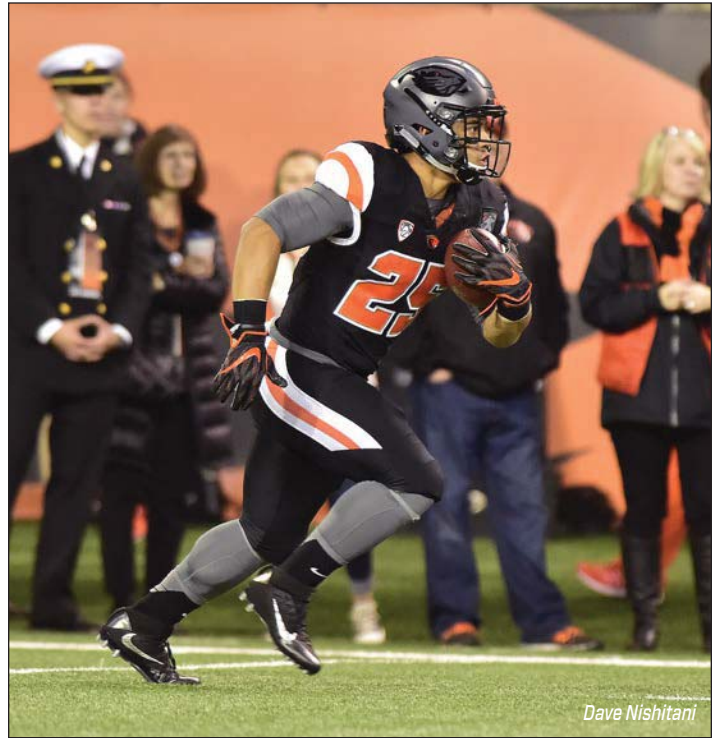

And now the word is out about Aydon's off-the-field talent. His social media blows up whenever he posts a new video. At the autograph signings following the Beavers' spring game and open fall camp scrimmage, fans asked Aydon to sing to them.

It's his latest chance to show off his "other side" — a passion, like football, he expects to last a lifetime.

"I've found a love for it," Aydon said. "I think it's something that'll take me to the grave."

Jaylynn Bailey (25) has earned playing time in a variety of roles including as a running back, H-back, on special teams coverage units and as the lead blocker on the kick return team.

South Salem grad Bailey earns football scholarship at OSU

By Gary Horowitz

September 20, 2016

CORVALLIS - Jaylynn Bailey has reached a milestone in his college football career.

During Oregon State's bye week after the Sept. 1 season opener at Minnesota, the South Salem High School graduate was put on scholarship.

While going from preferred walk-on status to scholarship student-athlete does not guarantee more playing time for Bailey, it provides a sense of validation.

"I'm just working hard and it puts me in a better position to help this team," Bailey said after Tuesday's practice.

A 5-foot-9, 223-pound junior running back, Bailey rushed for nearly 1,500 yards his senior year at South Salem. He has not carried the ball since in an official game.

After redshirting at Southern Oregon in 2013, Bailey transferred to OSU winter quarter because he wanted to compete at the highest level of college football. He sat out in 2014 due to NCAA transfer rules.

It could certainly be argued that Bailey has fresh legs.

"I wouldn't say fresh legs," said Jaylynn's dad, Ardell Bailey, an academic advisor in the OSU Athletic Department. "He has hungry legs."

Mid-Valley football fans may remember Ardell Bailey. A McKay High grad, Ardell played football for two seasons at OSU before transferring to Willamette University, where he was a fullback on the 1997 team that advanced to the NAIA national championship game.

Jaylynn agreed with his dad's assessment about having "hungry legs." He has shown flashes in scrimmages and practices that he's more than capable of running the football effectively if the opportunity presents itself.

Bailey ran for 64 yards on six carries in the 2015 spring game. He played in six games last season, primarily on special teams, and lined up at fullback late in the season.

In OSU's first two games this season, Bailey's contributions have come on special teams. He was a return man on kickoffs with senior wide receiver Victor Bolden in last Saturday's 37-7 victory over Idaho State, and also is on kickoff coverage and the punt return team.

"He's excited about the opportunity to be part of this team and Oregon State football means the world to him," OSU head coach Gary Andersen said. "He's what you want in a student-athlete from top to bottom. On the field, off the field, socially, he's a

Bailey enjoys giving back to the community.

He’s involved in the Beavers’ Beyond Football Initiative, which stresses community service. Bailey and teammates visited Randall Children’s Hospital at Legacy Emanuel in Portland, and participated in the Polar Plunge in Corvallis, a fundraiser for Special Olympics.

“I’m super proud of him,” Ardell Bailey said.

Jaylynn Bailey has never viewed his position on the depth chart as a deterrent. He is currently behind sophomore Ryan Nall, true freshman Artavis Pierce, and senior Tim Cook.

Andersen has frequently said that OSU needs three quality running backs to compete in the Pac-12, and Bailey is one play away from being part of that rotation.

“I just keep working,” Bailey said. “Things change all the time. Nothing’s ever engraved in stone.”

Storm Barrs-Woods is a example of that point. An injury-plagued senior season paved the way for Nall’s emergence in the 2015 Civil War.

While Bailey continues to make a name for himself on special teams, it would not come as a surprise to see him carry the ball soon, perhaps in Saturday’s home game against Boise State.

“He’s a kid on the rise right now that we should start looking at as far as special teams and getting some quality runs,” OSU running backs coach Telly Lockette said. Bailey’s versatility could translate into more playing time. In addition to special teams, he can play tailback, fullback and H-back.

His goal is to help the Beavers win a Pac-12 championship, “and somehow make it to the (NFL).”

This much is certain: When Bailey’s number is called, he’ll be ready.

“I definitely haven’t arrived yet,” Bailey said. “I’m gonna keep pushing.”

Jordan Choukair relishing opportunity to kick

By Gina Mizell
The Oregonian

November 18, 2016

CORVALLIS - Jordan Choukair walked into the Rose Bowl in awe.

Not exactly an uncommon reaction for any player stepping inside one of college football's iconic venues. But Choukair was also on the field of the stadium where he attended games growing up in nearby Poway, Calif. And he was about to get the first action of his college career, knocking a 20-yard field goal through the uprights in the Beavers' 38-24 loss to UCLA.

"I'm just taking my role how it is," Choukair said. "I don't really care what I'm doing, as long as I'm out on the field. I thank the coaching staff for giving me the opportunity, that's for sure."

Choukair, a redshirt freshman, took over the field-goal duties from Garrett Owens, who is still kicking extra points while Adley Rutschman is the primary kickoff specialist. It's a unique distribution of responsibilities for the Beavers.

And a few years ago, Choukair never envisioned himself as a kicker.

Despite being the son of former NFL kicker John Choukair, Jordan's first sports were baseball and soccer. But when the Poway High School football coaches were seeking a new kicker, they naturally thought of Choukair because of his pedigree and big leg already displayed on the soccer field.

Choukair quickly moved up from the freshman team to the JV level to varsity that season. And he worked with his father almost daily on everything from technique to how to calm his mind.

"I owe him everything," Choukair said. "There's no way I'd be here without him. Not many kids can say that they've got their coach in their own house."

Choukair first drew recruiting interest from OSU when he attended a camp in the summer of 2015, resulting in a preferred walk-on offer. As he was weighing his options -- Arizona, San Diego State and Hawaii were also in the mix -- coach Gary Andersen called a couple days before fall camp with a full scholarship offer if he could be in Corvallis the following day.

"I was like, 'Alright, mom, dad, we're packing the bags. Let's go,'" Choukair recalled. Choukair redshirted in 2015 and spent part of this season shaking off an injury. But after Owens missed five of his last seven field-goal attempts, Andersen announced last week that Choukair would hold that job against UCLA.

That gave Choukair his first college action at the Rose Bowl. Up next, Reser Stadium.

"Things can change in a heartbeat, just like it did," Choukair. "Just always be prepared, because it came quick. It was awesome."

Seth Collins makes impact at receiver

By Kevin Hampton
Corvallis Gazette-Times

September 13, 2016

Oregon State was facing third-and-4 during a drive in the second quarter of the it's season opener against Minnesota on Sept. 1, a game the Beavers eventually lost 30-23.

Receiver Seth Collins sprinted past the first down marker, stopped and sealed off the defensive back, who was much shorter.

Quarterback Darell Garretson spotted Collins and got him the ball for a first down.

"I've got to get to the chains, so get to the chains and box him out. I'm a bigger guy, a bigger target," Collins said. "My mindset was throw me the ball, I've got him boxed out, I can catch the ball a little high."

Collins was matter of fact about making the play.

"That's just football," he said. "I've been playing this since I was 6 and the principals and concepts haven't changed. Third-and-(four), you've got to get to the chains. So that's what I did."

Even so, it was not a typical move by a player who recently made the switch from quarterback to receiver.

Nor a typical performance.

Collins led all OSU wide receivers with five catches for 57 yards with a long of 25 yards. Running back Ryan Nall was the team leader with eight for 80.

"It felt good. I just feel I need to do a little bit more. I know what I'm expecting going out there. I feel I know what I'm capable of and it was a good starting game," Collins said.

"It felt good to just get a couple of catches, but I know I can do more for my team."

Senior receiver Victor Bolden said Collins has stood out for a player in transition. "He's done a great job as far as the technique that you need to have being a receiver," Bolden said. "He's picking it up really fast and as you see he went out there and made some big plays for us during the Minnesota game, so I'm excited to see what he does in the games upcoming."

Collins did get some time at receiver near the end of last season, but he missed spring ball after making the decision to stick with the Beavers rather than transferring to Northern Illinois.

That left the summer and fall camp to get ready.

Receivers coach Brent Brennan said he's not surprised by Collins' ability to quickly settle into the swing of things at the position.

"He's a quick learner. It's so important to him, so he puts the emphasis in it that it takes to be good at it," Brennan said. "So he's just working really hard and he practices really hard, so he just continues to improve at a really good rate.

"He just works his butt off and he's trying to learn every day, he's trying to improve. We saw it a little bit at the end of the season last year and then also in fall camp, stuff that we were teaching him, he was able to apply that practice that day in the moment we were trying to get him to do it."

Collins also has some advantages. He's got good size for a receiver at 6-foot-3, 188 pounds and speed.

"He's a great combination of speed and quickness and he's got a big body, so his God-given skill set is perfect for this position," Brennan said.

"Some of the stuff is just natural. He's just natural at understanding space and using his body and he's so eager to make plays that he'll do whatever he can to make it."

Collins, a sophomore, has room to grow and build on the strides he's made in the past few months.

He wants to get more technically sound on route running, understanding defensive back leverage and learning the playbook.

And he wants to make game-changing plays.

"Going into this game I just want to execute. Every ball thrown my way, anytime I touch it, I just want to execute, try to make that play to possibly break a score," he said. "Do something special with it."

Xavier Crawford (22) earned the vacant starting spot at cornerback in 2016 as a redshirt freshman. Crawford finished the season with 70 tackles, fourth on the team, en route to earning Freshman All-America honors by several outlets.

Crawford ready to go on short notice

By Kevin Hampton
Corvallis Gazette-Times

September 10, 2016

CORVALLIS — Xavier Crawford didn't have much time to think when he got the news that he was going to start at right cornerback for the Oregon State football team at Minnesota.

But he was ready.

Dwayne Williams had been listed as questionable going into the game and was a late scratch.

So Crawford, a redshirt freshman, got a start in his first college game.

"Well, to be honest, it really didn't hit me until the first play," Crawford said. "When I got out there I was a little bit nervous but after a few plays, a few drives, I got in the flow of the game and it just became football."

Crawford rose to the challenge.

He led the Beavers with eight solo tackles and broke up two passes. He kept a blanket on the Minnesota receivers and was tough in run support.

The performance was no surprise to safety Devin Chappell, who saw the potential in Crawford during practices last season.

"A lot of people don't really know, but Xavier Crawford is a great player," Chappell said. "I thought he was going to be able to play last year and I've been telling him for a long time, 'As soon as you figure it out, you're going to be a great player.'"

"Everybody saw against Minnesota, he's a good tackler, he's fast, he's strong and he can hold his own on the edge. I think he had a great game and I'm expecting great things from him this year."

Crawford played safety, receiver, running back and returned kicks while playing for Pittsburg (Calif.) High through his junior season.

Cornerback became the main spot for Crawford when he was a senior at Clayton Valley High in Concord, California.

"I would just play anything. But as I started getting recruited in high school coaches started telling me I'm a good-sized corner and they said maybe I should focus on that," Crawford said. "So I just started focus on that my senior year."

It was good advice. Crawford, now listed at 6-foot-1, 188 pounds, had the long, lanky build that defense coaches covet for a cornerback.

Former OSU defensive coordinator Kalani Sitake began recruiting Crawford while he was still on staff at Utah. California, San Jose State and Boise State were also interested.

Crawford even committed to San Diego State for a brief time.

Oregon State became the frontrunner. Crawford liked then-coach Mike Riley and his staff and went with the Beavers when running back and cousin Harris Ross committed.

"We always wanted to go to the same college, so when I got the offer, it seemed like it was supposed to happen," Crawford said. "So I just committed."

Although Ross ended up at Contra Costa College in San Pablo, California, and Riley wound up at Nebraska, Crawford liked what Gary Andersen brought to the table as a coach.

"As everybody knows, coach Riley ended up leaving and I talked to coach A when he came and I got a good feel from him so I ended up staying and I'm glad I did," Crawford said.

Sitake arrived at OSU with Andersen and Crawford was able to learn from him for a season before he became head coach at BYU.

Now Crawford has cornerbacks coach Cory Hall to go to for technique work and fellow corner Treстон Decoud for tips.

"Treston, last year he was the guy. He has game experience and just coming to him, seeing how he prepares and how he focuses up for the game and what he looks for in certain formations and just going over film and stuff like that," Crawford said. "He's definitely been a good mentor."

Crawford fit in immediately with his teammates.

Chappell said he gets along well with Crawford and the entire defensive back group is close.

"People probably get annoyed at how tight knit our DB corps is because we're always together, always laughing, always joking, always talking trash to each other," Chappell said.

"Craw, he's right in the middle of the pack. He's super outgoing and a lot of energy, super happy dude and he's a great teammate."

The Minnesota game was a good start for Crawford.

There's still a lot of ground for him to cover in order to become a top cornerback.

He's been taking full advantage of the bye week break.

"Just learning what the offense is trying to do to us, how they are trying to attack us in certain situations and continually trying to work my technique," he said. "And that's pretty much it."

Xavier Crawford, Oregon State cornerback, turns offseason diligence into on-field impact

By Gina Mizell
The Oregonian

September 14, 2016

CORVALLIS — When asked about his most pleasant fall-camp surprise a couple weeks ago, Oregon State cornerbacks coach Cory Hall did not hesitate.

Xavier Crawford's name immediately spilled out of Hall's mouth. And in the Beavers' opener at Minnesota, Crawford showed why he was worthy of that praise. He tied for the team lead with eight tackles and broke up two passes in his collegiate debut to become the defense's first impact newcomer.

"It definitely was a long time coming," Crawford said. "But I'm glad now that I'm playing."

Yes, "long time coming" can apply to a redshirt freshman, because Crawford's path to emerging as an OSU starting cornerback was more circuitous than most.

Crawford, a Pittsburg, Calif. native, had last stepped on the field as a high-school senior in 2013, before signing with OSU in the fall of 2014. He spent that quarter off campus as a grayshirt, working out in his hometown and attending junior college classes.

When Mike Riley left following that season to take the Nebraska job, new Beavers coach Gary Andersen called Crawford to ask if he'd still like to come to Corvallis. Following a scan of Andersen's resume, Crawford still believed he could find success at OSU.

Crawford, who's known to teammates and coaches as "X," began practicing with the Beavers in the spring of 2015, where the speed "definitely caught me by surprise" and "I had to work a little bit harder than I was normally used to." Former Beavers defensive coordinator Kalani Sitake often lauded Crawford's potential, even throughout his redshirt season. And when Hall arrived as the new cornerbacks coach, Crawford was one of the first to introduce himself and start picking the brain of the former NFL defensive back.

"There was not a lot of time that he wasted as far as thirsting for knowledge," Hall said of Crawford. "He was one of those guys that was always at my doorstep. Always knocking at my door, always getting information. He wanted to know every fine detail.

"Not a lot of the players took to all the information like he did, so that's how I knew (he'd be successful)."

Crawford also takes pride in meticulously dissecting practice and game film on his own, so he can walk into meetings with detailed notes already in hand. And when he gets corrections about subtleties in his backpedal or patience in press-man coverage, he applies them to the field.

"When he's talking to me, I kind of already know what he's gonna say," Crawford said of Hall. "He's just reiterating what I already (know I) have to correct."

During spring practice, Crawford officially entered the competition for playing time with fellow redshirt freshmen like Jay Irvine and Shawn Wilson. Hall initially plugged Crawford in as a nickel and dime back. Instead, the coach discovered Crawford was a much better fit outside at corner, where his explosiveness out of breaks, hip fluidity and savvy playmaking ability could shine.

"It looked like a fish going back into his homing water," Hall said. "It's like, OK, this is where you belong."

Added Beavers quarterback Darell Garretson, who throws Crawford's way in practice daily: "He's kind of one of those guys that just makes those plays and is kind of sneaky. You think you have it, and all of a sudden he's there. He's breaking up the ball or he's making a play on it."

Crawford acknowledged he was "a bit nervous for the whole game" against Minnesota. And the Golden Gophers attempted to attack the youngster, throwing deep on him three times. Crawford knocked two of those passes away and got called for pass interference on the third — but don't tell that to Hall, who insists Crawford was looking for the ball on that play.

A few days later, though, Crawford was already critiquing his performance. He needed to be slower in his backpedal. His eyes sometimes got caught in the backfield, causing him to be late breaking on a receiver's route. He could have played more relaxed.

That diligence is why Crawford emerged during fall camp and debuted as one of the Beavers' most productive newcomers. Now he's no longer a surprise to anyone outside of OSU's locker room.

His next goal is to become a staple in the Beavers' defense.

"He's gonna have to continue to build on that," Hall said. "And he will."

Yanni Demogerontas (76) earned the starting position at center to begin the 2016 season. After making two starts, he was sidelined by injury for several weeks. He will battle for playing time again in this fall.

Centers competing, learning on the fly

By Kevin Hampton
Corvallis Gazette-Times

August 15, 2016

Yanni Demogerontas is at center for the first time in years. Trent Moore was moved to the position less than two weeks ago. They've both jumped right into the mix for the starting spot. It's a wide-open competition right now with just a few weeks before the Oregon State football team opens the season at Minnesota.

"There's great competition at that position right now," OSU co-offensive coordinator and offensive line coach T.J. Woods said. "It's nobody's job. It's everybody's job to win."

Josh Mitchell leaves some big shoes to fill and none of the front-runners have much experience.

Least of all Moore, who was at right tackle at the beginning of camp and still works at both sides along with center.

"I'm about a week and a half in right now at center, so I've still got to learn a whole bunch of stuff and I've got to get the snaps down, shotgun, and obviously with different quarterbacks there's different feels for under center," Moore said. "So that's the sort of stuff I need to work on, but I'm totally confident in Yanni and Gavin and what they're doing, too, so I'm trying to learn from them, too."

Moore and Demogerontas had a little bit of a head's up during the summer when they were told to work on their snapping skills.

They went out together in the afternoons nearly every day to snap to each other.

"So that's when I really started learning the stuff and getting the snaps down," Moore said.

Woods called snapping the football the first priority for the centers.

"In this offense we've got to be accurate snapping the football every time," he said. "For us to do what we're asking the quarterbacks to do, it has to be accurate. And so it's something we're still working through and all those guys are doing a good job."

Snapping was still a little difficult at first for Demogerontas.

"Starting off camp I was shaky on snapping, but over time I practiced a little bit every day after practice and as the practices went on I've gotten more and more comfortable and the snaps are pretty much on target every time," Demogerontas said.

There's plenty to be done before and after the snap.

The center has to make the line calls and direct his teammates before a play.

"You've got to make sure you ID correctly and get everyone on the same page so everyone's one unit," Demogerontas said. "You play like that and that's when you play fast and play physical and do your best, when everyone's on the same page. That's the center's job and I think I've taken on that role pretty well."

After getting the ball to the quarterback, the center has some different angles on blocks than the other line positions.

"You're the center, so the line of scrimmage, you're the closest to the line," Demogerontas said. "So you have to make sure you're one step a little quicker on the run, on the pass, you've got to step back real quick. So that's a minor adjustment but it wasn't too difficult to fix."

With the top three at the position along with a few other candidates, there should be strong competition for the starting job in the upcoming weeks.

That should help all the players improve and stay sharp.

"Competition's great and everyone's playing hard out here, everyone's doing a great job," Demogerontas said. "So we'll see how things shake out as camp goes on."

There was no blocker in front of Oregon State outside linebacker Titus Failauga. The offensive tackle had slanted away, leaving a lane to the quarterback.

So Failauga raced full speed into the Idaho State backfield.

He crashed into quarterback Tanner Guellar, popping the ball out and eventually into the hands of OSU linebacker Manase Hungalu for one of the Beavers' five take-aways.

The Beavers were looking for a better pass rush against the Bengals after the 30-23 loss at Minnesota to open the season.

The Beavers did not get to the Gophers' quarterback in that game and were determined to improve with work during the bye week.

Failauga's sack in the first quarter of the 37-7 win against the Bengals was the first sign of how that preparation worked out for the Beavers.

The Beavers finished with four sacks and three quarterback hurries.

"We did work on it a lot over the week," OSU defensive lineman Summer Houston said. "We knew it was going to be a lot of quick two-step drops and passing real quick, so we worked on a lot of quick moves, getting our hands in the air and just rushing the passer, doing what we need to do. The work paid off."

Failauga's performance was a big part of the Beavers' improvement. He finished with two sacks and was active throughout the game.

"It felt good," Failauga said. "Bring back two sacks home for the whole defense. It gives our defense a boost and some statistics to show to other teams that we can rush the passer, so it feels good."

Houston said Failauga was more fluid in his movements and his blitzes and that resulted in more explosiveness in his play.

"Where before I feel he was a little more hesitant," Houston said. "I feel he knew what he was doing but he was thinking too much and he just let go more during this last week and it really paid off for him."

Failauga said the difference between his day against the Bengals and how he played at Minnesota was due to his ability to stick to his job.

He sometimes lost focus against the Gophers and drifted off his assignment.

"I knew I kind of moved away from my job on some of the plays in the Minnesota game and this game I was able to stick to my job and was able to get some freebies," he said. "That was the main thing. I did my job and I was able to come out with two sacks, so it was good."

The Beavers also got a sack from defensive tackle Kalani Vakameilalo, and linebacker Bright Ugwoegbu and defensive end Baker Pritchard combined for a sack.

Crescent Valley alum Keegan Firth lives the dreamBy Kevin Hampton
Corvallis Gazette-Times

August 18, 2016

Every time Keegan Firth pulls on his Oregon State football uniform is a special moment for him.

Firth, a redshirt freshman long and short snapper for the Beavers, is living a childhood dream.

He grew up in Corvallis and was an OSU fan through the years. Playing football for the Beavers was an ultimate goal.

"It's been a dream of mine since I was a kid," Firth said. "I have photos of me in an entire Halloween outfit of Oregon State gear."

Firth played for Crescent Valley High and had the chance to walk on with the Beavers after graduating in 2014.

"My dad went here and it's just a big deal to me," Firth said. "To get that call and to be able to come here was just a dream of mine that came true."

Firth joined the Beavers as a long snapper, but an injury to a teammate last year opened up a spot with the linebackers.

Firth practiced at linebacker until the start of last spring when he was notified by the coaches that he would be moving back to snapping duties full time.

In the depth chart released on July 12, Firth was listed as the third string long snapper and was the No. 4 short snapper.

He started snapping in sixth grade when the team needed one and tryouts were held.

"I was just a natural at it," he said. "From there on out I just practiced it and got good and that's how I got here."

Firth was a pitcher at CV and compared snapping to standing alone on the mound.

Both require staying strong mentally, using a calm approach and consistency.

"It's one job. You screw up, everyone knows you screw up," he said. "You can screw up at linebacker, like I did many times because I never played it before, and it's not as big of a deal because if you have a bad snap, it's a huge swing. So the hardest thing for me is the mental game. I have it physically, I just need to get it in my head better and I'll be better."

Punter Nick Porebski has received his share of snaps.

Porebski said Firth has come a long way as a snapper since he arrived at OSU.

"He's definitely improved on the speed of his snap and I think he's just got to work on his physicality, getting out of his snap and running down field," Porebski said.

Firth said he needs to be more consistent with his accuracy.

"I'm not saying it's bad, but it's just something that to step my level up to become a starting long snapper, I need to be consistent at all times to make sure we can get it off at the right time so it won't be blocked or we won't screw up," he said.

If Firth makes that jump and takes over the top spot on the depth chart, he'll have a built-in fan club to cheer him at all home games.

As it is, he enjoys being close to home and his friends.

"Now I have my friends with me and my family is like five minutes from me, they're always there to support me," Firth said. "That's something not a lot of people have the advantage to take advantage of and that's what I have and that's great."

Garretson ready to formally take the reins for the Beavers

By Anne Peterson
Associated Press

August 30, 2016

Quarterback Darrell Garretson already has something that Oregon State lacked at the position at this point last season: Experience.

The transfer from Utah State who sat out last season will lead the Beavers when they visit Minnesota on Thursday night. Don't expect him to be rattled under the lights on national television, coach Gary Andersen said.

"He'll be in the moment. He loves football. He loves the games. That's what he works so hard for," Andersen said. "And I think that — I hope that — it will be a calming feeling for some of the younger players who may be in the position to have a little more nerves than you'd want them to have."

Freshman Seth Collins, as well as redshirt freshmen Marcus McMaryion and Nick Mitchell, all saw time at starter for the Beavers last season. None of them had played a snap in a college game.

Mitchell has since transferred. Collins announced that he was leaving, too, but then returned to Oregon State and will play at receiver this season. McMaryion remains, and looks to be Garretson's backup heading into this season.

The Beavers finished 2-10 last season, not entirely unexpected after the team's overhaul in Andersen's first year after Mike Riley departed for Nebraska.

"A year ago right now the quarterback situation was just so experienced that kids hadn't been in that spot," Andersen said. "To have Darrell, the position he's in, where he's been in big games. He's played in big venues on the road. He's one of the quarterbacks who has gone in and beaten BYU at their stadium. That's hard to do. Not a lot of QBs have success there."

Garretson passed for 2,586 yards and 18 touchdowns in two seasons at Utah State before he transferred to Oregon State in June 2015.

He was required to sit out a season under NCAA rules but that gave him time to study the Beavers' offense that was installed under then-first-year coach Andersen.

"The redshirt year was hard, but I got to work on a lot of stuff, got to work on certain things you normally wouldn't be able to work on during the season. The year off was beneficial, for sure," he said at the start of fall camp.

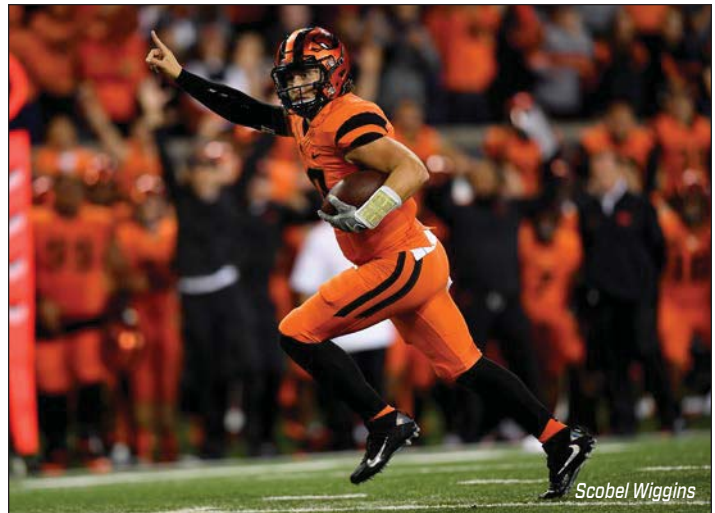

Garretson emerged in the Beavers' spring game and Andersen named him the starter shortly thereafter, clearly defining his role going into fall camp.

"It's a good feeling to have a guy that's been in the moment," Andersen said. "And like I've said, there's nothing like reps. There's nothing like game reps, there's nothing like practice reps to get you in a position to go. This team has definitely accepted him as the quarterback and their leader. I'm excited to see him play. He's produced pretty well when he's been in there and he'll have high expectations of himself, no doubt."

The Gophers went 5-7 last season before beating Central Michigan 21-14 in the Quick Lane Bowl in Detroit. Minnesota earned a bowl berth because there weren't enough eligible FBS teams to fill the spots.

That season was marked by the departure of coach Jerry Kill because of health reasons. Tracy Claeys, an assistant under Kill for 21 years, took over as head coach.

Minnesota will be led by fifth-year senior quarterback Mitch Leidner, who threw for 14 touchdowns and 11 interceptions while running for six more scores last season — despite struggling with a foot injury that required surgery following the bowl game.

Darrell Garretson (10) claimed the first string quarterback job in 2016 starting the season's first six games before an injury ended his season prematurely. Garretson is shown here running for the winning touchdown in overtime against California last fall.

Hernandez fills out receiving corps

By Kevin Hampton
 Corvallis Gazette-Times

August 17, 2016

Timmy Hernandez was sold on the idea of playing for Oregon State as soon as he got interest from Gary Andersen.

Hernandez has been a fan of Andersen for years, having cheered on Utah while his brother, Brian, was a receiver for the Utes.

"My brother was actually recruited by coach Andersen when coach Andersen was at Utah," Hernandez said. "So I had a good reference about coach Andersen and he had nothing but good things to say, so when coach Andersen gave me that call, I committed."

Hernandez figured he was going to play defense for the Beavers.

He was a two-way player for Pima Community College in Arizona, getting on the field as a cornerback and wide receiver.

When then-OSU defensive coordinator Kalani Sitake was the first to call during the recruiting process, Hernandez thought he was bound for a corner spot for the Beavers.

Instead, the Beavers wanted him to play receiver.

"Then coach Andersen called me and kind of laid out the whole plan for me," Hernandez said.

That's just fine with Hernandez, who had 53 catches for 849 yards and six touchdowns in 2015. He said he'll play any position and put in hard work if it means getting on the field for a Division I program.

He's excited to join a potentially strong group of receivers, which includes Victor Bolden, Jordan Villamin and Hunter Jarmon.

"I was impressed by the receiving corps when I first got here and there were a lot of people asking why do you want to go to a 2-10 team, there's no talent there," he said. "And I got here and it's just not true. They just didn't have their straw yet. The receiving corps especially, they've shown they have talent in the past, especially Villy and Hunter's freshman year and Vic's sophomore year, they all put pretty solid numbers.

"There's no doubt we have the talent, we just have to put it on the field during the game."

Judging by the fall depth chart, Hernandez is expected to make an immediate contribution.

He's listed at three receiver spots and is No. 1 at wide receiver Y.

Hernandez was a qualifier out of high school and did not have to graduate from junior college. That enabled him to enroll at OSU much earlier than his fellow newcomers, which gave him a head start in preparation.

"It definitely helped to get here early and I actually came in January, so I actually had the whole winter term, too, to kind of get the playbook down," Hernandez said. "And there were still a little hiccups that I had to get over in the spring but I feel comfortable with the whole playbook now."

His teammates have been welcoming and quick to help out when Hernandez has needed support.

"I know my team and I'm pretty comfortable with them. They're all pretty helpful, helping me learn the playbook," Hernandez said. "They'd follow me around at practice and explain what we're running and what coverage and why we're running it. They were a big help."

While the Beavers have some deep threats at receiver, Hernandez is a solid possession receiver.

"I think moving the chains is where I've gotten the best at. Like the 8 to 15 yard area, that's where I like to be," Hernandez said. "Coach Andersen, he wants someone who can move the chains when we need to and I think we have a receiving corps that has some people who can do that."

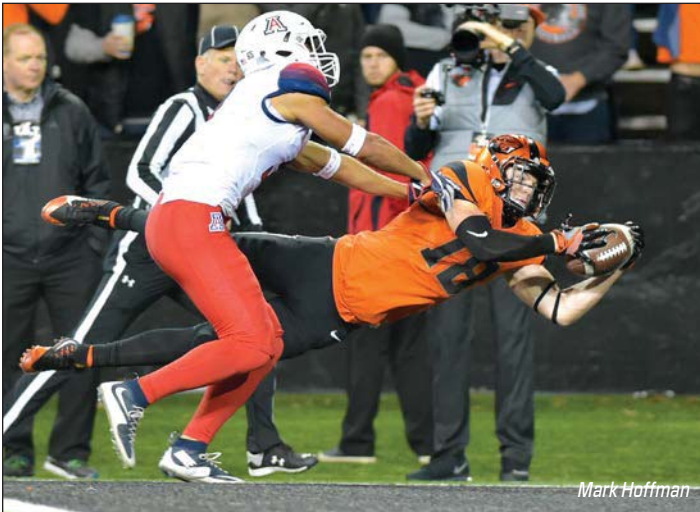

He is able to play inside and outside receiver and has the ability to step in at any of the receiver spots.

Outside receiver was his primary offensive position in JC, but he wound up playing some fullback.

"My brother was the offensive coordinator and when our starting quarterback got hurt we moved one of our receivers to quarterback and so my brother moved me to fullback to make the checks at the line," he said. "That was fun."

So any chance he might see some time in the backfield for the Beavers?

"Me and coach Andersen had that talk," he said with a chuckle. "That's not happening."

Timmy Hernandez (18) came on late in the 2016 season making 10 of his 19 receptions in the final three games. Above, Hernandez snatches his first career touchdown on a 27-yard pass from Marcus McMaryion in a win over Arizona.

Sumner Houston (52, lined up a center) transitioned from the defensive line to center during spring drills.

Sumner Houston steps in at center

By Kevin Hampton
Corvallis Gazette-Times

February 18, 2017

Sumner Houston bent down and grasped the football with his left hand, then quickly flicked it through his legs to a waiting teammate.

Houston and a small group of fellow centers try to get in 50 shotgun snaps after every Oregon State football practice.

He needs the work. Houston is back at the position for the first time since third grade. He spent the past two seasons as a defensive lineman for the Beavers, so moving to center has been a big switch.

He played some offensive line in high school, but snapping the football was never a requirement.

Two snaps were off-target on Saturday.

"Got to get it perfect," Houston said.

Coach Gary Andersen told Houston he was switching to center during the exit interview after last season.

Gavin Andrews, who started at the spot for the 2016 season, had moved on and the Beavers did not land a junior college center, so the coaches were looking for a good fit to fill out the position.

"Coach A on my exit meet for fall term, he brought me in and told me, 'Sumner, we really see you as a center and I feel you can excel there' and I said, 'all right, whatever we need to do, whatever you feel is best for me, I'll do it,'" Houston said. "That's why I'm center now."

Houston had some time to transition before spring practice.

The Beavers did not go to a bowl game, so Houston got a playbook and began work over winter break.

He made the trip to Dallas to watch his brother, Bart, play in the Cotton Bowl for Wisconsin.

Bart Houston happened to be the quarterback the last time Sumner played center. After the game, they got together once again as center and quarterback.

They worked out back home in Dublin, California, using the backyard or heading to a nearby high school.

"He'd give me a formation, either three-down or four-down, and tell me pass, run, whatever we were going to do. And I'd either do my slide to my protection or just do a run block," Houston said. "I didn't really know exact technique, so I just kind of made it up as I went, but Bart helped me along with the scheme more than anything."

Now that Houston is at practice with coaches, he's concentrating on sharpening his technique.

He gets help from center Yanni Demogerontas and has daily meetings with offensive line graduate assistant coach Josh Oglesby.

"He's done great. Sumner's a guy that is an unselfish player. He needed to fulfill a different role on this team for us to do what we want to do and he's embraced it with open arms," offensive line coach T.J. Woods said.

"Center, that's probably the hardest place to play on the O-line when you're young and when you're inexperienced because there's so much mentally and he's done a really good job of it so far. He's not there yet, but that's why we're out here practicing. But I'm very, very pleased with Sumner's progress."

Houston does have an advantage in that he knows what to look for when lining up across from the defensive line, having played on the other side of the ball.

He's able to tell where the defensive linemen are lining up and where they're shading.

"It just depends what you can see out of the defense, just the little things, and that's helped me a lot so far, not biting on a lot of things they're faking," he said.

The biggest adjustment for Houston so far has been the speed of the game.

"The speed's definitely a factor as of right now because we're trying to get reps in and that's how you learn," Houston said. "I'm doing a lot better than I was on Day 1. It was really fast for me but now I'm getting the tempo down, I just need to do my calls a little faster, but coach says I'm doing pretty well right now, I just need to keep working on my technique and everything."

Andrzej Hughes-Murray (49) was forced into action as a true freshman due to a string of injuries at outside linebacker. He made an immediate impact with 24 tackles in six games.

Andrzej Hughes-Murray latest freshman linebacker to make debut

By Gina Mizell
 The Oregonian

October 28, 2016

CORVALLIS — It's become the routine for Oregon State outside linebackers coach Chad Kauha'aha'a. Following each Wednesday practice, he breaks down the play of the newest guy to line up at the Beavers' "B" linebacker spot.

Kauha'aha'a conceded this is "absolutely" the most injuries he's experienced at a single spot. And this week, the discussion centered around true freshman Andrzej Hughes-Murray, who made his collegiate debut in OSU's 41-17 loss at No. 4 Washington and became the fifth player (and fourth true freshman) to occupy that position in a game this season.

"I learned that there's a lot to learn," Hughes-Murray said with a chuckle. "It's just the details, technique every single play. It's one thing to get lined up, know your assignment. But at the end of the day, you gotta have the technique and confidence to go out there and do it"

Hughes-Murray was one of OSU's more highly touted signees, a freshman coach Gary Andersen said back in February could challenge for immediate playing time because of his physical 6-foot-2, 235-pound frame and background as a high school state champion wrestler.

But a hamstring injury curtailed Hughes-Murray's development during fall camp, prompting a plan for him to redshirt. He fully returned to practice a few weeks ago, just as OSU was tweaking its scheme from more of a nickel-based look to one with two outside linebackers due to the speed in the Pac-12 and injuries piling up in the secondary.

When Titus Failauga, then Shemar Smith, then Joah Robinett went down with injuries, Hughes-Murray got bumped up to the travel squad. He worked extra with fellow freshman Shemiah Unutoa-Whitson and Kauha'aha'a following practice, drilling technique and asking questions about the game plan. And when Unutoa-Whitson tweaked an ankle against the Huskies, Hughes-Murray became the next man up.

Entering the game in a hostile road environment was "quite the rush," Hughes-Murray said. Kauha'aha'a added Hughes-Murray played "as well as he could for being thrown into the fire this late in the season with very little time to prepare."

"They kind of felt their way through it a little bit," Kauha'aha'a said of Unutoa-Whitson and Hughes-Murray. "They responded well. It wasn't like their eyes were wide open."

But the coach also stressed he needs more production from that position, that three tackles combined between Unutoa-Whitson and Hughes-Murray is "just not cutting it."

For now, though, the coach is thankful the Beavers heavily recruited the outside linebacker spot during the most recent cycle. Because he's needed almost all of them this season.

"Whatever we gotta do, well make it work," Kauha'aha'a said. "But knock on wood that we got over the injury bug."

Every play is Manase Hungalu's play

By Kevin Hampton
Corvallis Gazette-Times

November 26, 2016

Manase Hungalu has a saying that he tries to live up to when he takes the field on game day for the Oregon State football team.

"Every play is my play."

Hungalu, a junior linebacker, has come pretty close throughout this season and particularly in the last two games.

His method is to fly to the ball and run sideline to sideline.

He kept the Beavers close at UCLA with two fumble returns, one for a touchdown, and an interception in the end zone.

"It was super-fun," Hungalu said. "I've been playing football for a long time and I haven't touched a ball on defense in a while and that's just who I am, I always want to be around the ball and just having those turnovers, for me it's something I always look forward to, going out every series on defense."

Last week he led the Beavers with 10 total tackles in a 42-17 win against Arizona.

He is second on the team with 74 total tackles in 10 games, with three for loss.

Defensive coordinator Kevin Clune said he expects double-digit tackles from Hungalu every time out.

"He's doing a great job. Mentally, he's really playing his best ball. He's understanding things, he's doing his homework, he's watching his film," Clune said.

"I'm happy with his development. He still has a huge upside. We haven't seen the ceiling for him yet."

Hungalu attracted quite a bit of attention for his game at UCLA.

On the Bruins' first drive of the game, Hungalu snatched up a fumble at the UCLA 35 and returned it 31 yards, not quite making it into the end zone.

The next time he picked up a fumble, he rumbled 40 yards for a score.

"He actually called it in the middle of the game," Clune said. "He said, 'I'm going to get another one and I'm going to get there.' So he's got the confidence right now and that's huge when you've got confidence. You're playing fast, you're seeing things. His developing is going great, he needs to keep improving and he will be a great one."

Hungalu had the advantage of learning under players such as Michael Doctor, Jabral Johnson and D. J. Alexander when he first arrived at OSU.

They gave him a player's perspective on how to play at the Division I level. It was during this time that Hungalu began intensive film study.

"Just hours and hours of study of film," he said. "It helps me and it helps everybody else be a step faster and know what's expected and know what's coming out to us on offense."

After the UCLA game, Hungalu said watching film enabled him to make the right read to make the interception in the end zone.

"It's a lot of fun, especially when you make plays like that. Not only the amount of attention you get, but it's just fun just to make plays and be there for your teammates. It's just proof that a lot of studying does help play," Hungalu said.

"The more you study, the more you know what they're coming out in and it's fun to be a step faster than they are."

The Civil War game on Saturday will end the season for the Beavers.

Hungalu will get right back into offseason mode. He wants to get bigger, stronger and smarter.

"Especially this offseason, my goal is to be at 240, less than 10 percent body fat," Hungalu said. "Also just a super-smart player. I'm willing to put all the time in on the tape just to be a smarter football player. That's my goal."

Irvine gets in the mix at cornerback

Jay Irvine got his first significant playing time at cornerback for Oregon State last weekend against Boise State.

With Dwayne Williams banged up, the Beavers need depth at the position and Irvine was called on.

Irvine, a redshirt freshman, had three solo tackles in the game.

"He's stepping up, he's doing what we're asking him to do," OSU cornerbacks coach Cory Hall said. "Now he's just got to understand. That was his first NCAA football game from high school. Now the speed is different, the level of talent is different and so he's stepping up to the challenge.

"He was focused. He was keyed in once he got the nod that he was going to be playing. So now it's just about developing him mentally and understanding the transitions and nuances of the game."

At 6-foot-1, 199 pounds, Irvine has size and the physical tools that are sought after for cornerback.

"I always say, physically he's what you want," Hall said. "Now he's got to work on the mental aspect of it because physically he can play with anybody."

Boise State helped Irvine get ready for Colorado and the rest of the Pac-12 schedule.

He got his first test and now he came move forward.

"Now you see that the game moves fast and sometimes offenses do a lot of different things," Hall said. "They rotate a lot of receivers and they'll put a group of receivers in there and they'll run those corners off and bring a new set of receivers in and then the real routes occur. That's just what you've got to understand. That's college football."

Drew Kell working on switch to safety

By Kevin Hampton
Corvallis Gazette-Times

March 7, 2017

It's been a year since Drew Kell made the switch from receiver to safety.

This spring has been a perfect time for Kell to hone his defensive skills along with preparing for his multifaceted special teams role during the season.

Kell, a junior from Crescent Valley High, still has plenty to learn.

"I kind of rushed through it," Kell said of the initial transition to safety. "I didn't really learn the technique as I was switching over to the defensive side, trying to learn all the schemes and whatnot, so technique is import right now and every day trying to get better at that."

Safeties coach John Rushing said Kell is improving every day.

"Learning the techniques to play in the secondary, especially safety, a lot of footwork, a lot of attention to detail," Rushing said. "Especially for him, his vision has to change so much as far as playing in the back end. And just trying to hone in on those things, making sure his eyes are right and his feet are right and he's where he needs to be. Those are things that I'm working with him on and he's getting better at them every practice."

Rushing said Kell's background at receiver has been a help on the other side of the ball.

But it also meant he had to learn to move his body in opposite ways now that he's a safety.

"Especially from a game plan and a schematic standpoint, he knows what they want out of certain route combinations and things like that or how certain receivers run routes, some of the tell signs here and there," Rushing said. "But it's also thinking backwards. It's like now starting to write with your left hand versus your right hand. He's doing everything from a backwards standpoint as far as some of his learning, some of his footwork. That part of it can be a little difficult at the beginning, but he's starting to pick it up and starting to make some strides."

Kell enjoyed his time on special teams during the fall.

He plays on both return teams along with kickoff and punt. He had 13 total tackles in 12 games.

"It feels the same as if I was on the defensive side of the ball," he said. "You get to start every game, so it's fun. Nice to play in front of the crowd and get back into competitive football. I hadn't played it in a while, so it was good to be out there."

Kell gets plenty of work on special teams during the spring practices in addition to position workouts.

"At this point, football is football. Wherever I can play, help the team, let's do it," Kell said. "I like special teams, mostly because it's all effort. It's just the guys that go down there don't have fear."

Kell's brother, former Oregon State defensive end Devon Kell, lives in Portland and gets down to Corvallis to watch games on occasion.

He was on hand to watch Drew and the Beavers during the scrimmage on Saturday.

"It was good. He drove from Portland and it meant a lot for him to come out of his way," Drew Kell said. "It's nice to see him support because I was doing the same thing when he was playing here, just trying to watch him and learn from him."

Fred Lauina (64) is the Beavers' most experienced offensive lineman with 20 career starts to his credit, all at guard. In the spring, OSU's lone senior lineman spent time at both guard and tackle.

Fred Lauina ready to step back in on offensive line

By Gina Mizell
The Oregonian

November 9, 2016

CORVALLIS -- Oregon State's thin offensive line depth took another hit against Stanford, when starting left guard Gus Lavaka went down with a knee injury.

But stepping back into a familiar role is Fred Lauina, a multi-season starter whom Lavaka originally replaced after Lauina hurt his ankle against Colorado on Oct. 1 and kept the job even after Lauina returned to health. And after a month primarily spent on the sideline, Lauina has new perspective.

"Seeing somebody else doing what I can do," Lauina said, "(I realized), 'Maybe I did this wrong and I can just get better.' It's good to be back with the boys and to try to just get a win this weekend."

Lauina originally ascended into the starting role at left guard as a redshirt freshman in 2014 and kept that spot last season. When OSU reshuffled its offensive line before Pac-12 play began this season, Lauina was the only player who stayed in his original position. But on a first-quarter play against Colorado, a Buffalo defender fell on Lauina's leg as he pulled around to block.

"I thought it was broken," Lauina said.

By the Utah game two weeks later, Lauina said he felt good enough to play. But while the Lavaka remained the starter, Lauina studied film and live play from the sideline, focusing on details like first step, hand placement and aiming points when striking a defensive lineman. Each time Lavaka came off the field, Lauina would talk him through the previous series.

Lauina now hates that he's watched Lavaka sustain his own injury. But that brings the opportunity to step back into a familiar starting role against a UCLA team that ranks eighth in the Pac-12 in rushing defense (169.78 yards allowed per game) and sixth in sacks with 22.

"I'm trying my best not to get hurt and fighting through the pain," Lauina said. "I'm ready. I've been ready."

Gus Lavaka (63) made seven starts at left guard earning Freshman All-America honors from multiple outlets as a true freshman in 2016. Lavaka was a key cog on an offensive line that helped set a school rushing record with 5.2 yards per carry.

Freshman Gus Lavaka steps into duty on Oregon State's offensive line

By Gina Mizell
The Oregonian

October 5, 2016

CORVALLIS — For two years, Gus Lavaka walked daily from hut to hut in Tonga, sharing the LDS church's message as a missionary.

He said his experience was much like "The Other Side of Heaven," the 2001 film starring Christopher Gorham and Anne Hathaway. Lavaka often saw people sleeping on the street. He lost about 50 pounds, because sometimes he did not have much to eat. After growing up in a family of 11, he learned how to be independent.

So to say the 22-year-old Oregon State freshman offensive lineman has perspective is an understatement. Yet when Lavaka watched from the sideline teammate Fred Lauina go down early in the Beavers' contest at Colorado, he acknowledged he started "trembling." When Lavaka took Lauina's place and lined up for his first snap on the offensive line, teammates had to remind of him of the play call.

With each snap, however, Lavaka felt more comfortable. And with Lauina's status for Saturday's matchup against California uncertain, Lavaka is now preparing to start at left guard for the Beavers' new-look offensive line.

"I was pleased with his physicality and the way he stepped in," position coach and co-offensive coordinator T.J. Woods said. "I don't think you noticed that he was in there, which to me that's the goal. That's the next-man-up mentality really that we've had for all year with our injuries and things."

Lavaka originally signed with Hawaii out of Kearns (Utah) High School in 2012, before going on his mission. When he returned, he got in touch with former OSU line-backers coach Ilaisa Tuiaki, who had been his high-school rugby coach.

Following a visit to Corvallis, Lavaka thought he would be a good fit on the Beavers' defensive line. But a few days after OSU's December announcement that Lavaka would be enrolling early, Tuiaki left Corvallis to become the defensive coordinator under Kalani Sitake at BYU.

Lavaka acknowledged he thought about changing course, before a chat with Woods about his vision for Lavaka on the offensive line "really changed my mindset."

So Lavaka arrived on campus for spring practice, where his biggest task was to trim weight off his 6-foot-4, 370-pound frame. With the help of team dietician Stasi Kasianchuk, Lavaka began filling his plate with eggs, broccoli and meats to drop 30 pounds.

Soon enough, Lavaka felt faster and less fatigued. He began moving up the depth chart, primarily working as the second-team right guard.

But Lauina's injury forced Lavaka into the left side, where he needed to flip technique like footwork and hand placement. Veteran teammates like left tackle Sean Harlow helped Lavaka with his assignments from play to play. When Lavaka returned to the sideline, he got tips from Lauina, his roommate on road trips.

Despite his age, Lavaka knows he's still a youngster when it comes to his knowledge of the Beavers' system and sometimes gets self-conscious that he'll make a mistake when new plays are added. He also still hopes to drop his weight to between 310 and 320 pounds, a goal he should reach with another year in OSU's offseason program.

But the Beavers need Lavaka now, as he was working with both the first and second units during Tuesday's practice. Preparing to start Saturday should be manageable compared to his two years in Tonga — or to being thrust into his first extensive collegiate game action last week.

Take one play from that outing that showcased Lavaka's potential, causing a "holy cow" reaction from coach Gary Andersen. Early in the second quarter, Lavaka got locked up with a defender and drove him to his left, creating the crease that sprung freshman running back Art Pierce for a 17-yard gain.

"I expect Gus to be a very good player for us for a number of years," Andersen said. "This was Step 1. When he was needed, he stepped in there and held his own."

Marcus McMaryion gets opportunity to settle in with Oregon State starters

By Gina Mizell
The Oregonian

October 26, 2016

CORVALLIS - After further review, Marcus McMaryion's performance against Washington was not as bad as he had self-critiqued in the minutes following the contest.

Even better news for the Oregon State quarterback? He gets to apply that film study to another week of practice and another Saturday in the same role. For the first time in his career, McMaryion is settling in with the first-team offense as he prepares to start his second game in a row when the Beavers host Washington State Saturday night.

"It's more of a confidence booster than anything, just knowing that the position's mine," McMaryion said following Tuesday's practice. "It's mine to lose, basically. So I can go out there and just play to the best performance (I can give) and just have confidence in myself and the guys around me."

McMaryion, who went 12 of 26 for 148 yards, zero touchdowns and two interceptions against the fourth-ranked Huskies, has actually been on the Beavers' roster the longest of any quarterback. But he's journeyed up and down the depth chart throughout his career, including two stints as the third-stringer and a start in the 2015 Civil War to close the season.

In that spot duty before Saturday, McMaryion had completed 42 percent of his passes for 479 yards, two touchdowns and three interceptions in nine career games. When Darell Garretson (ankle) and Conor Blount (knee) both went down with injuries against No. 17 Utah, McMaryion got forced into action late but has since received the vast majority of the practice reps with the starters.

Beavers teammates and coaches have continued to praise the "Steady Eddie" mentality of McMaryion, who is clearly already well-liked within the program. And with every snap over the past two weeks, McMaryion feels he's building stronger on-field chemistry with his receivers.

"There's a lot of routes that I'm kind of throwing blind to some of them, just completely timing routes," McMaryion said. "To get that timing down with some of those guys, it's great. It just feels really good."

Kevin McGiven, OSU's co-offensive coordinator and quarterbacks coach, also frankly assessed McMaryion's outing in Seattle, noting missed throws or reads that "had nothing to do with Washington" but rather resulted from McMaryion double-clutching or second-guessing his decision-making because "he didn't quite trust himself and what he was seeing."

Yet coaches have also continued to stress ways the rest of the offense can help its signal-caller.

McGiven revealed that the new-look offensive line is still limited in the pass protections it can execute, which then impacts the number of pass-catchers the Beavers can send into routes on a given snap. The receivers can also "finish on the ball better," position coach Brent Brennan said, to prevent the handful of drops that have plagued the Beavers over the last couple games.

"When we get the right things and connect the dots the correct way, it's important that we put the last piece in there and make a play for (Marcus)," coach Gary Andersen added. "I think that's imperative for our offense to accept that responsibility."

"Is it always gonna happen? No. But it needs to happen more than it happened in that last game to give us an opportunity to continue down the field in those critical moments."

An example of McMaryion nit-picking his performance in Seattle? A first-down pass zipped to Timmy Hernandez on third-and-14 to keep an early drive rolling. McMaryion believed he should have put more air under the ball.

But the good news for the quarterback? For the first time in his career, McMaryion gets to do it all over again Saturday against the Cougars in his second consecutive start.

"I just really beat myself up on the ones I did miss," he said. "But there's a lot of stuff to build off of to go into this week."

Karl Maasdam

Marcus McMaryion (3) threw for a career-best 327 yards against Washington State in 2016. He added a five passing touchdown (tying for the second-most in a single game in OSU history) performance in a win against Arizona and led the Beavers to back-to-back wins to end the season.

Oregon State safety Jalen Moore says game slowing down after 10-tackle performance

By Danny Moran
The Oregonian

November 2, 2016

CORVALLIS - During his weekly news conference on Monday, Oregon State head coach Gary Andersen struggled to remember the name of Washington State receiver River Cracraft.

All he knew was that he hoped to never coach against him again.

"He's a baller," Andersen said. "I hope he's a senior."

Cracraft had four catches for 54 yards in a 35-31 win over OSU on Saturday, including acrobatic grabs that helped the Cougars come back from 21-0 deficit. But he also was at the business end of one of the night's biggest hits, courtesy of redshirt freshman safety Jalen Moore.

Moore leveled Cracraft in the second quarter to force a fumble in OSU territory, the first turnover the Beavers earned in four weeks. It was the signature play for the redshirt freshman on a day he made a team-high 10 tackles in only his second career start.

"I thought he was ready for the moment," Andersen said.

The highlight was the biggest moment to date for the player who until recently had struggled to find his way onto the field, even for an injury-depleted secondary.

Moore was part of a talented group of redshirt players in the secondary last year, one that included the likes of cornerbacks Xavier Crawford and Jay Irvine. But as Crawford and Irvine stood out in fall camp, Moore failed to establish himself behind clear-cut starters.

The learning curve for Moore is understandable. He spent his final three years of high school playing outside linebacker, first in Denver and then his senior year in Upland, California, 30 miles northeast of Anaheim. The recruiting process was slow for the hard-hitter, as Oregon State arrived with a scholarship when his only prior offers came from Alcorn State and South Dakota State.

This year, a rare on-field opportunity for Moore at the end of a blowout win over Idaho State ended prematurely when officials ejected him for targeting.

After injuries to Irvine and fellow corner Dwayne Williams forced safety and team captain Devin Chappell to move to nickelback, leaving a void alongside junior Brandon Arnold, the staff bypassed Moore for that role. Instead they started senior Kendall Hill, who had converted from cornerback to safety in the offseason. Safeties coach Derrick Odum said Hill's leadership and knowledge of the defense were factors.

"There's a lot on their plate as far as understanding the scheme," Odum said two weeks ago. "The younger guys just trying to learn it, they're a little nervous about getting on the field. They don't grasp it all the way."

But Moore's progression soon picked up. He started with Hill against Washington on Oct. 22 when an ankle injury slowed Arnold. And with Arnold back in the starting lineup last Saturday, the staff paired him with Moore, who said the game has started to slow down.

"It's reminding me of high school games," Moore said. "I got confidence that I can go out and play. I feel like I'm just as good as any of those guys we're playing against or better."

While his command of the defensive scheme has improved, Moore acknowledged areas where he could still be better. There were blown opportunities Saturday, most notably a missed tackle in the red zone when Washington State running back James Williams put on a spin move clinic during the Cougars' game-winning drive.

Williams (knee) will be out Saturday at Stanford for the fourth game in a row and Irvine (shoulder) is done for the year. While injuries have the Oregon State secondary thin, it's provided a chance for Moore to prove his development.

"There's more work to do," Moore said. "I can't have one good game and have a bad game. I have to stay consistent."

CORVALLIS - As Ryan Nall streaked past Oregon defensive backs before a stunned Autzen Stadium crowd on a brisk November afternoon, few people knew what his mad dash to the end zone meant for his football career.

In the waning days before Nall played in his first Civil War game, Oregon State head coach Gary Andersen called him into his office at the Valley Football Center. The topic of conversation was not the rivalry game at hand, nor the Beavers' arduous two-win season.

Andersen took a break from game prep to talk about the future.

If Nall was on board after the season-ending game, he said, the remainder of the running back's college career would be on defense. He would become an outside linebacker, a position where Andersen believed Nall could project down the road as an NFL prospect.

Nall called his parents to break the news. As far as the coaching staff was concerned, it was a done deal.

"We were fired up about that," outside linebackers coach Chad Kauha'aha'a said. As defensive coaches rejoiced, running backs coach Telly Lockette had a different vantage point. The move would have taken away the player who emerged one month earlier as his No. 1 backfield option.

So during a meeting that week, he pulled Nall aside and delivered a blunt message.

Show them why you should be a running back.

Nineteen carries and 174 yards later, including his memorable 66-yard fourth quarter sprint, he had found his position. He wasn't moving anywhere.

Now in his sophomore season as a beacon of hope for a program in the midst of a steep rebuild, it can still be difficult to process just how close the "Wrecking Nall" came to never getting in the Beavers' backfield, or even to an FBS program at all.

Nall has yet to resist whenever a position change has been suggested.

Those close to him say he has always been able to put the team first, an adaptable mindset shown since childhood.

From kindergarten through high school, the Nalls commuted from their home nine miles east of downtown Sandy and near the base of Mount Hood to Portland for the children's Catholic school and their mother's job in the city. It started in a purple Honda Odyssey, when Teri put Jacob and Ryan in the backseat, plugged in a portable 10-inch television with a built-in VHS player to the car's cigarette lighter and departed on a pair of 45-minute drives to and from the St. Therese School.

Meals and homework happened in the back seat as the boys got older. Ping-ponging back and forth between home and the city was a natural part of Nall's life. He played little league baseball back in Sandy, meaning after school there was no time to think of much other than whether he had all his gear.

"We were never late," Teri Nall said. "You're there when I get you there and you're ready to play. You accept what's going on. There was no room for 'I don't really want to be here.'"

Nall's attitude was relaxed, even among his siblings. When his older brother would pick on him to start a fight, the younger Nall balked.

"He was always so chill that he would never want to fight back or do anything," Jacob Nall said.

The family noted a natural athletic ability from the moment a 4-year-old Ryan could do backflips on the backyard trampoline. By the time the brothers were in middle school, Jacob acknowledged that his brother — two years younger — could keep pace with him in footraces. His speed and athleticism, merged with size, made him a force in CYD football, where his chase-downs resulted in at least one opponent breaking a collarbone.

Ryan followed Jacob to Southeast Portland's Central Catholic High School, sharing a lengthy commute to the 6A school for two years with sights set on playing college football. The travel was a challenge, yet the brothers had each other. The payoff came on weekends back home, when the two could jump in the brisk water of the Sandy River behind the chain-link fence in their backyard that served as a pseudo-ice bath after Friday night games.

The drive got to Nall once his older brother graduated and he was tasked with going alone for two years.

At the latest, he would need to leave by 6:45 a.m. and not return until after 7 p.m. There were times when he would stay in Portland at a friend's house, easing the ability to arrive for 5:30 a.m. weightlifting sessions.

But more often than not as Nall took steps toward the next level, it was him alone for two hours a day, bobbing his head to the hip-hop or reggae pumping in his Honda Accord. When the commute would eat at him, he thought about what the sacrifice could mean for his future — better exposure for a shot at a Division I scholarship.

"I don't know how he did it," Central Catholic assistant coach and former NFL safety Anthony Newman said.

It took the loss of Jacob Nall for their high school coach to realize the potential Ryan Nall had.

The Nall brothers overlapped on varsity for one season at Central Catholic. Jacob was on the defensive line and a smaller Ryan played behind him at linebacker. Late in the 2011 season, the senior injured his hamstring and head coach Steve Pyne moved the younger Nall into his place. The sophomore thrived at the new position against upperclassmen.

In the following years, the Rams used him at both linebacker spots, defensive line, running back, tight end and even some H-back. Nall even served as the long snapper for extra points and punts. He declined to run track, but in workouts won 40-yard dashes against teammate Cameron Scarlett, now a Stanford running back who was the state's top high school recruit the year after Nall graduated.

His first "Power Five" offer came from Oregon State the summer before his senior year following a camp in Corvallis.

"I thought at this point in time, things are going to get crazy for Ryan," Pyne said.

The whirlwind did not start.

In the midst of a visit from Oregon head coach Mark Helfrich, Pyne inquired directly about when the Ducks planned to offer the senior a scholarship. But an offer never arrived from Eugene or any other Pac-12 school after Oregon State. Had Mike Riley and OSU not come calling, Nall said he would have joined his brother at Portland State.

Aside from his on-field work at Central Catholic, Nall minimally attended recruiting camps. However, Pyne and Nall himself both theorized Nall's versatility in high school may have hindered his recruitment. The coach fielded inquiries from recruiters and said questions about Nall often came back to the same topic: Where do we play him?

"My answer was always 'yes,'" Pyne said. "He'll be whatever you need him to be and he'll be the best at it."

Nall committed to Oregon State not long after the offer and went on to win 6A offensive player of the year and first team all-defense honors on an undefeated team that won its first state title in 60 years.

Among the highlights during the Rams' run to a championship was the night Nall and Scarlett traded carries and combined for 676 rushing yards and nine touchdowns while putting up 83 points against previously unbeaten Tigard in the 6A semi-finals. Nall's scores were from 29, 67, 79 and 96 yards out.

Once when Jacob and Ryan were in middle school, they had a BB gun war in their backyard while both parents were away. Hiding behind the cottonwood tree in the yard, Nall sprung out more quickly than expected while his older brother aimed for the tree - and missed.

The result was a BB lodged above Ryan's upper lip (a scar is still visible today). His father darted home to take him to the hospital and recalled how unruffled Ryan was.

"I didn't see any tears at all," Fred Nall said.

During Nall's senior year as Central Catholic protected its lead and ran out the clock in the state title game, he fumbled while fighting for a first down. Pyne thought he would need to console the two-way star whose error kept the championship from being cemented. Instead, Nall shrugged, credited the defense with a good play and told his coach it was time to go get the ball back.

"Nothing fazes the kid," Pyne said.

Of all the traits Nall brought to OSU, his consistently calm nature may have been the most important given the positional odyssey he would soon travel.

While enthusiasm about Nall did not spread around the Pac-12, his two head coaches at Oregon State have gone out of their way to praise him in Corvallis. The excitement has been there, but the question about what to do with him remained.

Riley acknowledged during Nall's first fall camp that the biggest issue around the Oregon native was where to play him. He arrived as an H-back, shifted between that spot and the backfield throughout his redshirt year, bulked up to as much as 257 pounds under a new staff after Riley left for Nebraska and then returned to running back as injuries piled up in the first and second strings.

"If we hadn't been that banged up, we probably would have missed out on him," Lockette said. "It was a chance thing."

Reflecting one year later in fall camp, Andersen granted he was initially "confused" about the right place fit for Nall, who was not on the Beavers' depth chart to start the 2015 season. The freshman had 19 carries through the first five weeks of the year, then broke out in a loss to Colorado with 20 rushes for 122 yards and a touchdown. Andersen spent nearly a minute of a dejected postgame news conference highlighting the freshman's innate toughness.

"You get you 30 or 40 of those kids, you'll be rolling," he said.

But Nall did not register a carry the following week and missed one of the next three games with a concussion before the meeting about moving to linebacker took place.

In the midst of a frantic comeback attempt against the Ducks, all confusion dissipated. Nall finished with more rushing yards than UD star running back Royce Freeman and returned to his phone in the locker room crammed with texts featuring a common theme: I didn't know you were that fast.

"I think everybody was stunned," Nall said. "I just needed a chance to get out there and go."

Two things have changed for Nall since his Civil War performance: his figure and his spotlight.

He trimmed down to 235 pounds in the offseason, fully aware of his role for the first time. Andersen said the focus has given him a full year to understand run schemes, pass protection and routes out of the backfield to make him a versatile threat.

The bruising back with deceptive speed has also become a much sought-after interview after finishing with 6.2 yards per carry as a freshman. Friends of Fred Nall at Mountain View Golf Course bring up his son's radio and television appearances daily. Working a summer job at Safeway in Portland, unknown customers have caught Jacob Nall's eye to ask, "Don't you have a brother at Oregon State?"

The Beavers have lost 21 of their last 23 Pac-12 games dating to 2013, including the last 11 in a row. The media picked them to finish last in the conference for the second consecutive year. But the performance that let Nall keep his spot gave the fan base an outlet for optimism amid a climb from the depths of the league. The sample size has been small yet spectacular, his emergence a rare bright spot amid a grim season.

Now settled on his position at a school with a deep history of running backs, Nall will have three years to be part of the solution and add his name to that list of greats.

"He's trying to be the glue that holds it together in tough times," Pyne said. "Some people just have that unique quality."

Ryan Nall and Oregon State not satisfied with eclipsing Oregon in Pac-12

By Ted Miller
ESPN.com

February 15, 2017

When Oregon State running back Ryan Nall, perhaps the most underrated player in all of FBS football, is asked about the "Wrecking Nall" play on the Miley Cyrus song that evokes cheers in Reser Stadium, he provides a chill answer.

"It's a Corvallis thing," he said. "I kind of roll with it."

The 6-foot-2, 235-pound Nall might find himself rolling into the national consciousness in 2017, as he and the Beavers eye a Pac-12 resurrection after three consecutive losing seasons.

The Beavers closed out the 2016 campaign with wins over Arizona and Oregon, their first back-to-back conference victories since 2013. The 34-24 win over the Ducks ended an eight-game losing streak in the rivalry series, and it's not too difficult to draw a loose parallel to a 44-41 Civil War triumph in Corvallis in 1998, a program-changing moment for the Beavers, who would end a streak of 28 consecutive losing seasons the next year.

No player embodies that potential transformation more than Nall, a rising junior who's rushed for 329 yards and five touchdowns in the past two Civil Wars. He's tough, understated and more physically gifted than perhaps some expect at first glance -- which in some ways is why he started out at tight end and was about to move to outside linebacker before he broke out as a runner against the Ducks in 2015.

Battling a foot injury much of the 2016 season, he nonetheless ranked third in the conference with 95.1 yards rushing per game, and his 13 touchdowns tied for second. His 6.5 yards per carry ranked second among runners with at least 130 carries. He's also a capable receiver, see 22 receptions for 214 yards with two more scores.

Moreover, he's perhaps the Pac-12's most dangerous breakaway threat, at least if actual breakaway runs is our measure. Despite playing in just 10 games, he tied for first in the Pac-12 with four runs of 50 or more yards and he was the only conference back with two runs over 80 yards.

"I'm faster than I look," he said. "I had a few instances this year when I was able to show it. I'm deceptively fast."

The Beavers improvement from 0-9 in conference play in coach Gary Andersen's first season to 3-6 last year also is deceptively substantial. In 2015, Oregon State owned an 18-point average deficit. In 2016, that number was down to 4.3.

When asked what changed from Year 1 to Year 2, Nall goes through the usual laundry list of explanations, such as knowing Andersen and his staff better, burgeoning confidence within the team, young players growing up and an improved work ethic. But his boredom with the redundant question speaks more to the upbeat and forward-looking mood in the locker room as the Beavers get ready to begin spring practices on Feb. 17.

"It's hard to describe how we all came together -- we all just bought in," Nall said. "There's still more to come. That's what I'm excited for the most. Last year was not what we wanted. Yeah, it was good we got some Pac-12 wins and we beat Oregon but we wanted to make a bowl game. The expectation this year is no less than a bowl game."

Nall and promising backup Artavis Pierce, a sophomore, provide stability in a backfield that is uncertain at quarterback. While the Beavers welcome back a pair of quarterbacks with starting experience in Darell Garretson and Marcus McMarilyon, they will face a legitimate challenge this spring from JC transfer Jake Luton.

The Beavers were the worst passing team in the conference last year. If they become only mediocre throwing the ball, thereby giving the offense some balance, and with plenty of talent returning on defense, that bowl game should be in sight. Perhaps more.

Eclipsing the Ducks in the North Division was unexpected and satisfying. Nall hails from Sandy, Oregon, knows the recent, one-sided history of the rivalry and wasn't offered a scholarship by Oregon.

But the "Wrecking Nall" wants more.

"It's been pretty brutal for the Beavs' the past [eight] years," Nall said. "So there's a chip on our shoulder."

Napoleon moving forward in learning process

By Kevin Hampton
Corvallis Gazette-Times

October 19, 2016

Everything was a little confusing for Phillip Napoleon when he started learning the ins and outs of playing defensive end for Oregon State.

There was plenty of homework for Napoleon when he arrived from Mt. San Jacinto College before spring practice at OSU.

It took some time, but Napoleon has got up to speed enough to be able to get significant playing time for the Beavers and has moved into the starting spot in the three-down scheme.

"It definitely took a lot of practice and repetition. It took a lot of time outside of football to actually be able to understand the plays that we run and the scheme," Napoleon said. "So I would have to say the total amount of time I put together, I took a while for me to actually get on the field like that."

He learned how to watch film with a critical eye and started soaking in the knowledge from those sessions.

"We go over that as a team, so I appreciate it and I pick up cues on what to look for now. So that's definitely helped me," he said. "But it definitely takes a lot more time than you spend here. You have to do extra time if you want to be successful, because that's what the opponents are doing. They're watching film on their own time about me, so it's whoever's more prepared."

Napoleon had four total tackles against Utah and has 15 for the season with two quarterback hurries.

All his statistics have come since the Minnesota game.

Napoleon spent nearly the entire game against the Golden Gophers watching from the sideline. It was not an enjoyable experience.

"My family is watching me, they're proud of me and here I am just standing on the sideline," Napoleon said. "It was kind of embarrassing."

The Beavers then went into a bye week and it was during that time that Napoleon said something in him snapped.

The game started to click. He started to practice at a quicker pace.

"Once I was practicing faster and was just making plays, and so you transfer the way you practice over to the way you play on game day and it's been helping me out a lot," he said.

"So definitely that bye week was a big eye-opener for me. I think what it is, is just practice fast and you practice fast, you play fast. You play fast and you make plays."

Artavis Pierce pushing envelope at Oregon State for playing time as true freshman

By Danny Moran
The Oregonian

September 29, 2016

CORVALLIS -- Before Artavis Pierce reached high school, his father Arthur recalls a youth game in which the running back was twisted down to the ground by two defenders.

One went low, the other went high and his son ended up with a fracture in both his right tibia and fibula just above his ankle. It was not long before a wheelchair-bound Pierce was trying to play basketball in the family driveway. By Thanksgiving, he was back on the football field for an all-star game.

"He always pushed the envelope," Arthur Pierce said.

In his freshman season at Oregon State, Pierce is healthy but pushing ahead of schedule once again.

The dominant headline for the Beavers out of the weekend was that Conor Blount, a walk-on freshman quarterback, entered the game against Boise State in the second half to the surprise of his teammates on the sideline. But lining up next to Blount was Pierce, who also had been in Corvallis only since the summer and whose rise up the roster has given OSU (1-2) greater backfield depth and versatility as the offense searches for its identity.

At 5-foot-11 and 201 pounds, the speedy Pierce has found a small, yet significant role at running back as a complement to the bigger, powerful starter Ryan Nall. For a position depleted by graduation, medical retirements, dismissal and a position change, his ability to quickly absorb the playbook following his fall camp arrival has made an impact.

Three games into the 2016 season, the Beavers' offense is a work in progress. Injuries at quarterback and on the offensive line have led to challenges in the running and passing game, as OSU ranks last in the Pac-12 in total offense (340.7 yards per game) and, per ESPN, offensive efficiency.

Yet Pierce's development is a rare bright spot. He had seven carries for 46 yards Saturday and tallied three first downs, one of which came on his lone reception. His 4.6 yards per carry overall (18 carries for 83 yards) leads the OSU running back corps (Nall is averaging 4.4) and is threatening to get him more playing time.

"He's nipping at Ryan Nall's heels a little bit," running backs coach Telly Lockette said.

In one sense, Pierce's workload is not a complete surprise. Coach Gary Andersen noted that skill position players generally have the best opportunity to play early in their college careers. The Beavers were thin at running back behind Nall after spring practice, which created a void for the freshman to fill.

However, the ascension has caught the quiet, laid-back, former two-star recruit a bit off guard.

"I was surprised that I picked up the playbook this quick," Pierce said. "It was hard. But now it's not that hard no more. I'm still learning blocking schemes, but I'm coming on quick."

Pierce is the oldest of three children from Lake Alfred, Florida, a town of more than 5,000 people in the center of the state, roughly midway between Tampa and Orlando. Tampa is where Lockette, known for his recruiting prowess in Florida, was when he first became aware of Pierce while serving as the running backs coach at South Florida. When Lockette came to OSU to join Andersen's staff after the 2014 season, he kept Pierce's name with him.

"The burst and the movements and shiftiness of the kid was mind-boggling to us as a staff," Lockette said.

When OSU made its offer, Pierce held offers from two schools: South Alabama of the Sun Belt Conference and Alabama State, a historically black college in the Football Championship Subdivision. Pierce knew little of Oregon State when coaches first reached out, beyond the highlight videos he watched featuring former Beavers wide receiver Brandin Cooks.

Buoyed by a desire to play out of state, Pierce committed in May before his senior season when more interest picked up. He was told he would have a chance to contribute if he could quickly learn the offense. But before Pierce departed for Corvallis, his father said he emphasized to his son that he might have to redshirt. Arthur Pierce had seen local players go off to schools expecting playing time, only to get frustrated when it didn't come and then transfer.

"I was just trying to see what his mindset was and was going to stick in there and fight all the way through either way it went," Arthur Pierce said. "I just always had a good feeling he would finish whatever he started."

The pace of camp was initially a challenge for the newcomer. The playbook was dense and the workouts were intense. Pierce's mind swirled on the second day of play installation and he struggled to finish running drills.

Despite the early challenges Pierce faced, he clearly impressed the staff early on. Three days into fall camp in Bend, he became the first player to lose his helmet stripe, an honor symbolizing that a newcomer has proven himself. Coaches assigned Nall as Pierce's "big brother" for the camp and the two regularly met in the dorm to go over the offense.

"For some of the guys that have been here, they still don't necessarily have the playbook down yet," Nall said. "Coming in as a freshman, he picked it up pretty well, which is impressive."

Andersen said the staff came out its first week of fall camp in Bend feeling good about Pierce's grasp of the offense. Coaches said his blocking, which was not a focus in high school, has improved and stood out against Boise State.

Back in Lake Alfred on Saturday, Pierce's parents watched with surprise in the second half when seeing their son was still in the game. It brought his mother, Delores, back to a conversation Lockette had with her son during a visit. If you don't get in the playbook, he said, you'll be watching my back on the bench.

"That's what we were expecting," she said. "In Artavis' mind, he wasn't going to sit on the bench."

Nick Porebski wants to live up to the spotlight

By Kevin Hampton
Corvallis Gazette-Times

August 20, 2016

Nick Porebski got a surprising call from Oregon State coach Gary Andersen earlier this summer.

Andersen wanted Porebski to join him for the yearly trip to Pac-12 football media days along with receiver Victor Bolden.

At first, Porebski was hesitant. As a punter, he wasn't used to a lot of media attention, much less in the spotlight of the media days. And he got his start with football just a few years ago after playing Australian rules football in his homeland of Australia.

"But at the same time I thought what a good opportunity it was to go down to Hollywood and represent OSU football," Porebski said. "And be a punter, too, and represent for specialists was also a pretty nice thing to do, too."

Porebski was taken aback that he was asked but realized that the coaches had enough faith in him as a player to make the request.

"It was a big surprise and definitely a big confidence booster for me on the field, knowing that the coaches see me like that type of person that can represent OSU in media day," Porebski said.

When the three were at the event, Andersen was asked about bringing Porebski.

Andersen said he expects Porebski to be an elite punter and that he brings a big personality.

"Nick deserves to be here, absolutely. And I think you earn your way to media day, if you will, and I think he did that a year ago. And the way he's grown, the way he's developed his body, himself, his love for the game as he's gone through time with us has been impressive.

"You know, I looked at it and I expect him to be a great football player at his position. So it was natural to bring a kid that I think will be great and he expects to be great."

Others have high expectations of Porebski as well. He has been picked as a pre-season all-Pac-12 player by the San Jose Mercury News' Jon Wilner and second team by Athlon.

That could put a lot of extra pressure on some punters, but Porebski takes it in stride.

"I don't really like to think about that too much," he said. "I'm just going out there and kicking the footie and doing my job, putting my team in the best position I can. As long as I'm punting to the best of my ability, preseason stuff, that doesn't mean too much. It's what you do on the field in the season."

Porebski learned how to punt for American football at ProKick Australia, an academy that teaches those skills.

He wound up at Snow College in Utah, where he averaged 45.4 yards a punt and showed a high level of accuracy in placing the ball inside the opponent's 20.

That caught the eye of Oregon State recruiters and Porebski found his way to Corvallis after one season of JC ball.

Last season he averaged 41.1 yards on 72 punts and had 26 inside the 20.

Porebski focused on rugby-style punting last year for the Beavers but said he's going to mix in some pro style this season.

"Obviously more rugby punting because that is my strength and what I grew up doing is kicking rugby style," he said. "I only kicked pro style at my junior college my first year, I played a whole season kicking pro style and I averaged a higher average than I did here, so it is a weapon, especially when we're back a bit further and I get a bit more distance and hang time on it."

Rugby-style punting allows for better placement of the ball, and that's why Porebski has been so adept at pinning the opponents inside the 20 or deeper.

"It's a very accurate kick. In Australian rules football our job is pretty much quarterback with our foot, so we have to be able to kick that ball so accurately without the defender spoiling it," he said. "So transitioning that over to American football is definitely an advantage for a lot of colleges. There's at least 40 colleges now that have Australian punters just because it is so accurate and so consistent and you can still get decent distance on it."

Porebski has been putting even more work on directional kicking and placing the ball out of bounds before it reaches the goal line.

He's also working on the traditional two-step spiral.

"I've been working a lot on that, too, because I can kick both styles and so that's two of the big things I've been working on in the offseason," he said.

If Porebski masters those aspects of punting, he will have the potential as an extremely consistent punter.

That's what makes the top punters stand out.

"Definitely it's all about consistency. Sometimes you have a couple bad punts here and there, which is always going to happen as a specialist. But being able to string together a continuous amount of games being able to kick the ball well and just making the right decisions," he said.

"The best way to handle it is Just relax and just do what you do because you've been doing it for years."

Freshman linebackers Kee Whetzel, Hamilcar Rashed getting key reps this spring

By Gina Mizell
The Oregonian

February 28, 2017

CORVALLIS -- Bright Ugwoegbu took his spot next to defensive coordinator Kevin Clune, holding a play card while his Oregon State teammates ran through another 11-on-11 session without him.

It's all Ugwoegbu can do right now, as the junior starting outside linebacker continues to recover from a leg injury that forced him to miss the stretch run of the 2016 season. Ditto for Joah Robinett and Shemar Smith, who are also sidelined with injuries.

That presents a prime opportunity for Kee Whetzel and Hamilcar Rashed, two redshirt freshmen getting a heavy dose of practice reps for a Beavers defense aiming to improve at stopping the run and rushing the passer in 2017.

"Sometimes it seems slowly, but they're coming along," Clune said of Whetzel and Rashed.

Position coach Chad Kauha'aha'a learned last season that he cannot be afraid to play freshmen, as a rash of injuries forced Smith, Robinett, Shemiah Unutoa-Whitson and Andrzej Hughes-Murray into action during their first season in Corvallis. And with Hughes-Murray moving inside, Whetzel and Rashed are the next guys up.

At 6-foot-3 and 213 pounds, Whetzel is undersized but speedy after primarily being recruited as a wide receiver out of Clearwater, Florida. Rashed, meanwhile, possesses a 6-foot-4, 233-pound frame and "just keeps growing and growing," Kauha'aha'a said, after coaches considered pulling his redshirt at times last season.

Both acknowledge they still have work to do in mastering OSU's playbook. Rashed in particular is aiming to improve his alignment at his new "B" linebacker spot, before letting his physical tools take over.

"You really have to learn this playbook and do everything right to actually get to play," Rashed said.

Ugwogebu, who totaled 54 tackles (11 for loss) and 5.5 sacks last season, is scheduled to be back on the practice field this fall as one of OSU's biggest defensive leaders. And after playing so many youngsters in 2016, the Beavers should now have depth at outside linebacker.

Whetzel and Rashed hope they prove to be reliable options the spring.

"(My goal is) not to disappoint," Whetzel said. "Come out here and make a statement for myself for being a first-timer on the field."

Adam Soesman stepping in for Bright Ugwoegbu

By Gina Mizell

The Oregonian

November 11, 2016

CORVALLIS -- Adam Soesman was surprised when Gary Andersen approached him this past offseason about moving from safety to outside linebacker. And the transition has not always been easy, Soesman acknowledges, thanks to a lighter frame and untimely injuries.

But last week, Soesman making his first-career start and setting the edge for the Beavers' defense against Stanford's strong rushing attack. Now, the sophomore will step into a starting job indefinitely, after Bright Ugwoegbu hurt his ankle against the Cardinal and has been ruled out for at least Saturday's contest at UCLA.

"He knows the scheme. He lines up in the right place. He'll be in the right spot," outside linebackers coach Chad Kauha'aha'a said of Soesman. "Sometimes it's not pretty, but he gets the job done. He's going to have to finish that off the next three games."

Soesman made four tackles against Stanford in his first extensive action of the season and at that position in his career, after Ugwoegbu was suspended for the first half due to a targeting penalty in the Beavers' previous game against Washington State. Previously, Soesman had primarily played on special teams as a redshirt freshman, recording 23 tackles with some spot duty at safety when injuries hit the secondary.

But Andersen thought Soesman had the speed to rush the passer, along with the experience to cover underneath routes. So last winter, Soesman began upping his weight from 200 pounds to 220. He hit a setback, though, when he tore ligaments in his wrist over the summer, before working his way back by the opener.

OSU's group of outside linebackers has been hampered by injuries all season, with true freshmen Andrzej Hughes-Murray and Shemiah Unutoa-Whitson manning the "B" spot after Titus Failauga, Shemar Smith and Joah Robinett all went down. Now, Ugwoegbu is out on the opposite side, leaving a huge playmaking and production void. Ugwoegbu leads the Beavers and ranks fourth in the Pac-12 with 11 tackles for loss while also tallying 5.5 sacks, one forced fumble, one fumble recovery, two pass breakups and two quarterback hurries.

But Soesman is hoping to help fill the void at a position he never thought he'd play. "They're not asking me to do too much," he said. "They're wanting me to play my game and do what I do well. It's not too much trying to be Bright, but kind of to be myself and do what I can bring to the table."

Noah Togiai (81) set career-bests of 4 catches for 31 yards and a touchdown in the 2016 season-opener but suffered a season-ending injury the next week. He was granted a medical hardship and returns as a redshirt sophomore this fall.

Togiai a big catch at H-back

By Kevin Hampton
Corvallis Gazette-Times

August 11, 2016

BEND, Ore. — New Oregon State starting quarterback Darell Garretson was the star of the spring game.

While Garretson drew most of the attention, it was the play of H-back Noah Togiai that helped the QB find the spotlight.

Togiai finished the game with seven catches for 107 yards and established himself as one of Garretson's top targets entering the season.

"Now that I have a quarterback that I have good chemistry with on and off the field, I know that he trusts me to do what I have to do on the field," Togiai said. "I know that he'll give me the ball when he feels he needs to give me the ball. So going into the season I feel really good about it."

Togiai started five games last season as a true freshman and had 10 catches for 73 yards and a touchdown.

With the departure of Caleb Smith, he is one of the few players in the H-back/tight end group with extensive playing experience.

That doesn't mean Togiai sees himself as one of the main leaders of the group. He's the same age as most of his teammates and a few are older.

"Obviously, we miss Caleb," Togiai said. "He was a big part of our room, we all looked up to him, including myself. Whenever we needed help we went to him, so it's kind of hard without that presence in the room anymore, but we all know what we're doing. We have a coach that we all look up to and we know we can count on. So I don't really look at myself to take Caleb's role as a leader, but we all know what we're doing and we all know what we're doing and we all know what we're doing and we all know what we're doing."

Nevertheless, Togiai is expected to be a significant weapon in the pass game this season.

He has good size at 6-foot-4, 245-pounds, can run and has the jumping ability to go over most defenders.

"Noah's a guy we can get the ball to and he makes hard catches, and that's the good thing about him is he makes hard catches," Garretson said. "And he's big bodied, too, so it's hard to play through him for a DB and he's just a reliable guy."

Togiai's leaping skills came in handy on the basketball court as well.

Basketball was his first sport for most of his athletic career and he was expecting to play it in college as late as his senior year in high school.

That led to some tough moments.

"I had more basketball offers than football," Togiai said. "So when I had to make that decision it was really hard, but in the end you only have this chance to play football four years at this level and once it's done, it's done. Basketball is right down the street. You can play it whenever you want. For the rest of our lives."

Togiai said there is a misconception that he went to Oregon State because of the opportunity to play both sports.

Instead, he chose the Beavers because he did not want to pass up a chance to play for Gary Andersen and he liked the idea of living in a smaller city.

He grew up in the Salt Lake City area and was a strong University of Utah fan.

"It was a decision that I was going to leave home, because originally I was going to University of Utah," Togiai said. "Just leaving home was the hardest part about it. Not football or basketball. I know a lot of the media out there say that the ultimate deciding factor was playing football and basketball, but it wasn't."

Last year, Togiai stepped on the field at Utah for the first time after watching games in the stadium for years.

He said there were a lot of mixed feelings. He was nervous, yet happy.

"It was kind of a dream come true but at the same time it was on the opposite side," he said. "So when I stepped on that field for the first time I was looking up and it was like, 'Wow, I used to be sitting up there. I was just sitting up there last year.'"

Togiai joined the basketball team but left about halfway through the season.

He realized that he wanted to focus on football rather than himself.

"During basketball season I would see all the football players working hard every day and I knew I wanted to help them out," Togiai said. "I knew I had a lot of weight to gain and a lot of things to practice, so eventually it hit me that I should just be playing football."

Shemiah Unutoa-Whitson hopes to become family's first college graduate

By Danny Moran
The Oregonian

October 20, 2016

CORVALLIS - It has been a whirlwind last couple weeks for Shemiah Unutoa-Whitson.

The Oregon State freshman outside linebacker moved from scout team to the travel squad prior to the Beavers' Pac-12 opener at Colorado on Oct. 1 and was then thrust into his collegiate debut Saturday against Utah after injuries hammered his position group.

Yet with his football world moving faster than ever, he took a moment to pause and reflect when asked about the time last year when the Beavers came calling with a scholarship.

"It was huge," he said. "It was a really big time for me and my family just because I'm the only one that's going to graduate from college. My mom, she has some college but she didn't get a degree. I'll be the first."

By the time Unutoa-Whitson graduated from San Geronio High School in San Bernardino, California, ESPN had rated him a three-star recruit. But the 6-foot-2, 226-pounder has long referred to himself as an "underdog." He said UTEP, a Conference USA school that is 1-5 this season, was the only FBS school to offer him a scholarship as he entered his senior year.

Nerves set in heading into that season. Unutoa-Whitson said he ultimately would have been comfortable with any FBS scholarship but had long set his sights on playing at a Power Five conference program. It was not until after his senior season had started that he heard from OSU assistant Chad Kauha'aha'a, who requested his game tape and soon followed through with an offer. Other schools soon followed but he committed in part because Oregon State got to him first.

Now Unutoa-Whitson sees parallels between himself and the Beavers as they look to work their way up from the bottom of the Pac-12.

"Everybody doubts us," he said. "Everybody thinks that we're just little old Oregon State. We're not. We're making big strides as a team. As long as we keep coming together as a team, limits are endless."

Even though it has come sooner than expected, Unutoa-Whitson has the chance to be a significant part of the Oregon State defense in the final half of the 2016 season. Early results were mixed. He assisted on one tackle against the Utes and Kauha'aha'a said the freshman "still has a long way to go" to develop his technique and comprehension of the defensive scheme.

Regardless of any growing pains, Unutoa-Whitson plans to keep the perspective of his family in mind.

"I feel like I can't let my family down," he said. "I hold my family on my back right now. I just represent for them every time I go out there."

Kalani Vakameilalo (97, center) has become a strong anchor in the middle of the defense. The junior has made seven starts on the interior line for the Beavers.

Vakameilalo playing with new-found power

By Kevin Hampton
Corvallis Gazette-Times

October 20, 2016

Utah faced a fourth-and-1 play from the Oregon State 25 with less than a minute to go.

The Beavers had put together a touchdown drive on their last possession to cut the deficit to 19-14, and the defense figured the Utes would try to tack on a field goal.

Instead, the Utes went with a run play to Joe Williams, who had slashed through the Beavers for 179 yards and a touchdown.

This time, defensive tackle Kalani Vakameilalo crashed through and dropped Williams for no gain.

"We were supposed to go in to block the field goal, but they decided to go for it," Vakameilalo said. "Me and Elu (Aydon) were like, 'Oh, what are we going to do?' So we just lined up head up on the guard and the tackle and we just attacked. And I seen the running back come, so I just took a shot and I guess we stopped him and gave the offense a chance to come back and try to win."

The Beavers could not complete a comeback, but Vakameilalo had what OSU coach Gary Andersen called his best game of his OSU career by far.

Vakameilalo had seven total tackles with six solos.

"The play he made on the last fourth-and-one, that was a big-boy play and he had two or three of those in this game," Andersen said. "That's what you're looking for, special plays by a special kid."

Vakameilalo has settled into his defensive tackle role and is playing his best football for the Beavers since arriving from Kapolei, Hawaii, in 2014. He spent his redshirt freshman season with the scout team then played 10 games last year and started the season-opener at Michigan.

Injuries held him back for part of the season and he finished with 10 total tackles, three for loss and two sacks.

In six games this season, Vakameilalo has 13 tackles with one sack and a quarterback hurry.

Vakameilalo said he's been learning from Andersen, who also coaches the defensive linemen for the Beavers.

"He's just teaching us to control the O-line and just keep your eyes on their gap and secure the gaps, and that's what we did last weekend," Vakameilalo said. "I feel that's what we did pretty good as a D-line."

"Compared to last year I feel way more comfortable. Because he gives us room to actually take risks and stuff to make plays. Last year we didn't really take chances and stuff. So I feel good, I feel comfortable now because coach A's been with us."

The biggest change in Vakameilalo's game has been his strength.

When he came to Corvallis, he could not bench press 200 pounds. Now he's pushing up between 330 and 350.

"When I first came here I didn't really have the technique and strength I needed," he said. "Now I have the strength and everything thanks to (strength) coach (Evan) Simon and coach A. All the things they taught me shaped me together to be the best that I could be possibly, so I feel I'm where I'm supposed to be now."

Fellow defensive lineman Sumner Houston said Vakameilalo told him that he had never lifted weights before he got to OSU and was a big construction worker who also played football.

Now Vakameilalo has the size (6-foot-3, 311 pounds) and power and is learning to use both to his advantage along with developing his technique.

"The main thing is he's using his hands more, he's been getting off the ball and he's using his strength and his natural ability to the fullest now," Houston said. "While before he was a little more tentative in his movements and I feel he's let it go a little bit and he's improved dramatically."

The added strength has given Vakameilalo more confidence on the field.

"I feel way more confident. Last year I didn't feel as strong and confident," he said.

"I felt my physicality wasn't as good as I am today. But thanks to them, I'm just trying to do what they're teaching and keep progressing with the D-line and everything and we'll be good."

Jordan Villamin aims to bounce back in 2017

By Gina Mizell
The Oregonian

March 14, 2017

CORVALLIS -- Gary Andersen did not mince words when talking about his 2017 expectations for Jordan Villamin.

"We need a great senior year out of Jordan," Andersen said of the Oregon State wide receiver. "If we have that, we'll be a much better football team."

Villamin took a crucial step this past week, returning to team drills after being limited for most of spring practice due to a knee injury. He did not see full action in Saturday's scrimmage, but Andersen highlighted a few key third-down catches the 6-foot-5, 225-pound Villamin made earlier in the week.

"I've been watching from the side," Villamin said. "It's kind of boring, not being able to run around and help the team out. I'm just excited to get back out here and try to contribute."

Villamin is now the Beavers' most experienced returning receiver following Victor Bolden's departure. Yet Villamin is coming off a disappointing 2016 season where he collected 21 catches for 253 yards and one touchdown, with 124 of those yards coming in a late breakout game against Arizona.

When asked what he most took away from last season, Villamin paused and returned to the concept of complacency, that one can't "get satisfied with what you got." Now that he's cleared to return to full workouts in the weight room, he's aiming to trim weight and gain speed, to combine with crisp route-running and a deeper knowledge of the playbook.

Villamin is also spending his final season working under new receivers coach Jason Phillips, a former All-American at Houston who has an extensive background in pass-happy offensive attacks. Villamin said the volume or types of concepts have not changed for the receivers, but that there is "more emphasis on making sure the details are right."

After all, no matter who wins the Beavers' ongoing starting quarterback derby, the receivers must also play a big role in improving a passing offense that ranked 110th nationally in yards per game (173.8) and 102nd in completion percentage (54.7) last season.

"That's what the problem was last year -- the details weren't right," Villamin said. "We weren't paying attention to the coverages. And then when that happened, the quarterback didn't know where to throw it, so then the balls weren't getting completed."

"It's mostly our fault (over) the quarterbacks, so I put the blame on me. We just gotta get our assignments right and get all the technique right and we should be straight."

Christian Wallace (29) was a four-star recruit in the 2016 class. He worked with the second-string during spring practice and will push for a spot on the two-deep this fall.

Christian Wallace's long wait is over

By Kevin Hampton
Corvallis Gazette-Times

March 2, 2017

The signing of Christian Wallace in 2016 came with a bit of fanfare. After all, the Oregon State football program does not land a lot of four-star players.

So when Wallace penned his autograph on a letter of intent to play for the Beavers, it created a buzz among fans.

But when fall camp rolled around, Wallace was not on the field. He arrived in Corvallis from Sealy, Texas, and was allowed to enroll for classes but was not quite eligible.

Instead of learning the ropes as a freshman cornerback on the practice field and in the meeting rooms, Wallace spent the start of the school year like any other freshman.

Missing the games was tough on Wallace and he wavered a bit during that time.

"Honestly, I thought about going home. I did," Wallace said. "But my teammates just kept me here. It was like a season is only 12 weeks and we counted down weeks every week. So it was hard, but at the same time, easy."

Sticking out the months without football showed that Wallace was serious about his commitment to the team and school.

"Christian has been dealt the hand that he's been dealt and I think given the circumstances he's handled his position very well. It says a lot about him as a young individual," cornerbacks coach Cory Hall said.

"Each day presents a new obstacle, but what it says about his character is he's a competitor. He's something that you want in your room, on your team, because he wants to compete and not only that, he wants to compete at a high level. Because at any given time, he could have went ahead and just went with the flow with everything. But he didn't."

Spending a season on the sideline from football activities did not derail Wallace. He found ways to learn without practice time.

"Usually I would go to a teammate's house after practice or class and just study off them," Wallace said. "I would learn second-hand, basically, since I couldn't go to any meetings."

Those afternoons also became bonding time with his teammates.

Wallace said every day after practice ended he'd get a text from a player inviting him over to hang out.

"I probably went over to Treston (Decoud's) house every week. Kendall (Hill's) house almost every day and Dwayne (Williams') house every week," Wallace said. "So I built bonds with them and they brought me a long way and I feel like it was worth it."

Hall tried to talk with Wallace as often as possible. He realized the need to help Wallace stay in touch with the football program while he acclimated to college life.

"Him not being a part of football and lifting and being able to sit in the corner room, it was hard for him," Hall said. "But to this point I think it's been one of those things to where when you have a fish out of its natural habitat and now you put him in water, he's enjoying it. He's hungry and he's willing to learn."

Wallace's wait is over. With an early spring practice schedule, he's been able to finally join his teammates and begin preparations for the 2017 season.

He has all the physical tools and is a big corner at 6-foot-1, 221 pounds, but there's a lot for him to digest before the fall.

"Since I've been back I've learned a lot of new technique. I learned a whole defense and I learned some patience," Wallace said.

Hall said Wallace has a lot to learn but is headed in the right direction.

"He's a young, gifted athlete that has now been injected into a system to where he has to rely on things outside of his natural, God-given ability," Hall said. "To this point we've still got a lot of work to do, but what I love about Christian Wallace is he wants to and he's working. So he's not giving up and he's helping us help him."

No solo trek to college for Countryside's Kee Whetzel

By Bob Putnam
Tampa Times

January 19, 2015

CLEARWATER, Fla. - In two weeks, Countryside High's Kee Whetzel will stand at a table in the school's media center to make his college selection. On a table will be baseball caps from his top three schools: Arizona, UCF and Maryland.

By the time Whetzel bends the visor on his favored cap, signifying his choice, he will have completed an unlikely journey from unknown prospect who started playing football just five years ago to one of the most coveted prospects in the country.

"It's been a whirlwind trying to find the right fit, the right home," he said.

Truth be told, Whetzel found one long before whittling down a short list of schools among his 15-plus offers.

Whetzel's childhood was rough. His mother put him and his five brothers up for adoption when he was 4.

"My mother did drugs; she had different boyfriends," he said. "We all have different fathers."

He bounced from foster home to foster home until he was adopted at age 5 by Wayne and Karla Whetzel. The couple first adopted Kee and his younger brother, Deondre.

"Their smiles were just infectious," Wayne said.

Three years later, the Whetzels adopted older brothers Brian and Trey.

"We kept praying about the situation and bringing them together," Wayne said. "We prayed so much, we kept adding to our family."

"It's been a blessing."

The Whetzels did not stop there. They adopted Josiah, the lone brother not biologically related to Kee and the rest.

Kee's other two brothers were adopted by another local family.

"We couldn't have children, so this is the route we took," said Wayne, who works for Walt Disney World and makes the commute to Orlando each week. Karla stays at home with the boys.

"We were all new to this as parents and had a family that kept growing. We're not rich by any means, but we had enough to make it work and provide as much love and support as possible."

Kee did not get involved in sports until the eighth grade, when he was encouraged by friends, including Countryside quarterback Trent Chmelik, to go out for football.

Kee played at the youth-league level for two years before becoming Countryside's junior varsity quarterback as a sophomore. Most recently he has played on both sides of the ball as a linebacker/receiver.

Kee also played basketball as a sophomore and junior mostly because Trey was on the team. He gave up the sport this year to concentrate on football.

The football offers from colleges started coming in last season. Interest continued to grow during a stellar senior season in which he had 58 catches for 1,078 yards and a school-record 12 touchdown receptions.

Last week he played in the Blue-Grey All-American Game in Jacksonville and had a 70-yard touchdown catch.

Now it's time to concentrate on which school to pick. He has had in-home visits with coaches from UCF and Maryland. For the next two weeks he's scheduling visits to his top schools.

"This is all setting up for a big day for me," Kee said. "It's going to be very emotional. I know my entire family will be there."

Wayne said that wherever Kee decides to go, he will be at as many games as possible, family in tow.

"You would think with all this attention, he would have a big head," Wayne said. "But that's not Kee. He's incredibly down to earth. I don't know anyone who dislikes him."

"We wouldn't miss any of his college games for the world. I'll be right there, yelling 'That's my boy.'"

Kyle White embracing ‘second chance,’ position switch for Oregon State Beavers

By Gina Mizell
The Oregonian

August 22, 2016

CORVALLIS -- Oregon State's practice ended several minutes ago, but Kyle White is backpedaling and flipping his hips with the help of teammate Dwayne Williams.

Even on scorching turf as temperatures hover around 100 degrees, White welcomes the extra repetitions. He was the odd man out of the Beavers' quest to build a running-back pecking order behind starter Ryan Nall. Yet now White has a new opportunity at cornerback, a move officially made late last week that the Beavers hope will boost a thinning secondary and give White himself the best chance to see the field this season.

"I got a second chance to do as great as possible with my teammates," White said after that extra session.

White originally joined the Beavers' as a mid-year signee from Orange Coast Community College, adding to a relatively inexperienced group of backup contenders that included Tim Cook, a fellow junior-college player coming off a serious pectoral injury, and Paul Lucas, a speedster who played both receiver and running back as a true freshman in 2015. From afar, White flashed some strong moments in his early practice sessions, like tallying 10 carries for 53 yards and a touchdown during the Beavers' spring game while Nall sat out.

But White battled internal struggles with confidence while adjusting to the Division I level.

In junior college, the schemes learned and skills required were simple, allowing him to beat defenders primarily with athleticism. In Corvallis, he marveled at the size and power of Nall and Cook, then watched as true freshman Art Pierce "come out of nowhere" during the summer and fall camp. Running backs coach Telly Lockette acknowledged White was not picking up the intricacies of the position and offense as quickly as Cook and Pierce.

But last week, Lockette and cornerbacks coach Cory Hall brought a proposition to White following a staff meeting. How would he feel about moving to the secondary?

White had not played cornerback since high school, where he almost exclusively matched up against receivers in man-to-man coverage. Yet after the meeting, he went outside to work with Hall on technique like footwork.

Since then, he's gained field awareness, like where the safety help will be on any given play. He's dissecting an array of coverages, shadowing Hall on the practice field and in film sessions and thriving off of the energy and physicality of the teammates in his new position group.

In all, White said Saturday that he's "learned more in the past three days" about the position than during his whole high-school career.

Saturday also offered White the early challenge of facing the Beavers' first-team offense, with Treston Decoud, Dwayne Williams and Jay Irvine all limited due to injury. White knows he made mistakes, prompting the post-practice session.

His goal is to be ready to take the field against Minnesota, if needed. And to take advantage of this "second" opportunity.

"They're not just fly-by-night decisions. They're educated decisions," coach Gary Andersen said of the switch. "We put the best of our coaching knowledge together to see if we think he has the skillset and the ability to be able to do it.

"It's worked out very well for us many times in our career as a staff, and I hope it goes that way in this one."

Wily-Matagi developing at tight end

By Kevin Hampton
Corvallis Gazette-Times

November 4, 2016

Oregon For a moment, Tuli Wily-Matagi was the only tight end on the active roster for Oregon State.

Noah Togiai had been lost for the season with a knee injury and Ricky Ortiz was banged up, leaving Wily-Matagi alone with tight ends coach Brian Wozniak.

While the situation wasn't ideal for the team, it actually helped Wily-Matagi, who is still learning the position as a redshirt freshman after playing quarterback in high school.

"It's been good for him as far as getting his feet wet and getting kind of thrown in the fire is going to make him a better player," Wozniak said.

Instead of watching from the sidelines, Wily-Matagi was on the field getting playing time.

Learning on the job allows him to develop at a faster pace.

"What's helped the most is just the live reps in the game and kind of just getting thrown in there and learning to play on the move and getting used to everything, the speed of the game," Wily-Matagi said. "So it's been helpful being the only tight end being able to go right now."

Wily-Matagi played quarterback for Kahuku High in Laie, Hawaii, where he threw for 1,252 yards and 10 touchdowns.

He also played defensive end and was a highly regarded recruit at the position.

Scobel Wiggins

Tuli Wily-Matagi (82) made three starts at tight end for the Beavers in 2016. He'll continue to seek increased playing time this fall.

Hodgins making the most of an early start

By Kevin Hampton
Corvallis Gazette-Times

March 14, 2017

While the members of his high school senior class at Berean Christian High in Walnut Creek, California are looking forward to graduation day, Isaiah Hodgins is already taking classes at Oregon State.

And playing some football.

Hodgins, a four-star recruit at receiver, began his college career in January as an early enrollee and has been participating in the Beavers' spring practices.

He said it was not a difficult decision to make the jump.

"I just talked it over with my parents and thought it would be the best thing for me to get playing time as a true freshman and come in here and compete with the best of the best in the Pac-12," Hodgins said.

"I love it so far and it's been great. My teammates have been helping me out and it's been a great opportunity."

Hodgins attracted plenty of attention as a recruit. He had 94 catches for 1,521 yards and 21 touchdowns as a senior and 94 receptions for 23 scores as a junior.

His size was a big draw for college coaches. Hodgins is 6-foot-4 and 209 pounds.

That intrigued programs such as Boise State, Michigan, Colorado, Purdue, Utah, Washington, Washington State and Wisconsin.

He narrowed his choices to Oregon, Nebraska and Oregon State and visited all three.

"Nebraska was a cool place. (Mike) Riley is a good coach and they have good wide receiver coaches," Hodgins said.

"It was more of my comfort level here. I bonded good with the teammates and the coaches and on my visit I was real comfortable. I just loved everything about Oregon State, the college town and the opportunity to play as a true freshman. So I took my talents here to try to compete with the best of the best and come in here and give me all for the team."

Hodgins has gone through some of the usual growing pains and has had up and down moments throughout the spring.

He seems to be finding his way as the spring game approaches and had five catches for 82 yards, including a 48-yard touchdown, in last Saturday's scrimmage.

"He's a young player, he's learning the offense for the first time and he's trying to apply all those things," OSU offensive coordinator Kevin McGiven said. "You saw some pretty rapid progress early on. Hit a little bit of a wall through the middle part of spring ball and then we saw him kind of shoot up again."

"(Wide receivers coach Jason) Phillips challenged him a little bit and he digs into the playbook a little bit more and gets more comfortable with what we're doing and then you're starting to see him make a few more plays."

Phillips said Hodgins has quite a bit of potential, but as coaches they need to bring him along at the right pace.

"Right now, he's very talented, you can see that, he's got some ability, but again, he's young," Phillips said. "I know that size is something that you want and sometimes you get over-mesmerized by size and you want to push him a little bit further, but you've got to remember he should be in high school right now getting ready for the prom."

He gets to experience college football practices and adjust to campus life earlier than the freshmen arriving in the fall.

It will help in his quest to start for the Beavers this season.

"I want to start. That's been my goal ever since I was in high school, I want to start as a true freshman," Hodgins said. "I'm going to try to work to that as much as I can and if worse comes to worse, the goal is just to start a couple games."

Jake Luton (6) transferred to Oregon State in January and participated in spring practice drills. He'll continue to battle for the starting quarterback position in the fall.

Jake Luton throws his hat in the QB competition

By Kevin Hampton
Corvallis Gazette-Times

March 6, 2017

Jake Luton dropped into the pocket, spotted Hunter Jarmon breaking into the end zone and launched a throw that cleared cornerback Xavier Crawford and nestled into Jarmon's hands for a 36-yard touchdown.

The play caught the attention of Oregon State coach Gary Andersen, who mentioned it as one of the best of Saturday's scrimmage.

"That was a big-time throw, a big-time catch against a big-time corner," Andersen said.

Luton has only been with the Beavers a couple weeks, but he's making a push in the quarterback competition.

He made a few stops on his way to Corvallis.

Luton had a specific plan in mind when he decided to leave Idaho.

He had signed to play quarterback for the Vandals out of high school and spend a redshirt season with the team before getting into the mix the next year.

He backed up Matt Linehan and started one game. Luton finished with 383 yards passing with one touchdown and four interceptions, and had five rushing TDs.

Luton took snaps with the starters the following spring while Linehan recuperated from an injury, but wanted to put himself in a better spot to win a starting position with a Power 5 team.

So Luton packed up and headed to Ventura College in California for his sophomore season.

That was good enough for Andersen, who gave Luton a call.

"It was exciting. It all happened so fast. It wasn't really like it was over time," Luton said. "He got in touch with me and sent me an offer and I was able to talk with him for a while and just really enjoyed it, liked what he had to say and I felt like it was a perfect fit."

Luton has jumped right into the quarterback competition.

If he is to start this fall, Luton will have to win the job over Marcus McMaryion and Darell Garretson, who started the bulk of the games last season.

"I think every day the more reps I get, I get more comfortable," Luton said. "Something that's big for me is to be able to get out there and make mistakes and just keep learning and getting better."

Luton brings a different physical dimension to the position. He's 6-foot-7, 227 pounds and has plenty of arm strength.

He's a pocket passer, but has some fast feet as well and has shown good speed when he's on the run.

That's not a big surprise when you look at the style of offense he ran — the Wing T — in high school. So he's quite comfortable tucking the ball and taking off down the field.

"I like to be able to do anything that's asked of me," Luton said. "In high school I ran a Wing T offense, and so that's something that I've been able to develop and then at Ventura I ran the ball a little bit and at Idaho I ran the ball a little bit. I'm a pocket passer guy, but I like to be able to do a little bit of everything."

Luton is in an ongoing process of meshing with the Beavers receivers. Building chemistry between quarterbacks and their targets is of prime importance during the offseason.

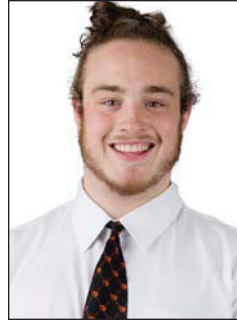

"I think I'm starting to mesh with a lot of them," Luton said. "I don't know that there's a particular guy but the whole group with Hunter (Jarmon) and Trevon (Bradford) and Isaiah (Hodgins) and all those guys, Xavier (Hawkins). So I think we're meshing really well as a group and then the tight ends as well. We're working the tight ends in a lot and I think that's really good."

A bigger group of tight ends with the return of Noah Togia from injury along with Quinn Smith and Tuli Wily-Matagi expands the options for the QBs.

"It's a really talented group of receivers and there's some big guys but they're athletic as well and I love to throw to my tight ends and so having some guys like that, big targets that can move well, that's big time for a quarterback," Luton said.

Luton's plan is much closer to coming to fruition.

"There was a lot of things that played into it and ultimately it was just decision that my family and I made," he said. "We figured you only have a couple more years to make this thing happen, so let's give (ourselves) the opportunity to play big-time college football and I'm glad I made the decision and I'm glad I'm here."

GARY ANDERSEN

HEAD COACH

3rd season at Oregon State / 28 years of coaching experience

When Gary Andersen was named the head coach of the Oregon State football program on December 10, 2014, it was lauded as one of the most impressive hires in Beaver athletics history.

"Coach Andersen encourages us to be student-athletes; emphasis on the student aspect. He isn't like most coaches who want you to just remain eligible; he truly wants us to maximize what we can accomplish in the classroom." OSU All-Pac-12 offensive lineman Sean Harlow

The 52-year-old Andersen has a wealth of coaching experience that spans the ranks of high school, junior college, small college and FBS level programs. He is currently in his ninth year as the head coach at the FBS level that includes stops at OSU, Wisconsin and Utah State. He has coached in numerous bowl games, been a finalist for several national awards and most importantly has an astounding track record for student-athlete academic success with 149 league academic honorees in his eight previous seasons as a head coach.

"Coach Andersen is a complete head coach. He expects greatness and success on and off the field, and holds everyone in the program to a very high standard when it comes to taking care of business each and every day. Playing football, excelling in the classroom - he approaches it identically - giving it everything you have and doing it the right way. He does this by treating his athletes like men; he's not interested in babysitting. Excellence in everything is his standard, and is what he expects from each player, every day. Coach A puts academic success just as high as success on the field, if not higher. He rewards his players for excelling in classes with Nike gifts at the end of each term. It's been an honor playing for Coach Andersen because he shows you how to be a complete student-athlete, and teaches you how to approach every aspect of life beyond football." OSU three-time Pac-12 Academic team member and three-year starter Dustin Stanton

Andersen's pillars of his program include academic achievement, social accountability and athletic excellence, instilling a culture within the Beavers' team that has paid benefits on and off the field.

"Coach Andersen is first and foremost a great person. He is for the guys (his team) first. He demands that throughout our time at OSU as we transition from being kids into men. That stems from how we approach every day of the grind, how we treat others around us, and how we perform in the classroom. He does everything in his power to make that happen for every man on his team. He has taught me how to handle myself during tough times and how to keep pushing towards success through adversity. I will forever cherish my time at Oregon State and Coach A and his staff played a big role in that. He will continue to push OSU to the top of the Pac-12 Conference." OSU record setting receiver/returner Victor Bolden

"When you play for Coach Andersen you are pushed in all facets of life. He is very passionate about his players succeeding academically and he and his staff provide the resources necessary for student-athletes to achieve in the classroom. Coach Andersen's expectations in the classroom are the same expectations that he has on the field, and in all other parts of your college experience." OSU four-time Pac-12 academic team member tight end Ricky Ortiz.

Kayla Gross was appointed the Director of Beyond Football in January 2016.

Gross is responsible for developing the strategic vision and implementation of the Beyond Football program, an initiative that aims to empower, engage and prepare student-athletes for life after the game. Thanks to a generous gift from an OSU alumnus, the Beyond Football program connects student-athletes to campus and community resources, engages them in the community and provides them with professional skills and competencies required for post-graduation success.

Gross arrived at Oregon State after serving as the University of Wisconsin's athletic department's community relations coordinator since April 2012, responsible for the creation and oversight of the Badgers Give Back community outreach program. Gross played a predominant role in the creation of the department and led the growth of the program from one part-time student employee to its own department with operating budget, full-time employee and eight undergraduate interns in 18 months. Responsible for the outreach efforts of 23 varsity sports and more than 750 student-athletes, she drove a 344 percent increase in hours volunteered by student-athletes and a 447 percent increase in appearances.

Gross completed extensive research on sports community outreach during her time at Wisconsin. In 2015, she put her research to use while serving as a consultant for Helper Helper, LLC, a smartphone application that encourages student-athlete involvement by making opportunities accessible via smartphone. In that role she provided strategic insight on the role of a community relations coordinator, strategies for engaging student-athletes and tips for creating and sharing an outreach story.

A native of Howard Lake, Minn., Gross earned her bachelor's degree from the School of Journalism & Mass Communication at the University of Wisconsin-Madison. Gross is a certified career development facilitator, completing her training through the National Career Development Association in 2017. She currently serves on the university's Mental Health Initiative committee and is also a Special Olympics basketball coach.

BOWL CHAMPIONSHIP SERIES

The Bowl Championship Series (BCS) is a type of "Super Alliance" that was designed in 1997 to match the two top-rated teams in a national championship and to create competitive match-ups in the four other BCS games. The BCS is composed of three variables that comprise a team's standing: the Harris poll, the ESPN/USA Today Coaches poll, and a series of five computer rankings.

Weather — 81 degrees; Wind 14 mph NE; 58% Humidity

HONOLULU, Hawai'i — Rashaad Reynolds returned two fumbles for touchdowns and the Oregon State offense racked up 454 yards to pace the Beavers to a 38-23 win over Boise State at the 2013 Sheraton Hawai'i Bowl.

The Beavers took the early lead taking a 31-6 advantage into halftime. That was due in large part to the Beavers' defense, which forced two fumbles. Both were returned by Reynolds, who, in his last collegiate game, collected 10 tackles amongst the two fumble returns.

The first fumble return came with OSU up 10-3 in the first quarter after a touchdown reception by Brandin Cooks and field goal by Trevor Romaine. Scott Crichton sacked Boise State quarterback Grant Hedrick, forcing a fumble, which enabled Reynolds to pick the ball up at the Broncos' 3-yard line and make it to the end zone with ease, upping the Beavers' lead to 17-3.

Reynolds scored the game's next touchdown, and in grand fashion, returning the Boise State fumble 70 yards. With the Broncos driving, cornerback Larry Scott forced a fumble from Troy Ware after a short pass. Reynolds picked it up and had a clear path to the end zone.

That momentum carried over to the Oregon State offense, which scored its next two — and final — touchdowns on the ground. The first came on a 9-yard carry from Terron Ward. It came with 2:46 left in the first half and sent OSU to the 25-point lead at the break.

A little more than seven minutes into the second half, the OSU offense picked up where it left off as Storm Woods carried the ball into the end zone from 5 yards out.

Woods stood out offensively for the Beavers, collecting 107 yards on the ground via 16 carries. He paced the Beavers' ground game, which totaled 195 yards overall.

Sean Mannion passed for 259 yards, with 60 going to Cooks, who reached that figure by way of eight catches. He finished the season with a Pac-12 Conference record 128 receptions as well as 1,730 yards, surpassing USC's Marqise Lee in both categories.

Mannion's 259 passing yards gave him 4,662 for the season, surpassing Washington's Cody Pickett for the most in a single-year by a Pac-12 quarterback. He also tossed 37 touchdowns in 2013, tied for the third-most with Andrew Luck.

San Antonio, Texas • Dec. 29, 2012

Weather — Indoors

(AP) - David Ash threw two fourth-quarter touchdown passes, the last a 36-yard strike to Marquise Goodwin with 2:24 left, to give Texas a 31-27 comeback victory over No. 15 Oregon State in the Alamo Bowl.

The Longhorns (9-4) never led before Goodwin scored his second touchdown on a deep post pattern, just a down after Texas converted a fourth-and-1 play to keep its chances alive.

Storm Woods ran for 118 yards and scored two touchdowns for Oregon State (9-4).

Ash was 21 of 33 for 241 yards. Ash sputtered until the fourth quarter, when he went 9 for 11 for 146 yards. Texas had no choice but to stick with the only backups two redshirt freshmen who haven't taken a snap all season.

Oregon State quarterback Cody Vaz was 15 of 28 for 194 yards. The Beavers had negative 4 yards in the fourth quarter as they were muffled by the Longhorns defense that was led by Alex Okafor, who finished with 4 1/2 sacks.

The Valero Alamo Bowl marked the Beavers' 16th bowl game and OSU is 10-6 all-time in them - 5-2 under head coach Mike Riley. The dean of Pac-12 Conference coaches engineered one of the top turnarounds in the nation in 2012, with the Beavers improving to a 9-4 mark after finishing the 2011 campaign at 3-9.

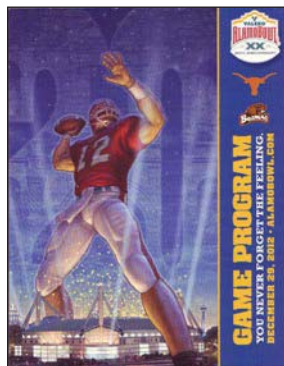

The six-win improvement tied Ohio State and Middle Tennessee for the best win improvements from last season.

Markus Wheaton ended his Oregon State career at the Alamo Bowl, catching three passes for 37 yards - he left as the program's all-time receptions leader with 227 and is sixth with 1,244 yards.

Linebacker Michael Doctor was the team leader with 11 tackles.

Oregon State found itself up 20-10 at halftime and 27-17 entering the fourth quarter but two late Texas touchdowns sealed the come-from-behind win for the Longhorns. Ash found Johnathan Gray from 15 yards out with 8:18 remaining and followed that up with a 36-yard touchdown pass to Marquise Goodwin with just 2:24 left in the game.

2009 — MAACO BOWL LAS VEGAS — OREGON STATE VS. BYU

BYU 44
 OREGON STATE 20

Sam Boyd Stadium
 Las Vegas, Nev. • Dec. 22, 2009

Weather — 51 degrees, Cloudy, W-37-44 (North)

(AP) - Max Hall threw for 192 yards and three touchdowns leading No. 15 BYU past No. 16 Oregon State 44-20 in the Las Vegas Bowl.

Hall gave the Cougars their third win in five straight bowl appearances in the Sin City and ended the Beavers' run of five consecutive bowl wins.

Hall threw a 25-yard touchdown pass to Luke Ashworth, a 17-yard scoring strike to Dennis Pitta and a 15-yard TD pass to Manase Tonga. He had 139 yards passing in the first half.

Tonga added an 18-yard rushing touchdown, and Harvey Unga finished with 76 yards rushing and a TD for BYU (11-2).

Oregon State (8-5) scored on 1-yard runs by quarterback Sean Canfield and Jacquizz Rodgers, and a 31-yard pass to Damola Adeniji from Ryan Katz. Adeniji led all receivers with seven receptions for 102 yards.

Canfield completed only four passes in the first half as the Beavers struggled to sustain drives. He finished 20 for 41 for 173 yards and an interception.

The normally dependable Rodgers fumbled for the first time in his college career in the first quarter, on his 621st touch, and Matt Bauman returned it 34 yards for the go-ahead score. Officials used replay to see whether Canfield's checkdown toss to Rodgers was a lateral or a forward pass, and upheld the touchdown.

Oregon State finished with three turnovers, including a fumble by Rodgers' brother James.

Winds gusted to 50 mph at Sam Boyd Stadium and temperatures fell to 30 degrees. The gusts were so strong that one of Oregon State's punts traveled untouched only 6 yards.

2008 — 75TH BRUT SUN BOWL — OREGON STATE VS. PITTSBURGH

OREGON STATE
PITTSBURGH

Sun Bowl
El Paso, Texas • Dec. 31, 2008

Weather — 48 degrees, Clear, W-9 (South-Southwest)

Three points, 20 punts and 10 sacks. Go ahead and say it was unsightly, but Oregon State coach Mike Riley saw nothing short of a masterpiece.

In the lowest-scoring major bowl game in a half-century, the Beavers shut down No. 20 Pittsburgh 3-0 in the Sun Bowl on Justin Kahut's 44-yard field goal.

"That's the game we were in," Riley said. "We played that game. We ended up winning it. Some people will call it ugly, but I can't."

The defensive struggle went on all day. Pitt kicker Connor Lee tried a 58-yard field goal in the closing minutes but the ball, helped by a steady wind, dropped just short of the crossbar.

"I had more confidence in a 58-yard field goal try than going for it on fourth-and-8," Pitt coach Dave Wannstedt said. "I wanted to give our team a chance. I really thought he could kick it."

Not since Air Force and TCU played to 0-0 standoff in the Cotton Bowl on Jan. 1, 1959, had a bowl produced so few points. It was also the lowest-scoring Sun Bowl since a scoreless tie in 1940 between Catholic and Arizona State.

"We were three downs and out way too much," Riley said. "We put a terrific burden on our defense and we put a lot of burden on the punt team. They came through. That's the game we were in and we played that game. We ended up winning it."

The Beavers (9-4) improved to 5-0 in bowls since Riley began his second stint as their coach in 2003. Kahut provided the only points with his kick shortly before halftime.

Riley liked the way his team rebounded from a 65-38 loss to rival Oregon that denied Oregon State a Rose Bowl berth.

"Guys sulked for a bit," Beavers' defensive end Victor Butler said. "But in the end you've got to get your head in the game. You've got to go play football because the other team wants to play and win just as much as you do."

Riley stood at the interview table and added: "That is well said."

Pitt (9-4), making its first bowl appearance since the 2004 season and the first under Wannstedt, led the Big East in scoring this season, averaging 29.3 points per game. The Panthers managed just 178 total yards.

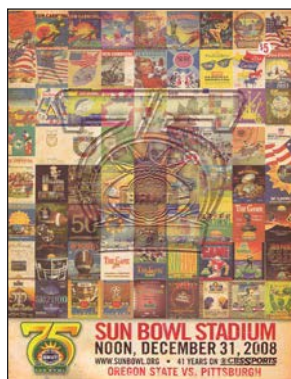

"We couldn't get anything on offense started at all," standout tailback LeSean McCoy said. "We played horribly."

There was no sign of offense in El Paso, not with McCoy held to 85 yards rushing after averaging 116.9 yards per game this season. Quarterback Bill Stull was 7-for-24 for 52 yards with one interception.

"When you talk about our defense, that was a beautiful performance against a running back that some said was one of the best in the country," Riley said.

The Beavers also won without their spectacular brothers, tailback Jacquizz Rodgers and receiver James Rodgers, both out with shoulder injuries.

Reserve tailback Jeremy Francis had 76 yards rushing and Moevao was 21-for-42 for 193 yards passing with two interceptions. The Beavers finished with 273 total yards. The Panthers finally got a spark early in the fourth quarter when T.J. Porter returned a punt 36 yards to Oregon State's 42.

But three plays later, the big return was wasted because Butler, who had four sacks, stripped Stull and recovered the fumble.

Oregon State led 3-0 after Kahut connected on his field goal with 2:18 remaining before halftime. He later missed a 37-yard attempt midway through the third period.

The Beavers came up empty on the best touchdown opportunity by either team. Officials ruled tight end John Reese was out of bounds on an apparent 9-yard TD reception 10 seconds before the break.

"This is the game it turned out to be," Riley said. "It didn't have to be 3-0. We missed some red-zone opportunities."

The call was upheld after a replay review, and on the next play, Pitt linebacker Scott McKillop -- the Big East defensive player of the year -- intercepted Moevao's pass in the end zone.

2007 — EMERALD BOWL — OREGON STATE VS. MARYLAND

MARYLAND

AT&T Park
San Francisco, Calif. • Dec. 28, 2007

Weather — 47 degrees, Cloudy

The first meeting between the two programs in the sixth annual Emerald Bowl at AT&T Park proved to be entertaining, but both teams showed some rustiness after the long layoff from the regular season. The game was played in misty turning to rainy conditions as it progressed.

The Beaver defense, which had been fierce in the first quarter allowing just 16 points all season, was surprised as the Terrapins hit for two touchdowns. The Terps went 80 yards on the opening drive of the game culminating in Chris Turner's 9-yard pass to Isaiah Williams.

Oregon State answered on the following drive that saw starting quarterback Lyle Moevao being injured and forcing Sean Canfield, who had been out since Nov. 3 at USC, into the game. The lefty tied the score with a 14-yard pass to James Rodgers. Maryland would regain the lead when Turner hit Darrius Heyward-Bey for 63 yards — that was the last of the scoring for the ACC bunch.

Canfield worked the team down the field in the last two minutes of the half before Yvenson Bernard, who would earn offensive MVP of the game, scored from two yards out to tie the game at 14-14.

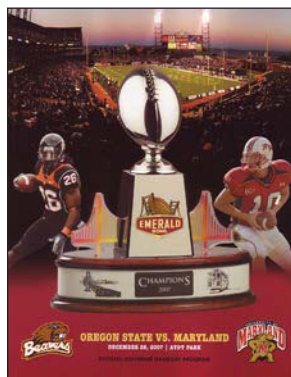

Neither team mounted much offense in the third quarter until Beaver punt returner Taylor Kavanaugh posted a 26-yard return to the Terps 36 to set up what proved to be the winning score. Bernard took a first down handoff and went 29 yards and two plays later approached the goal line only to fumble, but it was pounced on by Rodgers for the score.

Maryland had just two possessions in the fourth quarter and when the Beavers took over with 6:24 left in the game, it was one of the most memorable drives in school history. The drive didn't amount to any scoring, but OSU picked up six first downs in forcing Maryland to use its final two timeouts.

"I'm really proud of our football team for fighting through a strange game in a lot of ways," coach Mike Riley said. "I thought the defense got stronger and stronger as the game went on. ... Offensively, I couldn't describe what the formula is — just getting the ball to Yvenson Bernard and James Rodgers as much as possible."

Bernard finished with 177 yards and linebacker Derrick Doggett earned defensive MVP honors with eight tackles, including a 14-yard sack.

Riley led OSU to its fourth consecutive bowl win — all under Riley's watch.

2006 — BRUT SUN BOWL — OREGON STATE VS. MISSOURI

Sun Bowl
El Paso, Texas • Dec. 29, 2006

Weather — 48 degrees, Sunny

Oregon State wanted nothing to do with overtime. Yvenson Bernard pushed into the end zone on a gutsy 2-point conversion run after Joe Newton caught a 14-yard touchdown pass with 22.1 seconds left, and No. 24 Oregon State beat Missouri 39-38 in the 73rd annual Sun Bowl. The win was OSU's third consecutive bowl victory.

The Beavers trailed by 14 points with 12:08 to go before rallying for their eighth victory in nine games. Bernard's 7-yard reception had cut the gap to seven with 6:02 to go.

Tony Temple had 194 yards, four short of the Sun Bowl record, on 20 carries with two touchdowns and Chase Daniel threw two touchdown passes for Missouri (8-5).

Senior quarterback Matt Moore threw four touchdown passes, a Sun Bowl record, and ran for a fifth for Oregon State. He was 5-for-7 for 55 yards on the winning drive, set up after Sammie Stroughter's 38-yard punt return to the Oregon State 46.

Bernard's conversion run came after Missouri called a timeout to freeze kicker Alexis Serna before the extra point. Instead, it gave the Beavers time to persuade coach Mike Riley to go for two - and the gamble paid off.

Missouri had seven plays of 29 yards or longer, including Danario Alexander's 74-yard touchdown catch and Temple's 65-yard run. Missouri responded after Oregon State scored on its opening drive of the second half for a 21-17 lead.

Tommie Saunders' 29-yard TD catch from tight end Chase Coffman off a lateral gave the lead back to Missouri and Temple's 65-yard untouched touchdown run seemingly put the Tigers in control at 31-21 with 5:58 in the third.

The victory was the latest in a series of nail-biters for Oregon State, which beat Hawai'i and Oregon by a combined five points in the last two regular-season games.

Moore was 31-for-54 for 356 yards and set a school record of 182 passes without an interception before getting picked off by Brandon

Massey in the third quarter. Oregon State retained possession on the play after Massey fumbled.

The longest season in OSU history ended with the Beavers posting the second most victories ever for the program with 10. Oregon State ended the year No. 21 in the final Associated Press Poll, and No. 22 in the final USA Today Poll and Bowl Championship Series standings.

2004 — INSIGHT BOWL — OREGON STATE VS. NOTRE DAME

Bank One Ballpark
Phoenix, Ariz. • Dec. 28, 2004

Weather — Indoors

PHOENIX, Ariz — For the second time since 2000 Oregon State and Notre Dame met in a bowl game in the Valley of the Sun. For the second time Oregon State made a statement with a 38-21 win over the Fighting Irish in the 16th annual Insight Bowl at Bank One Ballpark. The game was televised nationally by ESPN and featured an Insight Bowl attendance record of 45,917.

The Beavers, led by senior quarterback Derek Anderson, scored on two of their first three possessions and would eventually build a 21-0 lead midway through the second quarter. Notre Dame fought back to within 24-14 before Anderson put together arguably the best drive of his four-year career. The Scappoose native took OSU on a 90-yard, 12-play drive that concluded on a 1-yard touchdown pass to tight end Joe Newton, the last of two touchdown scores for the sophomore.

The win capped a rags to riches season for the Beavers and fourth-year head coach Mike Riley. OSU began the season 1-4, but rallied to win six of the final seven contests and end the year as one of the hottest teams in the nation.

“It was a big game for us,” Anderson said. “To bounce back from the start that we had in this season and finish like this, it’s huge.”

Anderson, the offensive MVP of the Insight Bowl, tied a bowl record with four touchdown passes and turned in the sixth best passing mark in the history of the event with 358 yards. He connected with eight different receivers and was responsible for all but 20 yards of the entire offensive output.

Oregon State’s first score was set up by a 52-yard punt return by freshman Sammie Stroughter. The Beavers began the drive at the Irish 27. Four plays later Anderson connected with senior George Gillett for a 12-yard score.

A second freshman set up the Beavers for their next score as Derrick Doggett blocked D.J. Fitzpatrick’s punt and recovered on the four-yard line. Anderson found Newton on the second play, after being sacked, to push the lead to 14-0.

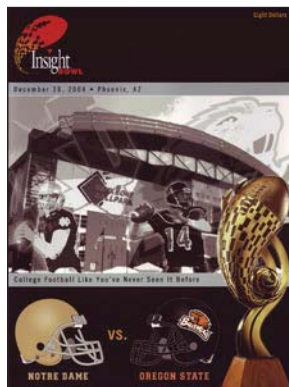

The Beavers third score came as Anderson found reserve tight end Dan Haines for 11 yards. Notre Dame desperately responded to stay in the game late in the half, scoring with 56 seconds remaining, on a 13-yard pass from quarterback Brady Quinn to tight end Anthony Fasano.

The second half began with cornerback Aric Williams intercepting Quinn as the Irish were putting together a nice drive that could have closed the gap. Williams’ interception led to an Alexis Serna 38-yard field goal to make the score 24-7.

Notre Dame did close the gap to 24-14 after Jerome Collins blocked Sam Paulescu’s punt. The Irish’s best drive of the game went 49 yards on six plays and was capped by a Darius Walker five-yard touchdown run.

The third quarter ended with OSU leading 24-14 and Notre Dame appeared to have momentum on its side, before Anderson’s game breaking 90-yard drive.

Senior tailback Dwight Wright concluded the Beaver scoring on a 2-yard run with 3:19 remaining.

“This team has gained a lot of notoriety for Oregon State,” Riley said after the game. “Big games against the two defending national champions (LSU and USC), we didn’t win ‘em but we certainly had opportunities.

“The big win against our arch rival (Oregon), a nice bowl win, beating all the Northwest schools. I think this team made its mark under some trying times.”

For Oregon State it was its third bowl victory in its last four postseason appearances. Junior linebacker Trent Bray, who had a game-high 10 tackles, was named the defensive MVP and Newton earned the ESPN Capital One Player of the Game honor.

2003 — LAS VEGAS BOWL — OREGON STATE VS. NEW MEXICO

Sam Boyd Stadium
Las Vegas, Nev. • Dec. 24, 2003

Weather — 58 degrees, Cloudy, Wind Calm

LAS VEGAS, Nev. — Mike Riley made his bowl game debut as a head coach a successful one, as Oregon State dominated New Mexico, winning 55-14.

The Beavers' roster was dotted with student-athletes from Las Vegas, and the thought of returning home for a bowl game was exciting, judging from the team's performance.

The Beavers opened the game with the ball and went 83 yards in nine plays for the first score. Quarterback Derek Anderson threw a 34-yard strike to tailback Steven Jackson, one of the Las Vegas boys, for the first of Jackson's bowl game-record-tying five touchdowns. Kirk Yliniemi booted a 21-yard field goal on the next drive, giving OSU a 10-0 lead. New Mexico had no first downs at this point.

The Lobos used a Brand Ratcliff 40-yard kickoff return to set up their only score of the first three quarters. Quarterback Casey Kelly and Hank Baskett hooked up on a 27-yard pass to make the game 10-7, but that was about it for the Lobo offense for the half.

Oregon State ended the opening quarter with a 17-7 lead, as Anderson hit receiver Mike Hass for 42 yards on the final play of the opening stanza. The Beaver offense had already rolled up 204 yards and 10 first downs, while the Beaver defense had allowed just one first down.

The Beavers made it 24-7 midway through the second quarter on the first of four rushing touchdowns, this one a three-yard romp. Less than two minutes later, thanks to a UNM fumble, Jackson went 11 yards to make the score 31-7, the eventual halftime score.

The first half statistics were staggering. OSU had 17 first downs, UNM one. Total yardage was 308-35.

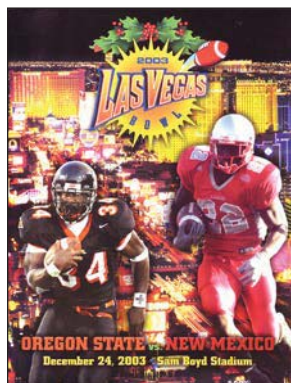

The Beaver defense once again stymied the Lobo offense on the first possession of the second half, and the Beaver offense extended the margin on its first drive. Jackson accounted for 48 of the 59 yards on the drive, including a six-yard score.

The teams traded punts for most of the remaining third quarter, before Yliniemi's 31-yard field goal made it 41-7 at the end of three.

Jackson added another one-yard score early in the fourth quarter to end his night and ultimately his OSU career — he announced after the game that he was forgoing his final year of college eligibility and entering the NFL Draft. Jackson ended the game with 149 yards rushing. Anderson also sat on the sideline for the rest of the game after passing for 322 yards and two touchdowns.

The teams traded touchdowns to end

2002 — INSIGHT.COM BOWL — OREGON STATE VS. PITTSBURGH

PITTSBURGH
OREGON STATE

Bank One Ballpark
Phoenix, Ariz. • Dec. 26, 2002

Weather — 46 degrees, Clear, Wind Calm

PHOENIX, Ariz. — What a difference a half makes.

After heading to the locker room following the first half tied 10-10 with the No. 24 ranked Pittsburgh Panthers, things fell apart for Oregon State in the second half. The Beavers wound up dropping a 38-13 decision to Pitt at the Insight Bowl before 40,533 fans at Bank One Ballpark.

Despite the defeat, it was another very successful season for Oregon State. The Beavers made their third trip in four years to a bowl game and OSU finished the season with eight victories (8-5), which tied for the fourth most season wins in school history.

Pittsburgh opened the scoring by taking the opening kickoff and moving 69 yards in six plays to score when wide receiver Larry Fitzgerald made a diving finger tip reception of a 40-yard touchdown pass from Rod Rutherford with 11:50 left in the quarter. The Panther touchdown amounted to only the third offensive TD allowed by the Beavers' defense during the first quarter of play in the 2002 season.

Oregon State bounced right back with a quick touchdown of its own to quickly tie the contest. It took the Beavers less than two minutes to knot the score at 7-7. OSU moved 72 yards in only three plays. On a second-down play from the OSU 35-yard line, the Beavers' James Newson caught a quick pass from Derek Anderson and appeared to be tackled after about a 10-yard gain. Instead, Newson's knee did not go down and he broke free for a 65-yard TD run down the sideline to tie the game.

Neither team had a scoring threat again until the second quarter. On OSU's fourth possession of the game, the Beavers drove from their own 10 to Pitt's 32 where the drive stalled. Kirk Ylioniemi then booted a 50-yard field goal to give OSU a 10-7 lead with 7:56 left in the half. For Ylioniemi, the 50-yard field goal matched his career long successful kick.

It appeared OSU would take its 10-7 lead to the locker room, but a great play by Pitt's special teams of downing a punt on OSU's 3-yard line led to an eventual field goal. Unable to move away from the goal line, the Beavers' Carl Tobey punted from the end zone and Pitt got the ball at OSU's 32-yard line with 1:07 to play. Pitt reached OSU's 27-yard line and David Abdul booted a 45-yard field goal as time ran out in the first half.

Pitt's Tez Morris intercepted an Anderson pass during OSU's first possession of the second half and returned the pick 37 yards to the OSU 23-yard line to change the entire momentum of the game. It was the only interception thrown by Anderson. Three plays later Rutherford scored on a 1-yard run for a 17-10 Panther lead.

The backbreaker for OSU came later in the third quarter when the Panthers' Shawn Robinson returned a punt 66 yards for a touchdown to give Pitt a 24-10 lead with 3:26 remaining in the period.

The Beavers had a good chance to get back into the game on their next possession. OSU moved from its own 30 to the Pitt 7-yard line for first and goal. However, Anderson got sacked on first down (loss of 7 yards) and the Beavers were held to a 31-yard field goal by Ylioniemi. The field goal by Ylioniemi was his 15th consecutive successful boot of the season, which tied the OSU career record.

Pittsburgh added a pair of touchdowns in the fourth quarter when the Beavers gave the Panthers great field position as a result of failing on a fourth down attempt and a fumble.

One huge problem for OSU in the game was its inability to establish the run. Steven Jackson entered the game as the nation's No. 4 leading rusher and the Beavers' season record holder, but he finished the game with only 34 yards.

2001 ('00 SEASON) — FIESTA BOWL — OREGON STATE VS. NOTRE DAME

OREGON STATE
NOTRE DAME

41

Sun Devil Stadium
Tempe, Ariz. • Jan. 1, 2001

Weather — 63 degrees, Clear, W-5 (West)

TEMPE, Ariz — Oregon State played its best and most complete football game of the season in routing No. 10 Notre Dame 41-9 in the 30th annual Tostitos Fiesta Bowl in the Beavers' first-ever appearance in a BCS Bowl.

Oregon State totally dominated the Irish from the opening kickoff. The Beavers led only 12-3 at halftime and Notre Dame was fortunate the margin wasn't larger as OSU rolled up 278 yards in the first half, including 246 through the air, to 98 for the Irish.

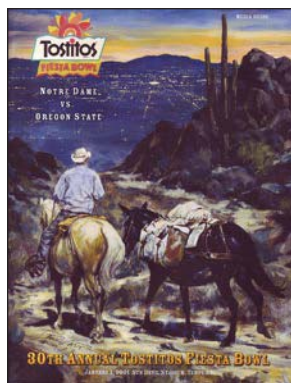

The Beavers scored on three of their four possessions in the first half. On the one possession OSU did not score, the Beavers drove 83 yards in nine plays, only to be stopped on fourth down at the Notre Dame 1-yard line. Patrick McCall was thrown for a 4-yard loss on fourth down as OSU was attempting to stretch its 6-0 lead. As it was, the Beavers took only four plays to score on their next possession, which started at their 10-yard line. After a 14-yard pass to T.J. Houshmandzadeh and a 2-yard run by Ken Simonton, Jonathan Smith connected on a 74-yard TD pass to Chad Johnson boosting OSU's lead to 12-0.

Notre Dame had generated only eight yards in total offense on six offensive plays in the first quarter, a quarter dominated by the aggressive Beaver defense.

It took a major mistake by OSU for Notre Dame to avoid being shut out in the first half. The Beavers had the Irish pinned on their own 2-yard line facing a third down-and-31 situation. OSU forced an incomplete pass, but the Beavers' Calvin Carlyle was flagged for a late hit on the play and the 15-yard personal foul carried an automatic first down. The Irish took advantage of the break and marched to OSU's 12-yard line before kicking a 29-yard field goal as time expired in the first half.

The third quarter will be remembered forever by Beaver fans, as OSU pummeled Notre Dame with a 29-point blitzkrieg. It all started innocently enough as the Irish forced the Beavers to punt for the first time in the contest after holding OSU on the opening series. The floodgates opened after that. In the span of eight minutes the Beavers accounted for 29 points.

On Notre Dame's first possession of the second half, Darnell Robinson sacked Irish quarterback Matt LoVecchio on second down and forced a fumble in the process. Two plays later Smith connected on a 23-yard TD pass to Houshmandzadeh. Next came a bizarre punt return for a TD as Houshmandzadeh returned a Notre Dame punt from OSU's 27, was hit at the 50 and fumbled, only

1999 — O'AHU BOWL — OREGON STATE VS. HAWAII

Honolulu, Hawaii • Dec. 24, 1999

Weather — 79 degrees, Fair, W-15-25 (South-Southwest)

HONOLULU, Hawaii — Oregon State fans invaded the Islands in mass as the program made its first bowl appearance since January of 1965. The Beavers had the unenviable chore of playing the University of Hawaii Rainbow Warriors in the O'ahu Bowl at UH's home field — Aloha Stadium.

Oregon State looked like it was on its way to its first postseason victory since the 1962 Liberty Bowl, when it took its first possession 79 yards in 10 plays to score on Ken Simonton's 1-yard run with 8:23 left in the opening quarter. He rushed for 30 yards on OSU's first play from scrimmage and accounted for 40 yards on the first TD drive.

OSU got a big break late in the first period and didn't capitalize on the opportunity, which might have been one of the big plays of the game. OSU had to punt on its second possession and UH's Avion Weaver fumbled after a hit by Terrence Carroll, who also recovered the ball at the Hawaii 14-yard line. The Beavers were unable to move the ball and Ryan Cesca's 42-yard field goal sailed right, seemingly giving Hawaii new confidence.

Hawaii took advantage of OSU's only turnover of the game to get on the scoreboard. Jonathan Smith fumbled a snap from center at the Beavers' 24 yard line. The Rainbows were stopped at the 8-yard line and settled for a 26-yard field goal by Eric Hannum. Hawaii tried an onside kick following the field goal, but the Beavers recovered for great field position at the Hawaii 49.

Once again, Cesca missed on a field goal attempt from 31 yards out. The Warriors took over on their own 20 and put together their only long drive of the game, moving 80 yards in eight plays to score on a 9-yard pass from Dan Robinson to Channon Harris, putting Hawaii up 10-7. OSU tied the contest on the final play of the first half, a 37-yard field goal by Cesca, following an interception by Calvin Carlyle.

Hawaii scored 10 points in the third quarter and the Beavers were held scoreless as they could not sustain a drive. The Rainbows moved out to a 23-10 lead with 2:58 left in the game on a 35-yard field goal by Hannum and appeared to have the game locked up at that point. However, OSU's offense finally caught fire and Smith moved the Beavers 81 yards in 10 plays in only 1:31 elapsed time as Simonton scored on a 13-yard draw play to narrow the margin to 23-17.

Then, the biggest play of the game occurred following the Beaver touchdown. OSU executed an onside kick and Roddy Tompkins recovered at the Hawaii 48. But, an official threw a flag indicating the Beavers had not lined up properly and voided the recovery. The next onside kick went out of bounds and Hawaii was able to run out the remaining 1:27.

Simonton was named OSU's outstanding player

1965 ('64 SEASON) — ROSE BOWL — OREGON STATE VS. MICHIGAN

MICHIGAN
OREGON STATE

Rose Bowl
Pasadena, Calif. • Jan. 1, 1965

Despite this visual evidence to the contrary, the Rose Bowl can be anything but a bed of roses. Oregon State found that out on January 1, 1965, losing to Michigan 34-7. The No. 8-ranked Beavers had gone into the game as 11-point underdogs to the No. 4-ranked Wolverines, but OSU did go into the game with some optimism.

Early on, Oregon State looked like it might pull off a stunner. After a scoreless first quarter, the Beavers took a 7-0 lead on a Doug McDougal 5-yard pass from Paul Brothers, but Michigan led 12-7 at halftime and the lead would grow.

Leading up to the game, there was controversy. When OSU and Oregon rejoined the Athletic Association of Western Universities for the 1964 season, schools didn't have time to juggle their schedules for a full round-robin slate of conference games. The Beavers and USC both finished with 3-1 records in league play, the selection of the Rose Bowl representative was left up to a vote of the conference's faculty athletic representatives; OSU had an 8-2 overall mark to USC's 7-3. The decision didn't sit well with many in and around Los Angeles and the Beavers took quite a bit of grief from the press and public during their visit.

Philadelphia Stadium
Philadelphia, Pa. • Dec. 15, 1962

With the temperature 17 degrees at kickoff, only 17,048 fans made their way to the enormous arena on the south side to see the No. 17-ranked Beavers beat hometown Villanova 6-0. Wrote the late George Pasero of The Oregon Journal: "The Liberty Bowl was televised, of course, with an estimated audience of 27 million in saloons and living rooms a lot more comfortable than the 17,048 human ice cakes who attended."

Both teams switched from cleats to tennis shoes prior to the game due to frozen footing.

The only score came on Terry Baker's 99-yard run with 9:54 left in the first quarter, and Oregon State spent the rest of the afternoon holding off the Wildcats. OSU's undersized line was pushed around between the 20-yard lines and Villanova outgained the Beavers 309-299, but Oregon State came up with four fumbles and two interceptions.

Baker wasn't all of Oregon State's offense, but it was close. He rushed for 137 yards and passed for 123. His performance clinched his Heisman Trophy.

1957 ('56 SEASON) — ROSE BOWL — OREGON STATE VS. IOWA

IOWA 35
OREGON STATE 19

Rose Bowl
Pasadena, Calif. • Jan. 1, 1957

Oregon State played in its second Rose Bowl game, but its first at the Rose Bowl. The Beavers' previous appearance was in 1942 in the only Rose Bowl not played in Southern California — the game was moved to Durham, N.C. because of World War II.

A crowd of 100,000 witnessed 10th-ranked Oregon State victimized by some early mistakes and the Beavers lost 35-19 to third-ranked Iowa. OSC head coach Tommy Prothro and the Beavers had already had one crack at Iowa, losing to the Hawkeyes 14-13 on Iowa's home field in early October; it was the first Rose Bowl to pair teams that had already played during the regular season. Wrote the late George Pasero of The Oregon Journal after talking to the Beavers after the game: "All the opinions ended up at the same place. OSC tackling was the worst of the season and no one seemed able to explain why."

Halfback Joe Francis rushed for 73 yards and passed for another 130 yards to lead Oregon State's offensive attack. Back Sterling Hammock had four receptions for 65 yards.

GAME NOTES

This game produced two important firsts. It was OSU's first-ever trip to the famous New Year's Day classic, and it remains the only Rose Bowl played outside Pasadena, which has prompted sports historians over the years to prefix the bowl's famous name with the word "displaced."

The reason was due to the blackout of the West Coast that had followed the attack on Pearl Harbor. The host stadium was Duke University's home field in Durham, N.C., with the undefeated Blue Devils picked as 3-1 favorites. Oregon State's victory came as a big surprise to Eastern and Southern sportswriters, with Sid Feder of the Associated Press writing, "Probably never in the quarter century history of the Tournament of Roses had such a completely overlooked betting underdog jumped up to beat the big fellows. Oregon State came East to the wonderment of most of Dixie as to why the Westerners were going to show up at all."

Beaver boss Lon Stiner, at 38 and the youngest head coach in Rose Bowl history, had prepared his team with a passing attack that dazzled the North Carolinians. Jack Gunther of UPI wrote, "The Beavers skipped and slammed and flicked passes with an ease and finesse which completely baffled the record crowd."

For Oregon State, the star was Dan Durdan, who passed and ran Oregon State College to victory. He was awarded Player of the Game honors and later inducted into the Rose Bowl Hall of Fame. Beaver greats Bob Dethman and George Zelig also added points. Duke blocking back Tommy Prothro also played magnificently.

In one of the great ironies in the annals of college football, Prothro would one day become Oregon State head coach and take the Beavers to not one but two Rose Bowls. The football practice field at OSU bears his name. Returning home, the victorious Stiner and company were feted at a special Rose Bowl Banquet with Oregon Gov. Charles Sprague one of the principal speakers. In 1985, the entire squad was inducted into the State of Oregon Sports Hall of Fame. In 1988 they entered the OSU Athletic Hall of Fame. OSU fans at the time considered the game to be the greatest win in school history.

The winning score came in the third quarter when Gene Gray scored on a 68-yard pass from Bob Dethman.

GAME NOTES

HONOLULU, Hawaii — Power generated by the Oregon State College Beavers overcame the tricky plays and passing attack of Hawaii's Rainbows and gave the boys from the Northwest a 39-6 victory in a Pineapple Bowl game that was finished under arc lights.

The Beaver victory climaxed an island invasion that started with Oregon State defeating the Healanian town team on Christmas day.

The Beavers rolled up three touchdowns in the first period against Hawaii, and added another in the third and two more in the fourth. Hawaii scored in the second period. Showers late in the game handicapped Hawaii's passing attack.

Bob Olson, Morrie Kohler, Ken Dow and George Peters scored a touchdown by power drives in the first five minutes of play, with Olson passing to Peters for the final six yards. A few minutes later, Bob Dethman returned a Hawaii punt 12 yards to the 29-yard line, from where Bob Dethman cracked center for 18 yards and Jim Kisselburgh ambled 11 yards through tackle to score.

Vic Kohler intercepted one of Roy Strohlin's passes in the same period, lateralled to John Tsoutsouvas who was down on the Oregon State 49. John Hackenbruck made 18 on an end-around. Kohler added five at the line, and then Joe Tomich passed to Hackenbruck in the end zone.

Hawaii drove to Oregon State's 12-yard line early in the second quarter before the Beavers held, but Kisselburgh's kick was short and Hawaii scored on two plays, with Strohlin passing from Oregon State's 47 to Cal Campbell on the 19 and then to Nolle Smith in the end zone. Oregon State battled down to the Hawaii 1-yard line where Dow fumbled as the half ended.

OSU AWARD WINNERSOREGON STATE UNIVERSITY ATHLETICS HALL OF FAME

The Oregon State University Sports Hall of Fame was established in 1988 in an effort to honor and preserve the memory of those student-athletes, teams, coaches, and members of the athletic staff who have contributed in an outstanding and positive way to the promotion of the Oregon State University athletic and academic program.

To be considered for this high honor, there are seven criteria that must be met:

1. If a nominee was an athlete, the person must have completed his or her eligibility at least five (5) years prior to induction.
2. If a student-athlete, the person must have earned two Varsity "O" letters.
3. If a coach, athletic administrator, or athletic staff member, the person must have either earned a Varsity "O" letter at Oregon State University or have been on the staff for at least five (5) years and have become inactive at OSU.
4. The records of the person considered should be so outstanding that there would be little question as to the qualifications necessary for induction.
5. Consideration will be given for personal conduct in sports and the personal contribution to the idea of sport.
6. Consideration will be given to teams who have contributed in a very outstanding and positive way.

TERRY BAKER • 1962

The Heisman Trophy winner was the nation's most heralded athlete after leading OSU to a 1962 Liberty Bowl victory over Villanova. Terry Baker was a unanimous first team All-American in 1962, and in addition was named the Sportsman of the Year by Sports Illustrated, Helms Foundation Award recipient, AP, UPI, and the Sporting News Player of the Year to name just a few. The two-time Oregon State team MVP played in the 1962 College All-Star Game. Baker also excelled in basketball where he helped the 1963 team to the Final Four. He was inducted into the State of Oregon Sports Hall of Fame in 1980. His number 11 is the only number retired at OSU. He is (as of June 2009) the only individual to win the Heisman Trophy and play in the Final Four. Baker was the first individual from the West Coast to win the Heisman. He was drafted first overall in 1963 by the Los Angeles Rams of the NFL.

Brown came to OSU as a fullback before moving to the defensive side as a freshman. He had a school record 186 tackles as a senior. As a junior he led the team with 134 tackles and had four interceptions against defending conference champion Stanford. He also had 22 tackles in that same '71 game vs. Stanford. At the conclusion of his OSU career he played in the East-West Shrine Game, Hula Bowl and Coaches All-American Bowl. BEYOND FOOTBALL

KAYLA GROSS
Director of Beyond Football

Beyond Football aims to provide Oregon State Football student-athletes with an integrated, personally meaningful educational experience that provides them with a strong sense of self, understanding of civic engagement and the tools to succeed as productive professionals and global citizens.

Thanks to the generous support of an Oregon State alumnus, the Beyond Football program is redefining the model for student-athlete development by taking an individualized approach that supports the holistic development of our student-athletes. Focused on three central tenets- EMPOWER, ENGAGE and PREPARE, the program aligns with Head Coach Gary Andersen's commitment to developing student-athletes who succeed academically, athletically and socially. Through unique programming and innovative curriculum, our Beyond Football program develops young men who are capable of translating their athletic experience into success in life beyond football.

THREE CENTRAL TENETS

EMPOWER

Encourage and provide opportunities that allow student-athletes to develop a strong sense of self and take personal ownership of their educational experience, growth and development.

ENGAGE

Foster an understanding of volunteerism and civic engagement and a multi-faceted, rich undergraduate experience.

PREPARE

Provide student-athletes and alumni with the tools and on-going support to acquire employment and succeed as professionals and global citizens.

Incoming freshmen student-athletes meet with Kayla Gross, Director of Beyond Football, upon arriving to campus. Freshmen meet with Gross bi-weekly during fall term to engage in programming focused on self-exploration, goal-setting and increasing familiarity with campus, team culture and resources.

Willis Whalen, Senior Manager of Player Affairs for the NFL Players Association presented on "Rookie Realities" of playing in the NFL during "Workshop Wednesday." Workshop Wednesdays are held weekly during the off-season featuring lectures or workshops on topics related to professional or personal development.

EMPOWER

The Beyond Football program takes an intentional approach to identity and character development by providing speakers and experiences that expand the worldview of our student-athletes. The program aims to meet the unique needs of each student-athlete by providing individualized support and quarterly one-on-one meetings with the Beyond Football staff to assess involvement and progress towards off-field goals.

(right) Former NFL player Freddie Scott presented on character and "Habitudes" during Workshop Wednesday thanks to a new initiative and partnership with the NFL.

Additional Beyond Football staff:
Jason Thomas, Asst. AD / Student-Athlete Development & Football Leadership Initiatives
Marcus Greaves, Beyond Football Intern - former football student-athlete

For more information or to support the Beyond Football effort, contact Kayla Gross, Director of Beyond Football, at kayla.gross@oregonstate.edu

ENGAGE

Oregon State Football is committed to giving back to the community that supports it. The Beyond Football program provides weekly volunteer opportunities supporting a wide variety of non-profit, institutional and charitable efforts.

GARY ANDERSEN ERA:

1,600+ Hours of community service
77 Charitable appearances
57 Student-athletes volunteering 10+ hours

Thanks to a generous sponsorship from Unitus Credit Union, 12 children battling serious or chronic illness received the ultimate VIP wish experience through our Dream Come True program

The Coaching Staff and student-athletes contributed funds to fulfill the holiday wishes of two families with children battling childhood cancer in partnership with Children Cancer Association's Hope for the Holidays initiative. The Beavers shopped for, wrapped and delivered the gifts to the homes of the families.

The Beavers were inspired by the strength of a young patient during a visit to Doernbecher Children's Hospital

PREPARE

Encompassing experiential learning opportunities, networking trips, career preparation workshops and one-on-one LinkedIn and resume consultation, the Beyond Football program aims to identify and secure opportunities for student-athletes to acquire professional experience. Tailored to the unique career interests of each student-athlete, the program features an innovative new curriculum to ensure adequate professional development and tracks progress towards off-field goals.

Ten student-athletes embarked on a three-day networking and career development trip to San Francisco, Calif. in May. The Beavers met with executives from LinkedIn, Pac-12 Networks and the San Francisco 49ers and toured their facilities.

(right) Darell Garretson and Manase Hungalu were selected to attend NFL/Pac-12 Career in Sports Forum, a two-day event held at Pac-12 Network Offices in San Francisco.

The home of the Oregon State University Beavers has had over $200 million in fiscal improvements completed since the 2005 season. The east side of the complex houses some of the finest amenities in all of college and NFL football, including the popular Club and Loge, and a new playing surface (FieldTurf) was installed prior to the 2012 season. Prior to the 2016 season the popular Terrace was introduced to Reser Stadium providing a unique fan experience showcasing the state's premier food and beverage. In 2017 the expanded Valley Football Center opened to further modernize the on-campus Reser Stadium.

Over the last 10 years the capacity of the stadium has increased by 11,000 and now features some of the best viewing in all of college football.

The OSU student-body sits directly behind the Beavers' bench along the east sidelines, with passionate fans in other sections. One of the unique aspects of the stadium is that the seating is close to the field, giving OSU a distinct home field advantage.

That home field advantage has helped the Beavers score some of the program's biggest wins in recent seasons, including snapping USC's 27-game Pac-10 Conference win streak in 2006 and then defeating the No. 1 Trojans in 2008.

Reser Stadium was originally known as Parker Stadium until June 14, 1999. At that time Al and Pat Reser of Beaverton, Ore., made a personal seven-figure gift to OSU athletics.

The stadium, which is located on the south side of campus, was originally built in 1953 at a cost of $330,463.19 with a seating capacity of 28,000. Following the 1965 Rose Bowl, additional end zone bleacher seats were added to raise the capacity to 33,000. The stadium was expanded to 40,593 in 1967 with a new addition to the west side, including a new press box. Stadium capacity was reduced in 1990 as a result of the construction of the original Valley Football Center. In June of 1996, an enlarged Valley Football Center opened. The stadium's capacity is now 43,363.

Karl Maasdam

Reser Stadium has become a shining monument for not only Athletics, but the entire University. "Beaver Nation" has embraced the upgrades to the facility that has become a source of pride for all of Oregon State University.

The center provides diagnostic and treatment services, and serves as a site for student internships, training and research. Samaritan operates the facility on land leased from OSU.

“This project enhances the university’s academic and research mission, particularly in the areas of athletic training and exercise and sports science.”

said Ed Ray, president of Oregon State University, at the dedication ceremony. “We are fortunate to have a comprehensive health care partner in our community that offers board-certified and fellowship-trained sports medicine specialists, as well as a broad complement of professional staff and support for training and research.”

OREGON STATE UNIVERSITY

Oregon State is an international public research university located in Corvallis, one of the safest, smartest, greenest small cities in the nation.

Founded in 1868, Oregon State is the state's Land Grant university and is one of only two universities in the U.S. to have Sea Grant, Space Grant and Sun Grant designations as well.

With $336 million in external research funding in 2016, a second consecutive year of record-breaking growth, Oregon State accounts for more research funding than all of the state's comprehensive public universities combined.

With 11 colleges, 15 Agricultural Experiment Stations, 35 county Extension offices, the Hatfield Marine Science Center in Newport and OSU-Cascades in Bend, Oregon State has a presence in every one of Oregon's 36 counties, a statewide economic footprint of $2.371 billion and an impact that reaches across the state and beyond.

ACADEMICS

Oregon State University's outstanding faculty and academic programs consistently attract more high achieving students than any other school in Oregon. Oregon State offers more than 200 undergraduate and 100 graduate degree programs through its 11 colleges, the graduate school and the Honors College, one of only a handful of degree-granting honors programs in the U.S.

- The 2016 Fiske Guide to Colleges named Oregon State as one of 44 Best Buy Schools in the nation.
- The Princeton Review placed Oregon State in the top 125 colleges in the western U.S.
- Forbes ranked Oregon State as the number 4 best college town.
- U.S. News & World Report named Oregon State among the "Best Global Universities" (Top 2 percent in the world).
- U.S. News & World Report ranked Oregon State's Ecampus in the top 10 for online bachelor's degree programs.

RESEARCH

Oregon State University earned $336 million in external research funding in 2016, a second consecutive year of record-breaking growth and an increase of more than 60 percent over the past decade. Oregon State is one of only two land, sea, space and sun grant institutions in the U.S. and is the only university in Oregon to have earned both Carnegie Classifications for Highest Research Activity and Community Engagement. It is the state's largest comprehensive public university, preeminent for both scholarly achievement and the direct impact of applied development, fulfilling the land-grant mission to serve the public good.

The OSU Research Agenda, integrated with the university's Strategic Plan, guides faculty inquiry in three signature areas:

- Advancing the Science of Sustainable Earth Ecosystems
- Improving Human Health and Wellness
- Promoting Economic Growth and Social Progress

Dr. Edward J. Ray became president of Oregon State University on July 31, 2003.

Under his leadership, OSU has completed and updated a visionary campus-wide strategic plan that has served as the framework for the university's development in profound and historic ways. Annual research awards and contracts have increased substantially and totaled nearly $309 million in fiscal year 2015, reaching the highest level ever at OSU.

President Ray partnered with the OSU Foundation to launch the university's first comprehensive fundraising campaign. The public phase launched in October 2007 with an initial goal of $625 million. By the end of the Campaign for OSU on December 31, 2014, its total reached $1.14 billion, including nearly $189 million for scholarships and fellowships, 79 newly endowed faculty positions, and funding for key scientific and learning facilities like the Lois Bates Acheson Veterinary Teaching Hospital, the Hallie Ford Center for Healthy Children and Families, The Linus Pauling Science Center, the International Living Learning Center, a renovated Furman Hall for the College of Education, the Graduate Studies Center at the OSU-Cascades Campus and four new cultural centers.

Mindful of OSU's commitment to the people of Oregon, Dr. Ray has overseen the expansion of dual-enrollment agreements to all 17 of the state's community colleges, making it easier for students to complete four-year degrees. He has also taken a leadership role in fostering a more seamless P-20 system, working with area school superintendents, community college leaders and university colleagues to strengthen institutional connections and enhance the student experience. Dr. Ray has also helped to usher in a new era of partnership and cooperation between Oregon's public universities. In Central Oregon, an effort to expand OSU-Cascades by fall 2015 to a robust four-year branch campus of Oregon State has begun, thanks to strong state and community support and financial investment.

In addition to his work at OSU, Dr. Ray's leadership extends to many organizations. He serves on boards of the American Council on Education, the Association of Public Land-grant Universities and the Association of American Colleges and Universities. In recognition of his contributions to higher education, he received the 2013 CASE District VIII Leadership Award.

Dr. Ray was a member of the economics faculty at Ohio State from 1970-2003, serving as economics department chair from 1976 to 1992. He served as associate provost from May 1992 until May 1993, senior vice provost and chief information officer from 1993-1998, and executive vice president and provost from 1998-2003.

His research interests include the history of protectionism in the United States, the determinants of U.S. foreign direct investment and foreign direct investment in the United States, the structure of tariff and non-tariff trade barriers in the United States and abroad, and the adoption of Social Security. His work has been published in The American Economic Review, The Journal of Political Economy, The Quarterly Journal of Economics, The Review of Economic Studies, The Review of Economics and Statistics, and other leading journals. He has co-authored a principles text, and his book, "U. S. Protectionism and the World Debt Crisis," was published by Quorum Press in 1989.

Dr. Ray received his undergraduate degree in mathematics from Queens College (CUNY) in June 1966, graduating cum laude and Phi Beta Kappa. He earned his master's in economics from Stanford University in 1969 and his doctorate in economics also from Stanford in June 1971.

Dr. Ray's wife Beth passed away in March 2014. He has three children and three grandchildren.

“Scott (Barnes) has demonstrated, everywhere he’s been, that he is committed to helping student-athletes be among the very best at whatever they chose to do academically and on the field. It was clear to me as we moved forward the person we needed to lead us where we aspire to go is Scott Barnes. He is a proven performer in exciting fans and alumni.”

That statement was delivered by Oregon State University President Dr. Ed Ray as he officially introduced Barnes as the Beavers’ Vice President/Director of Athletics on Dec. 22, 2016.

In Barnes’ relatively short tenure, OSU Athletics has already made significant strides academically and athletically. A school-record 149 student-athletes were selected to the Pac-12 Academic teams in 2016-17, the department registered a record cumulative GPA in the spring, the Valley Football Center officially opened, the popular Fan Experience Committee was created, he has made several popular coaching and staff hires, has put an increased emphasis on fundraising and developing a sustainable business model that will ensure Beaver Athletics continues to progress and thrive, and is in the midst of creating a comprehensive strategic plan to guide the program forward for years to come.

“We are building for stability and sustainability in all of our programs, and to create a vision that excites and inspires everyone in Beaver Nation,” Barnes said.

Barnes has spent 28 years in athletics administration, 18 as an athletics director. He arrived back to his native Pacific Northwest from the University of Pittsburgh, where he served as the Panthers’ Director of Athletics for nearly two years.

Prior to Pitt, Barnes headed the Utah State University athletics program from 2008-15 as Director of Athletics and was promoted to Vice President in 2012. The Aggies experienced unprecedented success under Barnes, including multiple bowl trips with then USU head football coach Gary Andersen.

“Student-athletes are No. 1 with Scott,” Andersen said. “There is no hierarchy of sport ... everybody is involved and everybody has a voice. He’s fair, he’s honest, and student-athletes are No. 1 to him.”

Barnes has also served as the director of athletics at Eastern Washington University and Humboldt State University. In addition, he has held various athletics roles at the University of The Pacific, the University of San Diego, Iowa State University and the University of Washington. He also has experience in corporate business and professional basketball.

Barnes, who has twice been honored as the Far West Region Athletic Director of the Year, is active in numerous NCAA and conference committees, and recently spent five years on the NCAA Men’s Basketball Committee (Chair for 2014-15).

The Spokane native graduated from Fresno State with a bachelor’s degree in 1986 and a master’s degree in athletics administration and physical education in 1993. A basketball letterman under coach Boyd Grant, he helped the Bulldogs advance to two NCAA Tournaments and two NITs. Barnes was a second-team all-conference player as a senior.

He and his wife, Jody, have two children: Daughter, Milanna, and son, Isaac, a member of the Beaver men’s basketball team. In addition, the family dog is appropriately named Benny.
