Following the 2016 season, Shanahan was named Associated Press Assistant Coach of the Year, Coordinator of the Year by The Sporting News and Assistant Coach of the Year by the Pro Football Writers of America after a record-setting performance by the Falcons offense en route to capturing the NFC South division title and an appearance in Super Bowl LI. LYNCH'S IMPRINT

One of the most respected players to ever play the game of football, and a four-time finalist for the Pro Football Hall of Fame, John Lynch is in his first season as the team's General Manager following a 15-year playing career and more than eight seasons as an NFL analyst.

Lynch joined the 49ers in February of 2017 after serving as a color analyst for FOX Sports from 2009-16. In his final season of 2016 with FOX, he manned the number two broadcast crew alongside play-by-play announcer Kevin Burkhardt.

Prior to his time at FOX, Lynch constructed one of the all-time great NFL careers while with the Tampa Bay Buccaneers (1993-2003) and the Denver Broncos (2004-07). A four-time All-Pro and nine-time Pro Bowl selection, he played in 224 games (191 starts) and registered 1,277 tackles, 13.0 sacks, 26 interceptions, 16 forced fumbles, eight fumble recoveries and 100 passes defensed. Lynch also started all 12 playoff games in which he appeared and tallied 71 tackles, two interceptions and 12 passes defensed. He was a Buccaneers team captain as the squad achieved the crown jewel of team sports, a victory in Super Bowl XXXVII, and has been inducted into the Ring of Honor in both Tampa Bay and Denver.

Lynch attended Stanford University where he excelled in both football and baseball. On the football field, he earned Second-Team All-American and First-Team All-Pac-10 Conference honors as a senior, while playing for Hall of Fame head coach Bill Walsh. Lynch was later selected in the third round (82nd overall) of the 1993 NFL Draft by Tampa Bay. Following his career on the diamond for the Cardinal, he was selected in the second round (66th overall) of the 1992 Major League Baseball Draft by the Florida Marlins.

In addition to his stellar play on the field, Lynch is also a pillar of the community. He and his wife, Linda, formed the John Lynch Foundation, which is committed to inspiring young people to become leaders through scholarship, sport participation and community involvement. The Foundation is committed to developing leaders by encouraging dreams, providing programs that assist and motivate, and recognizing achievement and excellence.

Lynch was the recipient of the 2006 Bart Starr Award, which is voted upon by players throughout the NFL and recognizes a player who shows outstanding character and leadership in the home, on the field and in the community. He was also presented with The Byron "Whizzer" White Award, which is given annually to the NFL player who serves his team, community and country in the spirit of Bryon Raymond White.

LYNCH'S GOLDEN NUGGETS

- Lynch is a member of the Tampa Bay Buccaneers Ring of Honor (2016) and the Denver Broncos Ring of Fame (2016).
- One of seven players in NFL history to make at least four Pro Bowls with multiple teams (Tampa Bay – 5; Denver – 4).
- His nine Pro Bowl selections rank t-2nd in NFL history among safeties, behind Pro Football Hall of Fame S Ken Houston (10).
- A four-time AP All-Pro selection (1999-2002), Lynch also won Super Bowl XXXVII as a member of the Buccaneers.
- Attended Stanford University (1989-92) where he played both football and baseball. He earned Second-Team All-American and First-Team All-Pac-10 Conference honors as a senior while playing for Hall of Famer and former 49ers head coach Bill Walsh.
- Selected in the second round (66th overall) of the 1992 Major League Baseball Draft by the Florida Marlins.
- In August of 2000, he and his wife, Linda, formed the "John Lynch Foundation" to provide "encouragement and positive alternatives for young people."

One of the most respected players to ever play the game of football, the four-time finalist for the Pro Football Hall of Fame and first year San Francisco 49ers General Manager John Lynch has a longstanding appreciation for the United States military.

As someone whose grandfather and great uncle volunteered for the Army the day after the deadly attacks on Pearl Harbor in December 1941, Lynch has the utmost respect for our military service men and women and has committed time and resources towards supporting the United States Armed Forces for decades.

Since 1998, Lynch has frequented various Air Force bases and military hospitals to personally thank those serving in the military, including MacDill Air Force Base in Tampa, FL, Walter Reed Hospital in Bethesda, MD, and various visits to Fort Carson and Peterson Air Force Base in Colorado. In 2002, the John Lynch Foundation hosted the 'Salute the Stars & Stripes' fundraiser honoring then United States Army Commander of U.S. Central Command Tommy Franks.

"Through my foundation, we've been involved in military appreciation for a long, long time," said Lynch. "Military appreciation is so important to me, because we understand that the unbelievable freedoms, ideals and realities that make America – in my mind – the greatest country in the world are given to us because a lot of people sacrificed for them. To me, no one does so more than the military."

During his last season playing in the NFL (2007), Lynch hosted troops from Buckley Air Force Base (Aurora, CO) during the Denver Broncos training camp at Dove Valley. He visited with and shared a meal with military personnel who had either recently returned from serving in Iraq or were preparing for overseas deployment.

Lynch's military appreciation continues to this day. Every year since 2011, he has hosted military families at the annual Lynch Christmas Party in Colorado and during his inaugural training camp as 49ers general manager, Lynch hosted service men and women during the team's Military Appreciation Day.

The NFL community once again had the chance to share the causes that are important to them during all Week 13 games, as part of the NFL's My Cause, My Cleats campaign. The initiative was a culmination of collaborative work between the NFL and players across the league. General Manager John Lynch took part in the campaign, with custom sneakers in support of the "John Lynch Foundation."

My wife, Linda, and I strongly believe that good, solid values can be learned through education, sport participation and community involvement. Teamwork, self-esteem, time management, responsibility and determination are the lessons that carry over into all areas of life.

HIGH PRAISE

"I am very excited for John and the opportunity he has with the San Francisco 49ers. He has all the traits you would want in a person to lead your football team. He knows the game and knows what it takes to win. John was instrumental in the turnaround of our Bucs team and he has a vision of how to do that with the 49ers. He's a great communicator and will be able to get his vision across to everyone in the organization. I have no doubt he will do an outstanding job."

He also provides input into personnel decisions concerning the team's acquisition of veteran talent through free agency, trades and the waiver system. Carthon also oversees creation of advanced scouting reports for all upcoming 49ers opponents in order to assist the coaching staff in their preparations.

During his tenure with the Rams, Carthon played a vital role in a personnel department that drafted consecutive Associated Press Rookie of the Year Award winners in DT Aaron Donald (Defense – 2014) and RB Todd Gurley (Offense – 2015). From 2012-16, the Rams organization also had nine players selected to the Pro Football Writers Association of America's All-Rookie team. After signing with the 49ers as a free agent in the 2017, Marquise Goodwin brought key elements to the organization both on and off the field. In 2012, Goodwin won the long jump title at the 2012 U.S. Olympic Trials (27-4.25) and finished 10th in the London Olympics. By qualifying for the Olympics, he became the first collegian to win both the Olympic Trials and the NCAA Outdoor long-jump competition in the same year since 1960.

On August 18th, 2017, as part of 49ers partnership with the Make-A-Wish Foundation, Goodwin spent the day with Austin DeMello, a 12-year-old 49ers fan from San Diego. The two toured the 49ers facility, had lunch together and even played a game of Madden 17, which Austin won. Austin was diagnosed with a brain tumor, but he and his family don't let that stop him from fighting and enjoying each day. "The fact that Austin's family comes out here, they're supporting him, loving him and not giving up on him, I love that," Goodwin said, "because my mom didn't give up on my sister." Goodwin's older sister, Deja, suffers from cerebral palsy and is unable to walk. Before Austin and his family went back to San Diego, Marquise left him with a message to remember when times get tough. "Just know that you've got a lot of people that love you and care about you," Goodwin told Austin, "including the 49ers."

Robert Saleh (SAH-lah) is in his 13th NFL season and first season as the 49ers defensive coordinator. He spent the previous three seasons (2014-16) as the linebackers coach for the Jacksonville Jaguars.

In 2016, Saleh's linebackers helped the Jacksonville defense rank fifth in passing yards allowed (215.3) and sixth in opponent rushing average (3.82). Team captain LB Paul Posluzny started all 16 games at MLB and led the team in tackles for the second consecutive season. According to Jaguars team statistics, LB Telvin Smith registered 118 tackles while starting all 16 games at outside linebacker for the first time in his career. Smith's 350 career tackles are the most ever by a Jaguars player in his first three NFL seasons.

In 2015, the Jaguars defense allowed 3.68 yards per attempt, the fifth lowest rushing average allowed in the NFL. Posluszny led the Jaguars and ranked fifth in the league with 133 tackles, according to game book statistics, while tying with Smith for the team lead with 13 tackles for loss. According to Jaguars team statistics, Smith registered a career high 128 tackles in 2015.

Under Saleh's guidance, Smith stepped in the starting lineup and ranked third among all rookies with 99 tackles, according to game book statistics, in 2014. Smith led the team with two fumble recoveries while ranking second with nine tackles for loss. After a season-ending injury to Posluszny midway through the year, LB J.T. Thomas stepped in and set a career high in tackles along with two interceptions, two tackles for loss and five passes defensed.

Prior to Jacksonville, Saleh spent three seasons (2011-13) as a defensive quality control coach for the Seattle Seahawks. During his three seasons with the Seahawks, he was responsible for assisting the defensive staff with day-to-day duties with a focus on the linebackers. Working under linebackers coach Ken Norton, Jr., Saleh aided in the development of LB K.J. Wright, LB Bobby Wagner and Super Bowl XLVIII MVP Malcolm Smith.

Before joining the Seahawks, Saleh spent six seasons with the Houston Texans, serving as a coaching intern (2005), defensive assistant (2006-08) and assistant linebackers coach (2009-10). In Houston, Saleh oversaw the growth of the Texans linebackers, including AP Defensive Rookie of the Year performances by DeMeco Ryans (2006) and Brian Cushing (2009). In 2009, the Pro Bowl duo of Ryans and Cushing were the only teammates to both rank among the league's top 10 tacklers, according to game book statistics.

Saleh joined the Texans after three seasons working in the collegiate ranks. He began his career as an offensive assistant/tight ends (2002) and defensive assistant/defensive line (2003) at Michigan State before spending one season (2004) as a defensive assistant/defensive line at Central Michigan and a brief stint (2005) at Georgia as a defensive assistant/linebackers coach.

A native of Dearborn, MI, Saleh attended Northern Michigan University where he started at tight end for four years.

Richard Hightower rejoined the 49ers as the team's special teams coordinator in 2017, having previously served as assistant special teams coach with the team in 2015. Last season, he worked with the Chicago Bears as their assistant special teams coach.

Hightower has 11 years of coaching experience including ten in the NFL. In 2016, during his stint with the Bears, the kickoff coverage team finished 7th in the NFL in opponent drive start average. Deonte Thompson led the NFL in kickoff returns with 35 and ranked second with 810 yards. Punter returner Eddie Royal scored on a nifty 65-yard touchdown on Monday Night Football vs. the Eagles. Sherrick McManis led the Bears in special-teams tackles and finished top 10 in the NFL, recording 13 stops.

In 2015, Hightower first joined San Francisco as an assistant special teams coach. That season, Hightower helped the 49ers punt coverage unit rank eighth in the NFL allowing just 6.4 yards per return, while working with rookie punter Bradley Pinion. Kicker Phil Dawson was 10th in the NFL with an 88.9 field goal percentage (tied for the fourth highest percentage of his 17-year career).

Hightower spent the 2014 season working on offense in Cleveland assisting with the receivers after working as an assistant special teams coach for four seasons in Washington (2010-13). With Washington, he worked under longtime special teams coordinator Danny Smith. Hightower also spent two seasons (2012-13) as the assistant defensive backs coach with the Redskins. Over his four seasons in Washington, the Redskins were third in the NFL in kickoff coverage, allowing just 21.2 yards per return, including leading the league in 2010 and 2011. Hightower's coaching on special teams helped Lorenzo Alexander lead the NFL with 21 special-teams tackles en route to being named the NFC's special teams player in the Pro Bowl, in 2012. Hightower was also instrumental in the development of first-year kicker Kai Forbath, who broke an NFL record by hitting his first 17 field goal attempts, leading the NFL with a 94.4 field goal percentage.

As assistant defensive back coach, Hightower helped the unit rank sixth in the NFL in interceptions (37) and tie for second in the NFL in interception-return touchdowns (7) over the two-year span. DeAngelo Hall led the NFL in defensive touchdowns (3). In 2012, the Redskins were first in the NFC in passes defensed and had four returned touchdowns.

From 2006-08, Hightower was on Houston's coaching staff as a coaching assistant (2006-07) before being elevated to special teams assistant (2008). In Houston, he served under widely respected then-special teams coordinator Joe Marciano, who has more than 30 years of experience coaching special teams. In 2008, Houston was 11th in the NFL in kickoff coverage (22.3 ypr). Punt returner Jacoby Jones finished fifth in the NFL and second in Texans single-season annals with a 12.1 average, including a franchise single-season record two punt return touchdowns. Kicker Kris Brown set franchise records for points (124), field goals made (29) and field goal percentage (.879). In 2007, the kickoff return unit featuring Jerome Mathis and Andre Davis became only the 4th team in NFL history to score four touchdowns on kickoff return in a single season.

In between his time in Houston and Washington, Hightower spent the 2009 season as wide receivers coach at the University of Minnesota. 2017 HIGHLIGHTS

- Brought down Seahawks QB Russell Wilson for an 8-yd. loss at Sea. (9/17) and now has 5.5 sacks in his career.
- Along with LB Brock Coyle, shared a 1-yd. sack of Colts QB Jacoby Brissett at Ind. (10/8). He now has 1.5 on the season and 6.0 for his career.

GOLDMINE

- In June of 2017, Armstead returned to his hometown of Sacramento to hold his second annual free youth football camp. The camp was held in Elk Grove, California and sponsors made it possible for 200 scholarships to be offered to interested kids. The kids participated in both football and conditioning drills with the players and then were allowed to ask questions to discuss not only football, but school, healthy choices, and other topics. Armstead's goal was to provide campers with a unique experience on the football field, as well as insight into the hard work and dedication that are needed to make it to the NFL. "I want the kids to enjoy themselves while also coming away learning that they can do whatever they put their mind to," said Armstead. "I want to teach them the things that helped me get where I am now like the importance of education, work ethic, and faith."

- In honor of the NFL's Crucial Catch campaign, the 49ers hosted a fashion show on Tuesday, October 17th, 2017, featuring breast cancer and pediatric cancer warriors in apparel donated by Levi's®. Armstead, along with his 49ers teammates, walked the runway with cancer warriors as they shared their stories of strength and courage with the audience.

ARMSTEAD'S GOLDEN NUGGETS

- Lists his parents, Guss and Christa, as the most influential people in his life. He also gives credit to his grandfather, Willie B. Armstead, an Air Force veteran, for instilling the value of integrity that his parents have passed along to him. "A lot of things he instilled in my dad have carried down to me. Having a family member who is more courageous than you can imagine and who served his country is a huge honor."

- Played both basketball and football at Oregon before focusing only on football in 2014.

- In December of 2016, Armstead partnered with his local church to spread holiday cheer. Armstead bought more than 100 toys at Target and gave them away to children at the UC Davis Medical Center.

- Armstead's brother, Armond, was forced to retire before ever playing a down in the NFL. After playing collegiately at USC, Armond became an All-Star for the Toronto Argonauts of the Canadian Football League, helping the team win the league's 100th Grey Cup. He went on to sign with the New England Patriots in 2013, but medical issues forced him to hang up his cleats. "The biggest thing he has told me through this process is, 'at the end of the day, it's just football.' Having a brother who played at this level makes everything less overwhelming."

- During Super Bowl 50's Media Day, Armstead joined Sacramento's ABC10 sports team as a reporter to learn what it is like to cover NFL players during one of the most hectic events of the year. Held at SAP Center in San Jose, Armstead interviewed former teammates, fans, media members and Miss Universe. "It's like a feeding frenzy - everyone running around, and being part of that frenzy was a unique experience," said Armstead during the event.

- If Armstead wasn't in the NFL, he would be playing basketball. He was a three-year starter in basketball at Pleasant Grove High School in Sacramento and played two years at the University of Oregon before focusing solely on football for the 2014 season. He entered his high school senior season listed as the number three prospect in NorCalPrep.com's Top 40 rankings for the class of 2012. "A big part of the recruiting pitch from Oregon was they were going to let me play two sports. We only lost 5 games during my time there. I wanted to go somewhere with the chance to win and be a part of something special."

- For Armstead, the NFL Draft process was a whirlwind tour. He went straight from the National Championship Game to San Diego to prepare for the NFL Combine and then to Sacramento for the Draft itself. However, his favorite part of the process was being drafted by a team so close to his hometown. "It's a dream come true. I'm blessed to be in this situation. Not a lot of other people are that close to home. Being able to play home games in front of my family is perfect for me."

Families in attendance were each handed a grocery bag of goods and a 10-plus pound turkey from the players. GOLDMINE

- In 2013, Beadles established the Zane Beadles Parade Foundation, which supports the journey of young people going through life-changing medical experiences. While playing at the University of Utah, Zane met Ryker, a seven-year-old boy with glioblastoma multiforme cancer, a common type of brain tumor. The team adopted Ryker as a member of the Utah Utes family and invited him onto the field and into the locker room during the football season. On February 24, 2007, Ryker lost his battle with cancer. Zane's family history with cancer and his fondness for Ryker inspired him to take action. During the foundation's two-year existence, they have raised more than $250,000 and have provided more than 2,000 gifts to more than 3,500 families. The nonprofit organization currently creates new experiences for the pediatric cancer patients at Brent's Place in Aurora, CO, University of Florida Health Proton Therapy Institute in Jacksonville, FL, and Ronald McDonald House in Salt Lake City, UT. For more information on The Zane Beadles Parade Foundation, visit http://zanesparade.org/.

BEADLES' GOLDEN NUGGETS

- In 2016, Beadles was selected as the Bobb McKittrick Award winner, which is given annually to the 49ers offensive lineman who best represents the courage, intensity and sacrifice displayed by the longtime offensive line coach, during his 21 years of service to the 49ers. The award was established by the 49ers in 1999, and is voted on by the offensive line.

- Founded the Zane Beadles Parade Foundation in 2013 to support the journey of young people going through life-changing medical experiences. Having established a charitable connection with each community he has played football in during his career, the foundation currently works with pediatric cancer patients at Brent's Place in Aurora, CO, University of Florida Health Proton Therapy Institute in Jacksonville, FL, and Ronald McDonald House in Salt Lake City, UT.

- Beadles founded the Pancake Block Donation Program as a part of his foundation, where he donates $250 for every pancake block by his offensive line. Zane began this program with the Broncos and carried it over to his time with the Jaguars.

- Named the Walter Payton Man of the Year selection for the Jacksonville Jaguars in 2015 and Denver Broncos in 2012, which recognizes a player for the commitment he has demonstrated in helping others in the community.

GOLDMINE (CONTINUED)

- In October of 2017, the 49ers partnered with Bags of Fun to deliver backpacks to children undergoing treatment at Lucile Packard Children's Hospital. Each bag was personalized with educational, interactive and fun toys to provide joy, laughter and relief from the stress and anxiety of being in the hospital. Beadles and his teammates spent time with patients receiving Bags of Fun and other families in the hospital to uplift them during a difficult time.

GOLDMINE (CONTINUED)

- During the Holiday Season in 2016, Beadles and teammate Joe Staley spent an afternoon with children undergoing treatment at Stanford's Lucile Packard Children's Hospital. The duo handed out Zane Beadles Parade Foundation themed stuffed elephants and showed their creative side through decorating cupcakes with the youth. Beadles continued his community work with a pancake breakfast at JW House in Santa Clara, whipping up dozens of pancakes to feed patients of local hospitals and their families.

- Beadles was named after Zane Grey, an American novelist in the 1920's who is best known for stories associated with the Western genre. "My grandpa used to collect his novels, so that's where it came from."

- In February of 2016, Beadles returned to Hillcrest High School to have his jersey retired by the school. During the ceremony in which his former high school coach, Gary Daniels, and offensive line coach, Kirk Merhish, presented him with a jersey, Beadles credited those who taught him the value of hard work - his parents, coaches and teachers. "Those people laid the foundation for me, and helped me develop the mentality that I've had throughout my career."

- Leading up to Super Bowl XLVIII as a member of the Denver Broncos, Beadles fulfilled a lifelong dream by appearing and dancing on "The Ellen DeGeneres Show." After discussing the Super Bowl and his foundation, Shutterfly, the philanthropic partner of the show, presented the Zane Beadles Parade Foundation with a check for $10,000.

GOLDMINE

- Beathard comes from a family steeped in football tradition. His grandfather, Bobby Beathard, spent 38 years working in the NFL, including 22 seasons as general manager of the Washington Redskins (1978-88) and San Diego Chargers (1989-2000). As a general manager of the Redskins, he served as the architect of Washington's Super Bowl winning teams in 1982 (Super Bowl XVII) and 1987 (Super Bowl XXII).

- As part of the 49ers annual Thanksgiving celebrations, Beathard and his teammates visited Cityteam San Jose to serve a holiday feast to over 300 people in need. Guests enjoyed turkey along with all of the usual holiday sides, while getting to know the 49ers.

- During his time at Iowa, Beathard earned the nickname "Sunshine" from Hawkeye fans because his long, flowing hair resembled the character with the same nickname from the football movie "Remember The Titans." In 2015, he cut off his hair and donated it to Wigs For Kids, a non-profit organization that makes wigs to support for children who have lost their hair due to medical issues at no cost to children or their families.
- In August of 2016, Beathard joined his younger brother, singer/songwriter Tucker Beathard, on stage at the first-ever concert at Iowa's Kinnick Stadium. Tucker, one of country music's rising stars, saw his song "Rock On" become a top-10 hit on Billboard's country chart. While performing a new track called "I'll Take On The World With You," which he co-wrote about the bond between he and his siblings, Tucker brought his older brother and former childhood bandmate onto the stage for a moment the two will never forget. "Ever since C.J. started at Iowa, playing a show at Kinnick Stadium was one of those unreachable dreams that you never think will actually come true," said Tucker. "Our whole family lives for sports and music…it's what bonds us together going back to my grandpa and his years in the NFL. It was awesome to be invited to the Back Porch Revival and to see those two worlds collide in front of a stadium full of people. I'll never forget it!"

2017 HIGHLIGHTS

- Registered his first career multi-sack game vs. NYG (11/12), notching 2.0 sacks of Giants QB Eli Manning. Also tallied his first career FF on a strip-sack of Manning.

GOLDMINE

- In his hometown of Greensboro, GA, Blair volunteers at Relay For Life, a branch of the American Cancer Society. The subject of cancer is near to Blair's heart, as his grandmother, Annie Ruth Peek, passed away from colon cancer while he was growing up. In the future, Blair aims to start his own foundation with the goal of creating a community where people who are going through life-changing experiences can call home. "I lost my grandmother to colon cancer. I lost my grandfather to a heart attack. My stepfather was in a car accident and is now a paraplegic. So, those people have a special place in my heart and I want to get involved in helping with causes like those."

- Blair cites the transition from 8th grade to high school, and specifically a conversation he had with his band director, as a key moment that stoked his competitive fire. Entering the 9th grade, his band director wanted him to continue playing the tuba in the school's band and not play football because he wouldn't see the field as a freshman. That year, Blair became a starter on varsity. "That's definitely one moment that sticks out and helped me develop in the football world," said Blair.

BLAIR'S GOLDEN NUGGETS

- Blair volunteers at the Relay for Life in his hometown of Greensboro, GA. One day, he hopes to start his own foundation that would create a community for people going through life-changing experiences.

- Growing up, Blair's first sport was basketball, not football. His father put a basketball in his crib when he was one year old and Blair only switched to football once he realized his size was better suited for the gridiron.

GOLDMINE

- Even as a young child, Victor Bolden Jr. remembers he would always be itching to play football. "Growing up that's all I wanted to do was play football," said Bolden Jr. "I didn't really start playing until eighth grade. I was itching to play." His father, Victor Bolden Sr. first introduced his son to the game as a child and immediately became his biggest influence on the field. "He was the first one to teach me the game and he's been there since day one with anything I've wanted to do." While Bolden Jr.'s father is his main influence on the field, when it comes to his biggest influence off the field, he gives that role to his mother. "She supports me with anything I do," said Bolden Jr. "Whether it be school, sports, she just wants me to give out full effort and give it everything I have."

BOLDEN JR.'S GOLDEN NUGGETS

- His mother, Zelda, holds the school record in both the 100 and 200-meter hurdles at Mt. San Antonio College (Walnut, CA).

- As a senior in 2016, despite receiving consideration for multiple national athletic awards which included the watch list for both the Doak Walker Award and Maxwell Award, it was an award for what he does off the field that Breida felt most honored by. Breida was announced as a finalist for the 2016 Senior Class Award after making the Georgia Southern Eagles' Honor Roll and being involved in the community by reading and speaking to local elementary schools in Statesboro, GA as well as back home in Florida. "One of the best people I've ever been around," said Georgia Southern Head Coach Tyson Summers when asked about Breida. The 2016 Senior Class Award is given to a senior who has various notable achievements in four areas: community, classroom, character, and competition. "For them to see me as one of the role models was pretty cool for me," said Breida.

- Breida honors his parents, calling them the reason he is where he is today. "They mean everything to me. I could be somewhere else." said Breida who was adopted the day after he was born by Terri and Mike Breida. Both permanently disabled, Terri and Mike sacrificed to make sure Matt and his brother had the best life they could offer them. According to Breida, "They gave me everything that they could even though we didn't have a lot. Adoption or no adoption, family is family. I see them as my parents, from day one. No matter what. That's mom and dad to me. I would do anything for them."

2017 HIGHLIGHTS

- The 49ers offense rushed for 159 yds. on 19 carries (8.37 avg.) at Sea. (9/17). The team's 8.37 avg. yds. per carry was the third-highest avg. against the Seahawks all-time and it also marked the sixth-highest single-game avg. by the team in franchise history.

GOLDMINE

- 49ers Wish guest, Steven Cain, has grown up with a love for the 49ers that began at a young age. He dreamed of meeting the red and gold in person, particularly his favorite player, Trent Brown. Steven's dream came true on November 4th when Brown welcomed Steven to the 49ers family during a Make-A-Wish visit to Levi's® Stadium. Brown made sure Steven had a once in a lifetime experience, welcoming him into the huddle after practice, taking him on an a behind-the-scenes tour of the locker room, and enjoying lunch with Steven and his family, talking about everything from school to sports to the importance of family and support systems. The new friendship was solidified at the game on November 5th when the two stood side by side at the 35-yard line just before kickoff, exchanging encouraging words and a promise to stay in touch, ending with an expression of gratitude from Brown for Steven's courageous spirit serving as his inspiration when he takes the field.

BROWN'S GOLDEN NUGGETS

- Started his collegiate career by playing two years at Georgia Military College before transferring to Florida.
- In 2016, Brown teamed up with Walmart to give Youth Uprising students and Children from the UCSF Benioff Children's Hospital San Francisco a holiday shopping spree. The event, entitled "Trent Brown's 77 Ways to Care Christmas," paired Brown and his parents with local students for a holiday shopping spree at the Milpitas Walmart store. The event was inspired by Brown's father, Reginald Sr., a captain with the Albany (GA) Police Department who regularly participated in APD's "Shop with a Cop" events. Trent Brown's 77 Ways to Care Christmas provided gifts for an additional 30 children from the UCSF Benioff Children's Hospital San Francisco.

- When Buckner was 13 years old, his father, George, was involved in a motorcycle accident that left him in a coma for six months. Upon his awakening, George summoned DeForest to his bedside, where the two had a 'man-to-man' conversation, as his mother, Maria, puts it. After the life-changing event and heartfelt conversation, that is when Buckner believes he became a man and took more responsibility with his family. He became a mentor to his younger brother, Kenya, and began to understand the values his father had instilled in him. "He was hard on us, and disciplined us, shaped us," Buckner said. "He taught us about respect, that it's earned and you have to treat everyone around you like you want to be treated."
- As part of the 49ers annual Thanksgiving celebrations, Buckner and his teammates visited Cityteam San Jose to serve a holiday feast to over 300 people in need. Guests enjoyed turkey along with all of the usual holiday sides, while getting to know the 49ers. "This is the season of giving and Thanksgiving is all about being thankful," said Buckner. "I'm very thankful for what I have in life and the blessings that came my way. But some people aren't as fortunate. Being able to give back and serve food is a great feeling and it's a blessing."

BUCKNER'S GOLDEN NUGGETS

- His first name is pronounced duh-FORE-ist.
- Named the 49ers Thomas Herrion Memorial Award winner for the 2015 season. The award, as voted on by the coaches, was established in 2005 by 49ers owners Denise and John York and is presented to a rookie or first-year player who best represents the dream of Thomas Herrion.
- While Buckner was 13 years old, his father, George, was involved in a motorcycle accident that left him in a coma for six months. Buckner cites this life-changing event as the time he became a man and took more responsibility with his family.
- As a senior at Oregon, was named Pac-12 Defensive Player of the Year and earned the Morris Trophy award, a prestigious honor voted on by opposing Pac-12 offensive linemen.

- In July of 2017, Buckner returned to his hometown of Waianae, HI, to host a free noncontact youth football clinic at Waianae High School. "Having my first camp back in my hometown means a lot to me because this is where it all started," said Buckner. "Where I grew up shaped a big part of my life and having the opportunity to give back to my community means the world to me. I just want the youth in our community to see that dreams do come true."

- During his time at Oregon, Buckner used art as an outlet for his emotions outside of football, even earning the nickname "Dr. DeFo" from his art professor for his passion, focus and patience with his pieces. Buckner enrolled in a class called "Art of the Athlete," which provides engagement for student-athletes through the visual arts and has the student-athletes help in the Jordan Schnitzer Museum of Art workshops for children with disabilities. During the open exhibition at the end of the class, Buckner was awarded with the highest honor, the breakout artist award for his piece titled "King of Pop" showing himself in a Michael Jackson type pose that was spray painted on vinyl.

DL » 6-4 » 270 » FLORIDA STATE

2017 HIGHLIGHTS

- Brought down Seahawks QB Russell Wilson for an 8-yd. loss at Sea. (9/17). The sack marked the 5th of his career.
- Along with DeForest Buckner, the pair combined on a 3-yd. sack of Titans QB Marcus Mariota vs. Ten. (12/17).

GOLDMINE

- Carradine grew up in a rough neighborhood in Cincinnati, where many of the people he knew got into bad situations with drugs and violence. He grew up without much money and his family struggled to put food on the table. Through it all, he learned to walk the other way. "I saw how certain situations can end up. Talking to the older people and coaches, they told me to do the right thing," he said. "Good things happen when you try to do the right things. That was the biggest thing I learned." Football was the biggest opportunity which propelled Carradine out of the area, receiving a college scholarship and earning a degree in sociology from Florida State. "People kept telling me, 'Man, I wish I had that opportunity to play this sport.' I'd seen my opportunity and knew the chances I had, knew what I would be doing if I didn't accomplish these goals. That's why I thrive on football. I give it all I've got and I try to play every play like it's my last. I respect this game because of what this game has gotten me through. I take advantage of it by doing the right thing, being a positive player and being good to my teammates and for the organization."
- After going through a rough childhood, Carradine has a passion for telling his story to kids. He volunteers his time at charity foundations and football camps. "If kids can hear the importance of doing the right thing, if I can help them succeed in life, if they can get it when they're young, they'll live up to those things instead of trying to get knowledge as they got older," he said. "Then it might be too late, because they've already been on their own in certain situations."

CARRADINE'S GOLDEN NUGGETS

- His last name is pronounced CARE-uh-deen.
- Signed a one-year contract extension through 2017 with the 49ers in September of 2016.
- Given the nickname "Tank" as a young child by his mom because he always carried a toy tank with him.
- Recorded the first two sacks of his NFL career last season at Sea. (12/14/14), bringing down Seahawks QB Russell Wilson.
- Visited Haiti in conjunction with Convoy of Hope in 2015, working together to teach healthy eating habits and sustainable agriculture techniques to local families.
- Loves unique animals and once owned a large collection of exotic pets, including snakes, lizards, ferrets, a monkey, a bird, piranhas and a shark.
- Began collegiate career at Butler Community College (KS) before enrolling at Florida State.
- In 2010, earned First-Team NJCAA All-America, All-Kansas Jayhawk Community College Conference and All-Region VI honors and was named Region VI Defensive Player of the Year.

- Along with 49ers TEs Vance McDonald and Garrett Celek, visited Haiti in conjunction with Convoy of Hope during the 2015 offseason, worked together to teach healthy eating habits and sustainable agriculture techniques to local families. The players also visited an orphanage and local schools to spend time with underprivileged youth. "Being able to be around the kids and see the excitement on their face. I see what kind of stuff they go through and I see how they live. I realize they can use a lot of help and I've been more than fortunate to be able to help them."

- Born Cornellius Carradine, he was given the nickname "Tank" by his mom. He always used to have a little toy army tank with him. "I could never go anywhere without that army tank," he said. "I just had to have it with me, and I used to always push people over, try to run over people." His mom still has that tank.
- Just prior to entering high school, Carradine, a Cincinnati native, frequented Bengals games every chance he could. "At the time, I was playing Pee-Wee football and I was also a big fan of Justin Smith. I remember many of the players, including Justin, came and painted our youth center, so I got a chance to meet him." Carradine continued, "He was my favorite player, first-round draft pick. It's crazy that I played with him. I always wanted to talk football with him and ask him questions, I'm always asked him about how to identify run or pass, tips that the offensive line give away, things like that."
- Carradine loves animals and once owned a large collection of exotic pets, including snakes, lizards, ferrets, a monkey, a bird, piranhas and a shark. "I could see myself doing animal research working in a zoo," he said.

The initiative was a culmination of collaborative work between the NFL and players across the league. Celek chose to support the 49ers Foundation Youth Football Program. A regular participant in the community, Celek believes youth sports are an important vehicle to develop character, while teaching valuable life lessons to support student athletes. "I wanted to utilize my platform to show kids that anything is possible through hard work and dedication, and that education is the key to opportunity," said Celek.

- In October of 2017, the 49ers partnered with Bags of Fun to deliver backpacks to children undergoing treatment at Lucile Packard Children's Hospital. Each bag was personalized with educational, interactive and fun toys to provide joy, laughter and relief from the stress and anxiety of being in the hospital. Celek and his teammates spent time with patients receiving Bags of Fun and other families in the hospital to uplift them during a difficult time.

- The 49ers partnered with Furry Friends Pet Assisted Therapy Services for animal therapy, while providing confidence building activities for students in the Leland High School special needs program in an effort to erase the stigma attached to special needs. Celek and his teammates spent time with students with autism, mental illness and learning disabilities as they play board games, working on social skills including conversational queues and eye contact through the hands-on activity. Players will also partner with animal therapy dogs to uplift students through one-on-one interactions. "There are things that are more important in life," said Celek. "Eventually, football's going to be over for me, and it can't be my entire life. I need other things that make me happy in life, too. This does."

- In honor of the NFL's Crucial Catch campaign, the 49ers hosted a fashion show on Tuesday, October 17th, 2017, featuring breast cancer and pediatric cancer warriors in apparel donated by Levi's®. Celek, along with his 49ers teammates, walked the runway with cancer warriors as they shared their stories of strength and courage with the audience.

- As part of Salute to Service Month, Celek, along with his teammates and general manager, John Lynch, visited the USO office at the San Jose Military Entrance Processing Station to spend time with military applicants and their families as they took the Oath of Enlistment and shipped off to basic training.

- Celek has a strong passion for the packaging industry, which he majored in at Michigan State, and plans to go into the business in the future. The growing industry looks to cut shipping costs on products and is commonplace in the food and medical fields. "There's so many different areas you can get into, it's crazy. I enjoy the science behind it. It was a great major for me to choose and the possibilities are endless."

- As part of the 49ers annual Thanksgiving celebrations, Celek and his teammates visited Cityteam San Jose to serve a holiday feast to over 300 people in need. Guests enjoyed turkey along with all of the usual holiday sides, while getting to know the 49ers.

- Along with TE Vance McDonald and DT Tank Carradine, visited Haiti in conjunction with Convoy of Hope during the 2015 offseason, working together to teach healthy eating habits and sustainable agriculture techniques to local families. "We've been to an orphanage, we've been to a farm, we've been to schools. It's a beautiful country and these are beautiful people. I'm glad I had this opportunity."

- Football runs in the bloodlines of the Celek family. Garrett's older brother, Brent, plays tight end for the Philadelphia Eagles. Growing up, the brothers were constantly involved in athletics. "My dad was always pushing us just to be into sports. As long as we were doing something and we were having fun with it, he was the happiest guy in the world," Garrett said. He didn't begin playing football until high school, but Brent's success became motivation for him. "He got a scholarship to Cincinnati my freshman year in high school," Garrett said. "Right then I had my goals set. I've got to do what my brother did. Honestly, I've been trying to follow in his footsteps and because of him I'm here today. I wouldn't be who I am without him."

- Along with some of his teammates, Celek headed to San Francisco in October of 2015 to kick off Fleet Week aboard the USS Somerset. During the afternoon on board, Celek participated in drills with the troops, took a tour of the ship, ate dinner with the crew and watched as some local Bay Area natives were sworn into the Navy. "It's just good to give back to some of these guys because they do so much for us," said Celek at the time. "We're all really appreciative of who they are and what they're about." GOLDMINE (CONTINUED)

- As part of Salute to Service Month, Colbert, along with his teammates and general manager, John Lynch, visited the USO office at the San Jose Military Entrance Processing Station to spend time with military applicants and their families as they took the Oath of Enlistment and shipped off to basic training.

- Colbert overcame adversity at age 10 when he was living in Wichita Falls, TX. While racing a friend on his bike, Colbert ran a stop sign and was hit by a car, went through the windshield and suffered life-threatening injuries, falling into a coma for more than a week. His father, Adrian Sr., became motivated to make a change and moved them 90 miles south to Mineral Wells, TX, to escape from the gang environment that Adrian Sr., was apart of in Wichita Falls.

- After moving to Mineral Wells, Colbert didn't quite feel at home, but found additional support from the Clarke family, who treated him like a son of their own. Colbert was introduced to the family when he was approached by one of the three daughters in the family, Katy, asking if he needed a ride while walking the three miles home from school. He became part of their family, referring to them as parents and sisters, and even put his number in Mrs. Clarke's phone as 'Adrian – my adopted son.' "It made it easier for me to call [Mineral Wells] home," Colbert said. "Not only having my family, but a family that was already established here that loved me just like my family loved me."

- In June of 2017, Day held his Inaugural "Sheldon's Daylight Camp" at Warren Central High School in Indianapolis, IN. Over 150 kids attended the free four-day football camp which Day had been anxious to host since the day he was drafted. "I know most of these kids out here on the east side are probably like I was," said Day. "No way I'm going to charge them to come here. They should just have fun here and be with me." The camp included a visit to Notre Dame so kids would not only gain football knowledge, but also be informed of different opportunities to further their education and attend college. "This is fun for me. It's a chance for me to give back and have some fun with them. When I see the kids smiling, that's a great thing. That's why we are here."

- Day joined the Florida Department of Transportation's "Alert Today, Alive Tomorrow" campaign during International Walk to School Day in October of 2017. Alongside kids that were walking to school in the Jacksonville area, Day assisted in teaching them the health benefits they were receiving by walking to school and showed them how to get there safely.

DAY'S GOLDEN NUGGETS

- As a Senior at Notre Dame in 2015, was the recipient of multiple All-America honors, which included USA Today First-Team All-American, Associated Press Second-Team All-American, and Phil Steele Second-Team All-American.
- Enrolled early at Notre Dame, starting classes in January of 2012 after graduating from high school in December of 2011.
- Since being drafted in 2016, has continued to build opportunities for youth in the east side of Indianapolis communities through various educational and athletic programs.

Whether you're living in an impoverished community without access to clean water or facing the juvenile justice system, you deserve a chance."

Having access to safe, sustainable housing and education are two causes I am extremely passionate about. Through New Story Charity and PACE Center for Girls, these nonprofits work in different ways to set up individuals and families for success. Whether you're living in an impoverished community without access to clean water or facing the juvenile justice system, you deserve a chance.

- During the 2017 offseason, Douzable visited Haiti to see the impact of his donations to New Story, a non-profit that builds safe, thriving communities in less fortunate countries such as Haiti. Douzable decided to take it one step further than a donation and visited a new community in Haiti that was recently built by New Story as a result of donations such as his.

- In 2016, Douzable, in conjunction with the United Way of Buffalo & Erie County, organized a dinner and a shopping spree for 41 youngsters along with his former Buffalo Bills teammates. "This is something I try and do every year," said Douzable. "I've done it since 2010 when I was playing with the Jacksonville Jaguars and I took it to New York with me. Every holiday season my two big things are turkey drives and getting the D-line and linebackers together to donate to help kids that are doing well in school and help them buy gifts for Christmas." Each child received a $350 gift card that would let them purchase Christmas gifts not only for themselves, but for their family also.

- In 2013, Douzable joined Cincinnati Bengals LB Michael Johnson and several other NFL players at the Fourth Annual Michael Johnson Youth and Cheer Camp in Selma, AL. The youth were coached and went through drills with NFL players, the camp also taught aspiring cheerleaders to learn skills and routines from award winning cheer coaches from Troy University. Douzable gave life tips to over 100 kids ages 8-17 as he took them through drills, and shared words of encouragement, urging them to not only try their best in football, but to work hard and pursue anything their passions.

GOLDMINE

- In 2016, Dumervil partnered with New Story, a San Francisco non-profit, to pledge the funding for the building of 58 new homes in areas of Haiti recovering from the 2010 earthquake. "It was a special experience to give back and visit where my family is from," he said. "Watching families move in after being homeless for six-plus years was incredible." As one of more than 50 NFL players of Haitian descent or were Haitian born, Dumervil plans to expand the community to over 250 homes funded by NFL players and corporate partners.

- Throughout his career in Denver, Dumervil worked with, made appearances at and helped fundraise for Open Door Youth Gang Alternatives, the oldest anti-gang program in the Denver Metropolitan Area. He spoke to and encouraged children to follow their dreams with discipline and focus while maintaining a caring and respectful attitude towards others. Dumervil acted as a celebrity bartender at a Denver bar with tips and proceeds benefitting the program. "I used to be one of these kids coming to the park and trying to do some after school programs to stay [off] the streets and stay out of trouble. So I think this is just a great deal. I think a place like this, an atmosphere, this time of brother-sisterhood can help kids at this age prosper."

2017: NFL Defensive Rookie of the Month (November)

GOLDMINE

- Foster's positive attitude and commitment to excellence have long been noticed by teammates and coaches. Former Alabama defensive coordinator and current Georgia head coach Kirby Smart lauded Foster's ability, saying, "When you have a guy who's really talented and he's coachable, it's kind of why we do this as coaches because you get to enjoy being around a kid who's grown up a lot in the last three years. So I've really enjoyed coaching him."
- Foster earned his degree from Alabama in human environmental science. He was one of 16 football players to graduate in the December 2016 ceremonies before taking on Washington in the College Football Playoff. Foster became the first member of his family to earn a college degree.
- Foster credits joining the fraternity, Omega Psi Phi, in the spring of 2015 as the turning point in his college career. Foster said at the time, "It really helped me lock in. I've matured a lot. I just slowed down and got my life together."

FOSTER'S GOLDEN NUGGETS

- Named the 2016 Butkus Award Winner, presented annually to the nation's top linebacker at the college level.
- Despite attending the University of Alabama, has a tattoo of Auburn University's letters on his arm as a tribute to his cousin, Ladarious Phillips, who passed away in 2012. Growing up in Auburn, AL, the two had always dreamed of playing football together.

In partnership with "Super Baskets of Hope," Garçon, along with teammates QB Brian Hoyer and RB Carlos Hyde, distributed baskets and totes filled with toys, educational materials, games, craft items, music, stuffed animals, gift cards, and more to hospitalized children and their families at a local Bay Area Hospital. In 2016, Garçon, as a part of his foundation, visited Haiti with former teammate Ricky Jean Francois to deliver medical supplies to help the recovery from Hurricane Matthew. He began his college career at Norwich University in Northfield, VT before transferring to Mount Union University, where he helped the Purple Raiders win two Division III National Championships. Garçon was drafted by the Indianapolis Colts in the 6th round (205th overall) in the 2008 NFL Draft.

- NFL players once again had the chance to share the causes that are important to them during all Week 13 games, as part of the NFL's My Cause, My Cleats campaign. The initiative was a culmination of collaborative work between the NFL and players across the league. "There are 50,000 women nationwide living on the streets without access to pads or tampons, not including cis women, trans men, or gender non-conforming humans," said Garnett. "A person's socioeconomic status should not strip them of their dignity and access to what should be a basic human right, not a privilege.

- The 49ers partnered with Furry Friends Pet Assisted Therapy Services for animal therapy, while providing confidence building activities for students in the Leland High School special needs program in an effort to erase the stigma attached to special needs. Garnett and his teammates spent time with students with autism, mental illness and learning disabilities as they play board games, working on social skills including conversational queues and eye contact through the hands-on activity. Players will also partner with animal therapy dogs to uplift students through one-on-one interactions.

GARNETT'S GOLDEN NUGGETS

- Was teammates for two seasons (2014-15) with 49ers 2017 first-round selection (3rd overall), DL Solomon Thomas at Stanford.
- Garnett's father, Scott, spent three seasons in the NFL (1984-85, 1987) and played for the 49ers during the 1985 season.
- At Stanford, Garnett majored in human biology with the goal of becoming a trauma surgeon after his NFL career is over.
- As a senior at Stanford (2015), was the recipient of the Outland Trophy as the nation's most outstanding lineman and the Morris Trophy Award, a prestigious honor voted on by opposing Pac-12 defensive linemen.

- In April of 2017, Garnett, along with fellow 49ers teammates, attended the Seventh Annual Prom at UCSF Benioff Children's Hospital San Francisco in Mission Bay, with over 200 teen patients and their friends. He enjoyed a "Masquerade Ball" with photo booths, music, dancing, dining and more. This special evening allowed patients to participate in a milestone that they may miss as a result of diagnosis or treatment. The children were decked out in prom fashions and left the event with a sweatshirt hoodie and a professional prom photo.

- At Stanford, Garnett majored in human biology with the goal of becoming a trauma surgeon after his NFL career is over. He has already shadowed staff in an ER, further fueling his interest, during which he says he got a better sense of the adrenaline and the way an emergency department works together. "I'm drawn to help someone that could be on the brink of death," Garnett said. "I'm a guy who can handle the gore and I feel like I have the aptitude where I can make a difference for people."

- Garnett's father, Scott (pictured right), played collegiately at the University of Washington and was drafted in the eighth round (218th overall) by the Denver Broncos in the 1984 NFL Draft. He spent three seasons in the NFL (1984-85, 1987) and played in three games for the 49ers during the 1985 season.
- Garnett likes to listen to hip-hop and rap music during his free time but when it comes to preparing for a football game, he listens to heavy metal bands such as Rage Against the Machine and Metallica. "I like to get to a different place and get amped up before the games. It's interesting because I don't listen to it outside of football pregame. So, it really gets me in the moment for the game and my body kind of knows, 'We're listening to this music, it's game time.'"

- On August 18th, 2017, as part of 49ers partnership with the Make-A-Wish Foundation, Goodwin spent the day with Austin DeMello, a 12-year-old 49ers fan from San Diego. The two toured the 49ers facility, had lunch together and even played a game of Madden 17, which Austin won. Austin was diagnosed with a brain tumor, but he and his family don't let that stop him from fighting and enjoying each day. "The fact that Austin's family comes out here, they're supporting him, loving him and not giving up on him, I love that," Goodwin said, "because my mom didn't give up on my sister." Goodwin's older sister, Deja, suffers from cerebral palsy and is unable to walk. Before Austin and his family went back to San Diego, Marquise left him with a message to remember when times get tough. "Just know that you've got a lot of people that love you and care about you," Goodwin told Austin, "including the 49ers."

- As part of the 49ers annual Thanksgiving celebrations, Goodwin and his teammates visited Cityteam San Jose to serve a holiday feast to over 300 people in need. Guests enjoyed turkey along with all of the usual holiday sides, while getting to know the 49ers.

- In 2012, Goodwin won the long jump title at the 2012 U.S. Olympic Trials (27-4.25) and finished 10th in the London Olympics. By qualifying for the Olympics, he became the first collegian to win both the Olympic Trials and the NCAA Outdoor long-jump competition in the same year since 1960. Goodwin was a two-time NCAA long jump champion, seven-time All-American and five-time Big 12 champion in the long jump during his career at the University of Texas.

- Goodwin began his track & field career at Rowlett (TX) HS, where he was a two-time World Junior Champion (long jump, 4x100m), seven-time Texas 5A State Champion [long jump (3x), triple jump (2x) and 4x100m (2x)] and two-time Texas Gatorade Track & Field Athlete of the Year.

- During the 2013 NFL Combine, Goodwin posted the fastest 40-yd. dash time among all participants, running the distance in 4.27 seconds. His time is tied for the 5th fastest 40-yd. dash ever recorded at the Combine.

GOLDMINE

- In 2014, Hall partnered with the "Learning Is Cool" program and visited the Academy of Multilingual Immersion Studies in Cincinnati, OH. Hall spent the day encouraging children to strive to be the best they can be in the classroom as well as at home, showing them that enjoying school can lead to a bright future.
- In 2007, Hall began the Leon Hall Foundation after he was drafted. The foundation's sole purpose is to help underprivileged children in any way possible.
- Since 2010, Hall has played a major role assisting the Children's Home of Northern Kentucky for Boys, having taken numerous visits during Christmas time. He takes time to encourage them, and with the help of Toys "R" Us, he gives away hundreds of toys. "Every kid's situation is different," Hall says. "But I can relate to them about not being in a secure household. It's a big part of the focus of my foundation. It's how I grew up and what I've been around my whole life."

- Hall hosted a free football clinic in 2008 at South Avondale Field in Cincinnati, OH, for over 300 kids ages 8-16. The free clinic provided youth the opportunity to work on their football skills, sportsmanship, and teamwork skills, while building self-esteem both on and off the field. Each participant received a T-shirt and refreshments as well as had the opportunity to meet Leon and some of his teammates. After the camp, Mercy Hospitals provided free health screenings for all parents.

HALL'S GOLDEN NUGGETS

- His 26 INTs as a member of the Cincinnati Bengals ranks 4th in team history.

The initiative was a culmination of collaborative work between the NFL and players across the league. "I want to honor and show respect to my mother and her battle with Pancreatic Cancer," said Harold. "My message to those affected by the disease: Stay strong and know that you are loved."

- Harold was "Mr. Everything" for his high school team, playing quarterback, running back, wide receiver and defensive end at Ocean Lakes HS. Racking up 1,146 yards and 20 touchdowns in a wildcat offense, he was named first-team All-Tidewater, the Beach District Defensive Player of the Year and a first-team all-district selection at wide receiver and defensive end.

- Late in 2010 and early 2011 was an incredibly trying time for the Harold family. In a three-month span, Eli's brother Walter unexpectedly lost his son, Forrest, and Eli's mother, Sheila Korvette, passed away from cancer. In the wake of the family's tragedy, Harold moved in with Walter, the closest thing he had to a father figure. After becoming a highly-touted prospect and recording his first sack at the University of Virginia, Harold dedicated the milestone to his older brother.

- In July of 2016, Harold teamed with Seattle Seahawks safety Kam Chancellor and other NFL players to host the Inaugural "VA's Next Up" football camp. The camp was attended by more than 150 middle and high school athletes/students which focused on life skills, financial literacy, NCAA rules and regulations, entrepreneurship, teamwork and communication. Said Harold on the genesis of the event, "I reached out to Kam and thought it would be a great idea to get some of the guys from the 757 to start a camp to reach these kids," he said. "We wanted to reach back out to the community and give back to the kids. We also wanted to let them know that they can do anything they want to do in life."

- One of many interests Harold has, his sneaker collection is the one that he is the most passionate about. A collector of more than 250 pairs of shoes, Harold's collection ranges from Air Jordan's to "Anything red and suede," which particularly catch his eyes. His sneaker interest translates to his cleats on the field. "If you look good, you feel good, you play good. That's what it's all about," said Harold.

TE » 6-4 » 247 » LOUISVILLE

GOLDMINE

- In September, Hikutini joined fellow teammates as the 49ers hosted the Annual 49ers Mentorship Academy in partnership with USA Football. The Mentorship Academy is a three-step program designed to develop the skills necessary for players to succeed and lead on and off the field. Alongside other 49ers rookies, Hikutini was able to spend the evening leading local high school football players through a fun-filled evening of leadership development. Said Hikutini, "It was really cool being able to tell my story and play a part in teaching these young guys leadership skills on and off the field. What more can you ask for?"

- Hikutini credits his parents in developing his drive to succeed on and off the field. After attending FBS Sacramento State and redshirting as a freshman, Hikutini transferred to City College of San Francico in efforts to earn a scholarship to a bigger program. "I have to give it to my mom and my dad. They both pushed me, each in their own way," said Hikutini who was able to earn a scholarship to the University of Louisville after just one season at CCSF. "I'm an only child. Obviously you meet people and make friends in high school and college, but it's my parents who have always been the most influential people in my life."

HIKUTINI'S GOLDEN NUGGETS

- His last name is pronounced hick-uh-TEA-knee
- From 2012-13, attended Sacramento State and played alongside current 49ers practice squad member, WR DeAndre Carter.

- NFL players once again had the chance to share the causes that are important to them during all Week 13 games, as part of the NFL's My Cause, My Cleats campaign. The initiative was a culmination of collaborative work between the NFL and players across the league. "I want to advocate for animals because they are a source of happiness to those around them, like my dog, Max, is for me," said Hyde.

- As part of the 49ers annual Thanksgiving celebrations, Hyde and his teammates visited Cityteam San Jose to serve a holiday feast to over 300 people in need. Guests enjoyed turkey along with all of the usual holiday sides, while getting to know the 49ers.

- In May of 2017, in partnership with "Super Baskets of Hope," Hyde, along with teammates WR Pierre Garçon and QB Brian Hoyer, distributed baskets and totes filled with toys, educational materials, games, craft items, music, stuffed animals, gift cards, and more to hospitalized children and their families at a local Bay Area Hospital. Parents were given a Basket of Hope, donated by Vera Bradley, filled with items to nourish them physically, mentally, emotionally, and spiritually. Hyde spent time with the children and their families while delivering the gift baskets in an effort to spread joy and inspiration during a difficult time.

- In 2016, Hyde partnered with the Boys & Girls Clubs of Silicon Valley on a new program that ran during the 2016 NFL season for fans to join Hyde in support of the Clubs' programs for kids. Fans shared in the success of Hyde and the 49ers offense through a unique, performance based campaign called Touchdowns for Kids. Fans pledged any dollar amount for every touchdown the 49ers score during the 2016 NFL season. At the end of each game, pledges turned into donations that directly benefited the youth that attend the clubs.

- Hyde and the other members of the 49ers 2014 rookie draft class visited Oak Grove High School to launch the "49ers Mentorship Program." The program focuses on character development through mentorship and accountability. Hyde and his teammates spent the afternoon with the boy's varsity football team and taught them about the mentor/mentee relationship and the pros and cons of posting on social media.

- After spending his first year of high school in Cincinnati, Hyde moved to Naples, FL, to live with his grandparents. "It was definitely for the better. I was headed down the wrong route in Cincinnati. Moving to Naples got me on the right route and back into sports and I was fortunate enough to earn a scholarship." After scoring his first NFL touchdown against Dallas in Week 1 of the 2014 season, Hyde gave his grandmother, Irma Butler, the ball to commemorate the occasion.

- After graduating from Boise State, James continued to give back and inspire youth in the Boise, ID community. Along with more than 20 other past and present members of the Boise State football program, James hosted the Eighth Annual Gridiron Dreams Football Academy in Boise. The football camp for middle and high school students was the largest to date for the Gridiron Dreams Football Academy. Hundreds of middle and high schoolers participated in the camp, which was held at multiple locations throughout Boise including Harmon Killebrew Memorial Field and Albertsons Stadium.

- In October of 2017, the 49ers partnered with Bags of Fun to deliver backpacks to children undergoing treatment at Lucile Packard Children's Hospital. Each bag was personalized with educational, interactive and fun toys to provide joy, laughter and relief from the stress and anxiety of being in the hospital. James and his teammates spent time with patients receiving Bags of Fun and other families in the hospital to uplift them during a difficult time.

JAMES' GOLDEN NUGGET

- As a senior at Boise State in 2016, earned Second-Team All-Mountain West honors and led the Broncos with three interceptions and finished second on the team with 80 tackles.

GOLDMINE (CONTINUED)

- As part of Salute to Service Month, James, along with his temmates and general manager, John Lynch, visited the USO office at the San Jose Military Entrance Processing Station to spend time with military applicants and their families as they took the Oath of Enlistment and shipped off to basic training.

- The 49ers partnered with Furry Friends Pet Assisted Therapy Services for animal therapy, while providing confidence building activities for students in the Leland High School special needs program in an effort to erase the stigma attached to special needs. James and his teammates spent time with students with autism, mental illness and learning disabilities as they play board games, working on social skills including conversational queues and eye contact through the hands-on activity. Players will also partner with animal therapy dogs to uplift students through one-on-one interactions. "This event was touching to me, because growing up my mom worked in resource classes at different high schools.," said James. "She always worked with autistic kids, so what I want to do after football is create housing developments for autistic adults so they can live and have as much help as they need to thrive."

- NFL players once again had the chance to share the causes that are important to them during all Week 13 games, as part of the NFL's My Cause, My Cleats campaign. The initiative was a culmination of collaborative work between the NFL and players across the league. Johnson is supporting Lucile Packard Children's Hospital for My Cause, My Cleats, where he is an active volunteer. "After connecting with a child undergoing treatment at the hospital, I realized these diseases affect the whole family," said Johnson. "My message to the children in treatment and their families: Your courageous fight and perseverance do not go unnoticed!"

- During the 2016 offseason, Johnson formed a special relationship with Will Randleman, a young man who suffered a traumatic neck injury while playing youth football in the Bay Area. Initially, Johnson was expecting his visit with Will to be a somber one. However, he was greeted by something unexpected. "He was in such amazing spirits. When I was talking to him, I saw his passion and love for football. We connected over that," said Johnson. When Johnson visits Will, the two talk about the injury, but also go much deeper into their friendship. "We're friends now. It's amazing that we've opened up to each other. I've honestly learned so much from him," Johnson continued. "His attitude has really made me cherish and value the opportunity that I have. I just want to help any way I can and let him know he's not fighting this alone."

Players will also partner with animal therapy dogs to uplift students through one-on-one interactions. "Our job is a day-to-day job, if you want to put it that way," said Johnson. "Something like this allows you to be a human again, I guess you could say. You can put work to the side. When it's all said and done, this world should be about helping people. And everyone being respectful to each other, regardless of differences of race or ethnicity. That's what drives me to be out here. It brings me joy."

- As part of Salute to Service Month, Johnson, along with his teammates and general manager, John Lynch, visited the USO office at the San Jose Military Entrance Processing Station to spend time with military applicants and their families as they took the Oath of Enlistment and shipped off to basic training.

- In honor of the NFL's Crucial Catch campaign, the 49ers hosted a fashion show on Tuesday, October 17th, 2017, featuring breast cancer and pediatric cancer warriors in apparel donated by Levi's®. Johnson, along with his 49ers teammates, walked the runway with cancer warriors as they shared their stories of strength and courage with the audience.

- Hauling in 50 passes for 600 yards and 13 touchdowns is an impressive stat-line for a two-way player, which is exactly what Johnson was in high school. He split time as a receiver and defensive back during his time at Pennington Prep (NJ) High School. What made Johnson focus his attention on the defensive side of the ball moving forward? He credited a defensive mentality. Johnson said, "I was more of a physical player. Just the fact that I liked playing defense better. Playing basketball, I had a defensive mindset. So, I guess it just translated to football. I always had a defensive mindset."

- Johnson, a sports management and business administration major, spent the summer prior to his senior year as a sports marketing intern with French West Vaughan, a marketing/public relations firm based out of Raleigh, NC. During his internship, he worked with some high-profile athletes and clients which provided great experience. "I actually got to do a few things with MoGo, the flavored mouthpiece that [former 49ers QB] Colin [Kaepernick] wears. I did that and then I did a few things for [Cincinnati Bengals DT] Geno Atkins, getting him some suits for the ESPY's." Johnson believes if he weren't a professional football player, that he had found his calling in sports marketing. He said, "That was definitely something I would do. Just the interaction with players and businesses, I felt like that was cool."

2014: AFC Special Teams Player of the Week (Week 7)

GOLDMINE
- Jones had an early introduction to how tough the NFL can be. Taken behind 37 other defensive linemen in the 2013 NFL Draft, he was cut by two teams over a span of just 11 days. After selecting him in the sixth round with the 198th overall pick, the Houston Texans cut Jones on 8/31/13. Jones signed with the Tampa Bay Buccaneers on 9/1/13 but lasted only 10 days, as the Buccaneers released him on 9/10/13. Rather than be deterred by these early disappointments, Jones maintained a positive outlook when he signed with the Patriots on 9/11/13, and it has paid off in a big way. Thrust into a starting role after key injuries to the defensive line, Jones finished his rookie season with an AFC-rookie best six sacks.

JONES' GOLDEN NUGGETS
- Originally claimed off waivers by SF on 11/8/16 after appearing in seven games for Miami, he went on to start the final 6 games of the 2016 season for the 49ers.
- Led all AFC rookies with 6.0 sacks in 2013 as a member of the New England Patriots.
- Appeared in 50 games (43 starts) during his four-year career at Bowling Green State and was named the Mid-Atlantic Conference Player of the Year as a senior in 2012.

2017 HIGHLIGHTS

- The 49ers offense rushed for 159 yds. on 19 carries (8.37 avg.) at Sea. (9/17). The team's 8.37 avg. yds. per carry was the third-highest avg. against the Seahawks all-time and it also marked the sixth-highest single-game avg. by the team in franchise history.

GOLDMINE

- In September of 2017, 49ers Kilgore helped kick-off the fourth year of the 49ers STEAM Education Program by surprising a group of 30 fourth graders from Cherrywood Elementary School (San Jose) to talk about the importance of education and how he uses math on the football field. To date, the program has reached more than 150,000 K-8 Bay Area participants since 2014, and helped earned the franchise its title of 2017 ESPN Sports Humanitarian Team of the Year.

- While Kilgore was preparing for the NFL Draft in 2011, he was also serving as a student-teacher at Hardin Park Elementary School working with special-education students in adaptive physical education classes. The day following his graduation from Appalachian State, Kilgore hosted a field trip for his special-education students at ASU. The field trip included a tour of the school's athletic facilities, activities in the Sofield Family Indoor Practice Facility, lunch on the club level of the Appalachian Athletics Center and taking in a few innings of the Appalachian State-Western Carolina baseball game. While football is Kilgore's next chapter in life, he aspires to be a coach and special-education teacher following his NFL career. "I'm very happy that I was drafted, but I absolutely love working with these kids," said Kilgore. "I have had a great student-teaching experience and I know when my NFL career is over, I will get to work in another field that I love and that is working with special-education students and coaching."

KILGORE'S GOLDEN NUGGETS

- His last name is pronounced KILL-gore.
- After snapping a football for the first time in high school, Kilgore would go on to play center for three years on varsity. Playing mainly guard and tackle at Appalachian State, it wasn't until 2014 with the 49ers that he would make his next career start at center. He has made 23 career starts at the position in six seasons (2011-16) with the team.
- Following his senior football season at Appalachian State, he stayed in the area to serve as a student-teacher at Hardin Park Elementary School (Boone, NC), working with special-education students in adaptive physical education classes.
- During his time at Appalachian State and with the 49ers, Kilgore spends his off days volunteering his time working with special-education students.

GOLDMINE (CONTINUED)

- In honor of the NFL's Crucial Catch campaign, the 49ers hosted a fashion show on Tuesday, October 17th, 2017, featuring breast cancer and pediatric cancer warriors in apparel donated by Levi's®. Kilgore, along with his 49ers teammates, walked the runway with cancer warriors as they shared their stories of strength and courage with the audience.

- A multi-sport athlete growing up, in addition to football Kilgore played travel baseball, basketball, wrestling and threw shot put on the track and field team.
- Kilgore's hero growing up and to this day is his father, David. David works at a paper mill in Kingsport, TN, a job he's held for more than 29 years. Said Kilgore, "He just taught me a lot of hard work and how it is to be a father and be a man."

- Kilgore returned to his hometown of Kingsport, TN to support the 2015 Tribe Games, a series of athletic competitions for special needs kids from bowling to swimming to track and field. Kilgore's heart for special needs kids grew from volunteering in adapted physical education classes in the Watauga County (NC) School System while playing at Appalachian State. Kilgore wasn't just a casual observer at the games either, as he was a coach, motivator, fan and cheerleader for all 85 participating kids.

- Lee says he doesn't let a day go by without giving credit to his mother, ShaRon, for teaching him to always work hard and strive for more. "My biggest motivation is my mom and working hard for her," said Lee. After moving in with his mother in high school, he and his two sisters relied on their mother to play the role of both parents. Lee says he couldn't have asked for more from her as a child. "She got me to this point. I work as hard as I can every day to make her proud." After receiving a scholarship to play football at Kansas State University, ShaRon never let her son settle, pushing him to excel on the field and in the classroom as a business major. "I am a believer that if you want something, you have to work and sacrifice to get it," said ShaRon. "When I watch Elijah now and see how much he has grown as a football player and as a person, it makes it all worth it."

2017 HIGHLIGHTS

- Brought down Seahawks QB Russell Wilson for a 1-yd. loss at Sea. (9/17). The sack marked the 15th of his career. He has 4.5 sacks in his career against the Seahawks, the most against any single opponent during his career.
- Registered his first career FR, picking up a fumble by Texans WR DeAndre Hopkins late in the 4th qtr. at Hou. (12/10). The takeaway led to a 41-yd. FG by K Robbie Gould to help seal the win.

GOLDMINE

- In honor of the NFL's Crucial Catch campaign, the 49ers hosted a fashion show on Tuesday, October 17th, 2017, featuring breast cancer and pediatric cancer warriors in apparel donated by Levi's®. Lynch, along with his 49ers teammates, walked the runway with cancer warriors as they shared their stories of strength and courage with the audience.

- Lynch draws his passion for the game from his mother, who had a much more difficult task than competing in football. "She was a single mom for 20 years. I learned a lot of morals and values from my mother." As the oldest of three children, Lynch was forced to grow up quickly.
- During the 2013 offseason, Lynch volunteered at a local PetSmart in an effort to promote pet adoption. While working, Lynch was assigned a pit bull-bulldog mix as his first dog to assist with adoption. He created such a bond with the puppy, that Lynch himself decided to bring "King" home with him.
LYNCH'S GOLDEN NUGGETS

- If Lynch could go back in time, he would travel to 2006, prior to the passing of his grandfather, Rocky Lynch. Lynch notes his grandfather's passing as the reason he strives to be the best football player he can be. "It made me want to work harder, push myself harder," said Lynch. He wants to carry himself in a manner that his grandfather would be proud of.
- Off the field, when Lynch isn't spending time with his family, he enjoys watching the show Shark Tank. On the show, entrepreneurs get the opportunity to bring their dreams to fruition as they present their ideas to five high-level entrepreneurs of their respective industries who made their own dreams a reality and turned their ideas into lucrative empires. Said Lynch, "I'm just fascinated at what people are capable of and their thought process when coming up with their ideas."

- As part of the 49ers annual Thanksgiving celebrations, Mabin and his teammates visited Cityteam San Jose to serve a holiday feast to over 300 people in need. Guests enjoyed turkey along with all of the usual holiday sides, while getting to know the 49ers.

- Mabin comes from a family of successful athletes. His father, Wesley, played cornerback at the University of Nebraska, where he won two National Championships in 1970 and 1971. Mabin's family also has NFL ties, as his cousin, Jordan Mabin previously played cornerback for multiple NFL teams from 2012-15 and his cousin, Dorin Dickerson, also spent time in the NFL as a tight end from 2010-15. "Dorin says me and Jordan couldn't check him. We always go back and forth with each other, but they're just happy for me," said Mabin. "They just want me to succeed and do this for as long as I can."

- After earning a scholarship to Iowa as a wide receiver, Hawkeyes head coach Kirk Ferentz called Mabin into his office prior to his sophomore season and proposed an idea he had for a while. "He said my skill set would probably transition better for cornerback rather than a receiver," said Mabin. Now in his first NFL season as a cornerback, Mabin has no complaints with coach Ferentz's decision. "It's working out for me so far."

MABIN'S GOLDEN NUGGETS

- Played with 49ers teammates, QB C.J. Beathard and TE George Kittle at the University of Iowa.
- Transitioned from wide receiver to defensive back prior to 2013 spring practice at Iowa.

GOLDMINE

- In June of 2017, Marsh hosted the "Cassius Marsh and Friends Football Camp" at Renton Memorial Stadium in Renton, WA. Marsh and various coaches offered hands-on training for fundamental football skills at the day long camp for youth ages 6-18, placing campers in small groups to ensure each child gets the most out of their camp experience. Marsh focused on providing an energetic, positive environment to learn and also gave away various gifts to each child who was in attendance.

- During the summer of 2017, Marsh was invited as a special guest to Grand Prix Las Vegas, a five-day Magic fest featuring Magic artists, vendors, cosplay and three competitive tournaments. "It was cool to just bring the community together, bring 12s together, the Magic community and just have a fun night," said Marsh. He was introduced to the game in middle school, has played casually for over a decade and is a huge collector of Magic cards. Grand Prix Las Vegas was his first large-scale tournament. GOLDMINE

- Growing up, McCaffrey got a taste of the NFL at a very young age. His father, Ed (pictured right), was selected by the New York Giants in the third round (83rd overall) of the 1991 NFL Draft. During his 13-year career, he played for the Giants (1991-93), San Francisco 49ers (1994) and Denver Broncos (1995-2003). He also went on to win three Super Bowls (Super Bowl XXIX, XXXII, and XXIII). "Watching his games, going to his training camps, it's always been a huge part of our life and our family," said McCaffrey. "We wanted to play because of our dad." After graduating from Duke University in 2016, McCaffrey followed in his father's footsteps, signing an NFL contract of his own. His younger brother, Christian, continued the trend the following year, being selected 8th overall by the Carolina Panthers in the 2017 NFL draft. "It's been a dream of ours since we were little," said Max. "We're competitive as brothers, but we all want to see each other succeed."

McCAFFREY'S GOLDEN NUGGETS

- McCaffrey's grandfather, Dave Sime, also attended Duke University and played baseball and was a member of the Duke track & field team. He went on to earn a silver medal in the 100 meter dash at the 1960 Olympic Games in Rome, Italy.

- McCaffrey's father, Ed, played for the 49ers in 1994, earning a Super Bowl ring with the team after defeating the San Diego Chargers in Super Bowl XXIX.

GOLDMINE

- McNichols looks to become the next running back out of Boise State to excel in the NFL. Current Tampa Bay Buccaneers RB and Boise State alum, Doug Martin, was drafted in the first round of the 2012 NFL Draft and is a two-time Pro Bowl selection. After Martin, current Philadelphia Eagles RB Jay Ajayi left Boise State and was drafted by the Miami Dolphins in 2015. McNichols credits the relationship he and Ajayi have as a reason he also earned a spot in the NFL. "Jay and I really connected early on," said McNichols. "He saw some potential in me, showed me the ropes on and off the field. That continued even when he got drafted." Ajayi finished fourth in the NFL in rushing in 2016, and was named to the Pro Bowl. McNichols believes it's now his turn to continue the trend and follow in the footsteps of Martin and Ajaiyi and make a name for himself in the league. "I call Jay and tell him I'm getting closer and closer, and he's happy for me. It's always going to be competitive—I'm going to chase his records in the NFL."

McNICHOLS' GOLDEN NUGGETS

- At Boise State, earned Second-Team All-Mountain West honors in consecutive seasons (2015-16).
- Was coached by hip-hop artist Snoop Dogg while playing youth football in the Snoop Youth Football League in Los Angeles, CA. McNichols played both alongside and against numerous NFL players.

- In 2013, Mitchell added CrossFit to his workout repertoire three times a week to help with his endurance. "It's just something I picked up during the offseason," Mitchell said in 2013. "I was kind of just looking at different ways to work out and that was right up my alley and what would translate best for me in terms of how I feel during practice and during games. It takes a lot of heart to do CrossFit so that's really why I did it."
- While playing at the University of Arizona, Mitchell transitioned from TE/H-Back to a DL for his final two seasons (2008-09). "I was able to pick up what the other team's offense was doing, and that helped make the transition easier," said Mitchell.

MITCHELL'S' GOLDEN NUGGETS

- Worked with current 49ers defensive line coach, Jeff Zgonina, who was the assistant defensive line coach with the Houston Texans in 2013. Current 49ers offensive line coach, John Benton, spent the 2010-13 seasons with the Texans, as well as the 2014-15 seasons with the Miami Dolphins, going against Mitchell. 2017 HIGHLIGHTS

- Registered his first-career special teams FR vs. LAR (9/21), scooping up a muffed punt by Rams WR Tavon Austin.

GOLDMINE

- NFL players once again had the chance to share the causes that are important to them during all Week 13 games, as part of the NFL's My Cause, My Cleats campaign. The initiative was a culmination of collaborative work between the NFL and players across the league. For My Cause, My Cleats, Nelson is supporting JW House, which aims to provide a warm, comfortable "home away from home" for families facing medical crisis. "Families facing medical crises need rest and self-care while their loved one is in the hospital," said Nelson. "I want to bring hope and encouragement to those going through the unimaginable."

Families facing medical crises need rest and self-care while their loved one is in the hospital. I want to bring hope and encouragement to those going through the unimaginable.

Kyle NELSON
LONG SNAPPER | 86

- The story of how Nelson became a long snapper goes back to his father's playing days. In the middle of training camp, Nelson's dad was extremely tired after grueling practices. He saw a player heading into his 11th season and he thought to himself, "I wish I was a long snapper." He said, "If I ever have a son, I'm going to make sure he learns how to snap."

- Always around football, in the summers, Kyle would help his dad, Mark, when he was coaching in the NCAA and CFL. At a young age, Kyle got to see tight knit locker rooms and learned how successful teams work together on and off the field. Mark's career as a football coach meant many moves for the Nelson family. Kyle was born in Norman, OK and growing up, the family moved between Tulsa, OK and Canada three times and Kyle spent time living in Georgia, Kentucky, Arkansas, Texas, Oklahoma and New Mexico before coming to California.

NELSON'S GOLDEN NUGGETS

- Comes from a football family where he is a third generation member. His father, Mark, is the defensive coordinator for the Ottawa REDBLACKS in the Canadian Football League, with a quarter-century of coaching experience. Mark played in the CFL for six seasons and spent time coaching in the NCAA at Louisville, Arkansas Tech, Baylor and Kentucky. Kyle's grandfather, Roger, was drafted by the Washington Redskins in 1954. He played offensive tackle for 13 seasons for the CFL's Edmonton Eskimos from 1954-67 and was elected into the CFL Hall of Fame in 1985.

- Growing up in Canada, the first sport he played was ice hockey. Following a move to the United States in middle school, he began playing soccer before playing football for the first time his junior year of high school.

- In the past, Nelson has worked with middle school football players in Phoenix, AZ, teaching them the craft of long snapping as colleges begin recruiting students specifically to fill that role. "It helps the kids get into school," he said. "We do it to get them scholarships, get their school paid for so their parents don't have to."

- In his spare time, Nelson enjoys drawing, reading and going hiking. When Kyle was growing up, his family planned hikes on the weekends where he was able to witness the landscape of Arkansas, Georgia, Texas and Arizona. It translated to painting, where Kyle draws pictures of the outdoors such as oceans, forests and mountains. "I like turning color pictures into black and white, charcoal, Sharpies," he said. "It's a nice, relaxing hobby."

- In honor of the NFL's Crucial Catch campaign, the 49ers hosted a fashion show on Tuesday, October 17th, 2017, featuring breast cancer and pediatric cancer warriors in apparel donated by Levi's®. Nelson, along with his 49ers teammates, walked the runway with cancer warriors as they shared their stories of strength and courage with the audience.

GOLDMINE

- Inspired by his mother Judy, Newsom built a passion for drawing and painting at a young age. Newsom remembers the two spending hours together just sitting at the table drawing during her days off. "She's really talented, so that inspired me," said Newsom. "I was trying to mimic everything she did." Newsom had always enjoyed drawing, but in high school he could tell he was not only interested in drawing, but was talented as well. "I couldn't wait to get home from football practice in high school to get to draw," said Newsom. "High school is when it picked up on me." Newsom still finds time to draw and create paintings when he can during the season. "I'd most definitely try to pursue that career after football."

- After wearing number 41 during his redshirt freshman season at Missouri, Newsom switched to number 25 to begin his sophomore season. Newsom made the number switch to honor Aaron O'Neal, a former Mizzouri linebacker who passed away in 2005. Newsom and O'Neal both attended Parkway North HS, and though they never met, Newsom says he wore 25 with pride. "It feels like an honor, honestly," said Newsom at the time. "I'm playing for two people."

- On Mizzouri's Senior Day (11/25/16), Newsom wore number 30 to honor fellow Mizzouri LB Michael Scherer who saw his season cut short due to a torn ACL.

NEWSOM'S GOLDEN NUGGETS

- One of Newsom's hobbies includes drawing and painting. He etches images and later finishes them off by adding color.

- Was the recipient of the 2016 Aaron O'Neal St. Louis Metro Player of the Year Award, given to the team's most inspirational player.

GOLDMINE

- Ahead of WrestleMania 32, which took place at AT&T Stadium in 2016, Nzeocha joined WWE superstars and spent the day with patients at Children's Health Medical Center in Dallas, playing games, coloring, and speaking to them about the benefits of staying positive throughout tough times. In December, he made a second trip to Children's Health Medical Center as he and his teammates made their annual Children's Hospital Christmas visits. Nzeocha and his teammates also visited Texas Scottish Rite Hospital for Children in Dallas, Cook Children's Medical Center in Fort Worth, and Medical City Children's Hospital. During each visit, he gave away numerous gifts to hundreds of children and signed autographs, making their Christmas holiday memorable.

- In 2016, Nzeocha teamed with Dirk Nowitzki of the Dallas Mavericks and over 50 celebrities to play in the 2016 Dirk Nowitzki Celebrity Baseball Game. The annual family-fun event gave all proceeds to children's charities: Dirk Nowitzki Foundation and Heroes Foundation. Alongside Nowitzki, Nzeocha and various other athletes in Dallas continued to play a huge role helping the youth in the greater Dallas community.

- As a rookie in 2015, Nzeocha visited The Salvation Army along with other members of the Dallas Cowboys organization. He and other rookies served an early Thanksgiving meal in Fort Worth while veteran players on the team spread throughout Dallas to do the same. With food donations from Albertsons, he played a significant role helping feed over 500 Salvation Army patrons during the Cowboys early Thanksgiving meal, the signature event of the Cowboys-Salvation Army partnership.

NZEOCHA'S GOLDEN NUGGETS

- His brother Eric Nzeocha also attended the University of Wyoming and is currently a LB for the Tampa Bay Buccaneers.

GOLDMINE

- Growing up in Northridge, CA, sports were always a part of Paulsen's life. With soccer dominating most of his childhood, it wasn't until middle school that he took up flag football. Once he got to high school, Paulsen had to choose only one to play because he didn't have time to play both club soccer and high school football. Paulsen didn't expect football to become such a large part of his life until his junior year of high school, when he started receiving scholarship offers. However, choosing a college was as much about academics as it was about football. Paulsen's father graduated from MIT and his uncle graduated from Harvard. Paulsen narrowed his choices down to UCLA, Stanford and Duke before ultimately deciding to become a Bruin. "I always wanted to go to UCLA growing up," Paulsen said in 2012. "Really it was a no decision."

- After his senior season at UCLA in 2010, Paulsen set his sights on the NFL. Without an invite to the Senior Bowl or NFL Combine, he focused all his energy on putting on a good showing at his Pro Day. One person he reached out to for advice during that time was current 49ers assistant head coach/tight ends coach Jon Embree, who coached Paulsen during his freshman year at UCLA. Embree, the tight ends coach for the Washington Redskins at the time, encouraged Paulsen to sign in Washington. "Ultimately, I decided to go with what I knew and go with the guy who I knew would give me an opportunity and a guy that I had a lot of faith in."

- Paulsen was an active member of the community during his six years in the Washington Redskins organization. In 2015, he hosted a flag football kickoff event for Special Olympics Virginia. In 2013, Paulsen participated in the Salute to Play 60 Military Challenge event at Joint Base Andrews and has helped distribute coats, gloves and hats to underserved kids from the Washington, D.C. area.

PAULSEN'S GOLDEN NUGGETS

- Was a member of the Washington Redskins while current 49ers head coach Kyle Shanahan was the offensive coordinator for four seasons (2010-13).

- Was college teammates at UCLA with 49ers offensive quality control coach Taylor Embree for two seasons (2008-09).

- To honor his former teammate who lost his leg in a motorcycle accident, Paulsen grew his beard out for more than a year until he was able to walk again.

GOLDMINE (CONTINUED)

- In 2012, Paulsen began growing out his beard and vowed not to shave his beard until Nick Ekbatani, a close friend and former UCLA teammate of Paulsen who tragically lost one of his legs as the result of a horrific motorcycle accident earlier that summer, could walk again. In June of 2013, Ekbatani posted a YouTube video of himself walking. Now, Paulsen's typical football season ritual usually involves growing a beard.

- Additionally, Paulsen grows his hair out and donates it to Locks of Love, a non-profit organization that makes wigs for children who have lost their hair from long-term medical treatment. Paulsen explained in 2013, "I donate it every two years. They need 10 inches. I get that every one-and-a-half or two years."

GOLDMINE

- NFL players once again had the chance to share the causes that are important to them during all Week 13 games, as part of the NFL's My Cause, My Cleats campaign. The initiative was a culmination of collaborative work between the NFL and players across the league. "Convoy of Hope empowers people to live independent lives, free from poverty disease and hunger," said Pinion. "My message to those who are suffering: Know that help is here and we are praying for you."

Bradley PINION PUNTER | 5
- As part of the 49ers annual Thanksgiving celebrations, Pinion and his teammates visited Cityteam San Jose to serve a holiday feast to over 300 people in need. Guests enjoyed turkey along with all of the usual holiday sides, while getting to know the 49ers.

PINION'S GOLDEN NUGGETS

- His last name is pronounced PIN-yunn.

- Named the 49ers representative for the Walter Payton Man of the Year Award in 2017, which recognizes an NFL player for his excellence on and off the field.

- During his time at Clemson, Pinion worked closely with the "Be The Match Foundation," an organization that works to find matches within the bone marrow registry.

- After never playing pee wee football, Pinion received a football as a Christmas gift from his mother, Lorie, in middle school. His father took him out to the field and asked if he wanted to throw the ball. "I wanted to kick it. I grew up playing soccer," said Pinion. His dad put the ball on his foot like a tee, and Pinion knocked through a 35-yard field goal on his first try. "Do that again," he said. Second try, same result. "I guess you could say that it was a Christmas gift that turned into a dream," he said.

- Every player has their own unique superstitions and quirks that get them ready for a game of football. For Pinion, it is all about his most important piece of equipment: the shoes. For every practice and game since high school, Pinion has tied his shoes the same way. He takes the laces on his right shoe and wraps them around the bottom, ties them and pushes the knot off to the right side, out of the way. "I like to take care of the important foot first," he says.

- While getting ready for the NFL draft, Pinion added Bikram yoga to his training regimen. In 105-degree heat with 40-percent humidity, he dropped 20 pounds. Pinion also added training at Madabolic Inc. in North Carolina, a hybrid of Cross Fit and Nine Rounds training techniques. "I really started to focus on the small things," said Pinion. "All the small things make the big picture."

- The 49ers partnered with Furry Friends Pet Assisted Therapy Services for animal therapy, while providing confidence building activities for students in the Leland High School special needs program in an effort to erase the stigma attached to special needs. Pinion and his teammates spent time with students with autism, mental illness and learning disabilities as they play board games, working on social skills including conversational queues and eye contact through the hands-on activity. Players will also partner with animal therapy dogs to uplift students through one-on-one interactions. "Going out and doing things like this really reminds you that the situation you're in really isn't that bad," said Pinion. "There are kids with much greater challenges. Kids that need help. And in a small way, we can help provide some. It's way bigger than football."

- Pinion credits his longtime kicking coach Dan Orner as being the most influential person in his life. While preparing for the NFL Draft, Orner worked out side by side with Pinion, pushing him to get better every step of the way. "Just the way he handles his business and the person that he is, it's something I try and mimic."

- Pinion's family has a long history of serving in the military. Both of his cousins have served in Iraq, where one worked on tanks and the other went door to door assessing threats. His grandfather on his dad's side, Earl Mason, was about to have a tryout with the Dallas Cowboys as a punter, but he was drafted to serve in the Korean War, where he earned a purple heart. Pinion cites his grandfather as one of his heaviest influences in becoming a punter.

- In honor of the NFL's Crucial Catch campaign, the 49ers hosted a fashion show on Tuesday, October 17th, 2017, featuring breast cancer and pediatric cancer warriors in apparel donated by Levi's®. Pinion, along with his 49ers teammates, walked the runway with cancer warriors as they shared their stories of strength and courage with the audience. "We take great pride in our community events around here," said Pinion. "I honestly think it means more to us when we get the privilege to walk with someone who has fought the fight with cancer or is continuing to fight the fight with cancer. It's truly a blessing for us."

- An active member in community relations initiatives since being drafted by the 49ers, Pinion was the winner of the team's CR rookie service award in 2015. In May of 2016, he worked with local elementary students at Don Callejon School to stress the importance of literacy and the fun and love of learning.

- As part of Salute to Service Month, Pinion, along with his teammates and general manager, John Lynch, visited the USO office at the San Jose Military Entrance Processing Station to spend time with military applicants and their families as they took the Oath of Enlistment and shipped off to basic training.

GOLDMINE

- Powell credits his high school football coach and former Kansas City Chiefs defensive back, Sean Williams, for playing a major role in elevating his game to where it is today. While at Bedford (OH) High School, Powell considered getting a job and no longer playing sports since no one he knew had ever earned a college scholarship. Coach Williams reassured him if he put in the work he could be a guy that kids in the Cleveland area look up to for years to come. "He just pushed me really hard to see how tough I was mentally. He just wanted to see if I really wanted what I said I wanted," said Powell who went on to earn a scholarship and play three seasons at Ohio State before entering the NFL in 2016. After winning the 2015 College Football National Championship, Powell returned to Bedford with the Championship trophy.

POWELL'S GOLDEN NUGGETS

- Played with current teammate, 49ers RB Carlos Hyde while at Ohio State in 2013.
- Won the 2015 College Football Playoff National Championship with the Buckeyes.
- In an attempt to improve his speed on the football field at Bedford High School, went from playing baseball to running track.

CAREER HIGHLIGHTS

- In 2013, Reid was one of only three players in the NFL to record 4-or-more INTs and 2-or-more FRs (LB Kiko Alonso 4 INTs/2 FRs; CB Alterraun Verner 5 INTs/2 FRs).

2017 HIGHLIGHTS

- Registered his first-career special teams FR vs. LAR (9/21), catching the loose ball from Rams WR Pharoh Cooper that was knocked out by WR Victor Bolden Jr. The takeway led to a 1-yd. TD run by RB Carlos Hyde.
- Hauled in a 45-yd. TD pass from QB C.J. Beathard at Was. (10/15), marking his first TD with 49ers and eighth of his career.

GOLDMINE

- Outside of football, Robinson is an avid bowler. Despite only picking up the game four years ago, he is already a semi-pro and has a goal of being a professional bowler after his NFL career. As someone who ran track in high school, Robinson appreciates finding another sport with the rare quality where the athlete controls the entire outcome. On two occasions, he has been one throw away from a perfect game and currently has a high score of 290. Robinson also has goals of passing on the game of bowling to his son, Aldrick Robinson Jr., who already has his own bowling ball.
- In his spare time, Robinson often visits hospitals and spends time with the less fortunate. Growing up, his cousin spent a lot of time in the hospital and he used to visit her every day.

ROBINSON'S GOLDEN NUGGETS

- Spent time with current 49ers head coach Kyle Shanahan when he was an offensive coordinator in Washington (2011-13) and Atlanta (2016).
- Ranks second in Southern Methodist school history in rec. yds. (3,313) and TD recepts. (30) behind Denver Broncos WR Emmanuel Sanders (3,791 rec. yds. and 34 TD recepts.).

- Was 1 of only 3 NFL rookies (former 49ers LB Patrick Willis and Browns LT Joe Thomas) to line up for every single snap in 2007, and was 1 of 35 NFL players overall to accomplish the feat out of 1,898 total players.

STALEY'S GOLDEN NUGGETS

- His last name is pronounced STAY-lee.
- One of eight finalists for the annual Art Rooney Sportsmanship Award each year from 2015-17, presented annually to the NFL player who best demonstrates the qualities of on-field sportsmanship, including fair play, respect for the game and opponents, and integrity in competition.

- In 2015, Staley was selected as the Bobb McKittrick Award winner for the second consecutive season, which is given annually to the 49ers offensive lineman who best represents the courage, intensity and sacrifice displayed by the longtime offensive line coach, during his 21 years of service to the 49ers. The award was established by the 49ers in 1999, and is voted on by the offensive line.

GOLDMINE

- Entering his sophomore season at Central Michigan, Staley and the football program experienced a coaching change. New head coach Brian Kelly and offensive line coach Jeff Quinn asked him to make the switch to offensive tackle. He agreed and the transformation began where he began to wake up at 2 a.m. to consume a 2,000 calorie weight-gaining shake and would work out twice a day to prepare his body for its new life in the trenches. In the first offseason, Staley added 20 pounds to his lean frame. By the time he was a senior, he reached 290 pounds and went on to become the first Chippewa to be drafted in the first round of the NFL Draft.
- In honor of the NFL's Crucial Catch campaign, the 49ers hosted a fashion show on Tuesday, October 17th, 2017, featuring breast cancer and pediatric cancer warriors in apparel donated by Levi's®. Staley, along with his 49ers teammates, walked the runway with cancer warriors as they shared their stories of strength and courage with the audience.

GOLDMINE (CONTINUED)

- In July of 2016, Staley, along with fellow NFL players, appeared on ABC's Family Feud as part of "Celebrity Family Feud." He was part of a team that competed on the iconic game show to win up to $25,000 for charity. On the show, he was teammates with Pierre Garçon, and the two are now teammates on the field with the 49ers in 2017.

- In 2013, Joe was an ambassador for San Francisco's first Electric Run, a 5K race that benefits Smile Train, the world's largest cleft lip and palate charity. The race, which was held at Candlestick Park, raised $10,000 for Smile Train and more than 8,000 people participated in the event.

- Prior to Super Bowl 50 at Levi's Stadium, Staley gave away a pair of tickets and a signed game-worn jersey to single father Johnel Spivey and his seven-year-old daughter, Jordan. Spivey, 54, had been on dialysis three days a week for the previous six years. Despite surgery, he avoided pain medication so he could stay focused on his daughter's needs.

2017 HIGHLIGHTS

- Recorded a leaping one-handed catch to pick off Panthers QB Cam Newton vs Car. (9/10), marking his second career INT. His first INT came at Cle. (12/12/15 – QB Johnny Manziel). Tartt also registered a career-long 37-yd. return on the INT.

GOLDMINE

- NFL players once again had the chance to share the causes that are important to them during all Week 13 games, as part of the NFL's My Cause, My Cleats campaign. The initiative was a culmination of collaborative work between the NFL and players across the league. Tartt chose NorCal Epilepsy Foundation as his My Cause, My Cleats initiative. Tartt was inspired by his close friend and manager whose daughter, Aria, was diagnosed with Epilepsy at four months old. No medicine was helping and Aria would have up to 100 seizures a day. But after brain surgery where a piece of her brain was removed, she is now seizure free. "I want to raise awareness for Epilepsy, a cause folks know little about," said Tartt. "My message to those affected by the disease: Stay strong and know that you are not in this fight alone!"

- Tartt's young football career has been heavily influenced by his family. He played his first year of organized football in 2009 at Davidson HS in Mobile, AL, to honor his grandfather, Alfred Lewis, who passed away during the summer before his senior year. "The football coaches and my friends wanted me to come out and play, and he really wanted me to play. I really wanted to play again ever since he passed away, so I do this in his memory." Additionally, Jaquiski chose to attend Samford University at the urging of his mother, a traveling nurse who wanted to go there herself because of their pharmacy program.

- Drafted by the 49ers in the second round of the 2015 NFL Draft, Tartt reunited with best friend and former high school teammate DB Jimmie Ward. Both products of Davidson High School in Mobile, AL, the pair won the Class 6A Region 1 football championship as the school's starting safeties in 2009.

- Taumoepenu grew up with his mother's family about 3,000 miles east of Australia on the island of Tongatapu, which is the main island in the Tongan archipelago. He learned to develop his work ethic on his grandparents farm, where he helped grow pineapples and watermelons.

- Growing up in Tonga, the common sports played are rugby and cricket. Taumoepenu's experience playing rugby helped his transition to football. Said Taumoepenu, "It was hard for me to see through that facemask. I came from rugby to football. It was pretty difficult at times. But I told myself I can do it. And basically I just tried to stay positive."

- After moving in with his aunt in Provo, UT, Taumoepenu worked to develop his English. He increased his ACT score from an 18 when he first arrived in the United States to a 28 just one year later. Taumoepenu's dedication and hard work continued to pay off, completing degrees in economics and sociology in three years at Utah. .

TAUMOEPENU'S GOLDEN NUGGETS

- His full name is pronounced PEET-uh, TAO-moy-PEH-new.

- Taumoepenu was just three months old when his grandparents, Pita and Meleseini Taumoepenu, took him and his older sister, Ruth Tuha, to live in Tonga. Not knowing what football was at the time, he remembered listening to his grandfather tell him how he was going to become an NFL player. When he was 17, he moved to Utah where he lived with an aunt and attended Timpview HS. At that time, his cousins persuaded him to try the game his grandfather loved. "My coach just told me to go get the quarterback," Taumoepenu said in 2015. "That's all I cared about. That's all I do, and it was fun."

- Thomas spent part of his life living in Australia. Says Solomon, "My dad was an international sales manager for Proctor & Gamble, and they had him out there. It was an amazing experience to be there from two to seven or eight. It definitely gave me a different perspective on life and definitely shaped me for life." Thomas' family moved back to the United States and spent a few years living in Connecticut. It wasn't until his family prepared to move to Texas that Thomas was introduced to football, when his parents had him watch 'Friday Night Lights.'

- During his childhood, Thomas grew up speaking with a thick Australian accent. When he moved back to the States, no one in school could understand him, so he took three years of speech therapy classes to remove the accent. However, if it was up to Thomas, he would have kept the accent. Said Thomas, "It's unfortunate, because I'd love to still have my Australian accent."

- In October of 2017, the 49ers partnered with Bags of Fun to deliver backpacks to children undergoing treatment at Lucile Packard Children's Hospital. Each bag was personalized with educational, interactive and fun toys to provide joy, laughter and relief from the stress and anxiety of being in the hospital. Thomas and his teammates spent time with patients receiving Bags of Fun and other families in the hospital to uplift them during a difficult time.

- In honor of the NFL's Crucial Catch campaign, the 49ers hosted a fashion show on Tuesday, October 17th, 2017, featuring breast cancer and pediatric cancer warriors in apparel donated by Levi's®. Thomas, along with his 49ers teammates, walked the runway with cancer warriors as they shared their stories of strength and courage with the audience.

2017 HIGHLIGHTS

- The 49ers offense rushed for 159 yds. on 19 carries (8.37 avg.) at Sea. (9/17). The team's 8.37 avg. yds. per carry was the third-highest avg. against the Seahawks all-time and it also marked the sixth-highest single-game avg. by the team in franchise history.

GOLDMINE

- In 2014, Tomlinson won the Orange Bowl–FWAA Courage Award which is presented by a select group of writers from the FWAA to an athlete that displays courage on and off the field, including overcoming an injury or living through hardship. "My mother has been the greatest influence on my life, and none of this recognition would be possible without her sacrifice, love and support," said Tomlinson as he received the award. After growing up in Jamaica and moving to the United States when he was 10, he gives all the credit for who he is today to his mother. "It means the world to me to make her proud. If not for her, I could still be in Jamaica, living a life of poverty. Every time I go home or have an opportunity to talk to my mother, she always tells me before she hangs up, 'Laken, I love you and I'm extremely proud of you and everything that you do for our family. Keep doing what you are doing. The Lord has a plan for you, Laken.'"

GOLDMINE (CONTINUED)

- Growing up in Jamaica, Tomlinson always aspired to serve in the healthcare industry. After his football career, he plans to become a neurosurgeon. Tomlinson has always taken education seriously, commuting 90 minutes each day to and from school to receive a quality education in high school. He went on to graduate from Duke University with a bachelor's degree in evolutionary anthropology and psychology. While currently focused on football, Tomlinson still finds time to shadow doctors to help prepare for a career in the medical field after his retirement from the NFL. Professional athletes everywhere can look to Tomlinson as proof that balancing academics and athletics can be difficult but achievable. He enjoys being a role model for kids, but plans to take it a step further. "I want to improve the healthcare system in Jamaica. I believe it is the best way to directly help people in need and make a difference," said Tomlinson.

AWARDS & HONORS

2015: Hazeltine Iron Man Award

2017 HIGHLIGHTS

- Tallied his first-career FR at Was. (10/15), scooping up a fumble by Redskins TE Vernon Davis. He returned it 43 yds. and set up a 1-yd. TD run by RB Carlos Hyde on the ensuing play. His 43-yd. return was the longest fumble return by the 49ers since 10/27/13 (at Jax. - LB Dan Skuta - 47 yds.).

GOLDMINE

- Growing up in Mobile, AL, Ward knew when to separate himself from others in his neighborhood. Said Ward, "From where I come from, the neighborhood that I grew up in, a lot of people don't make it out. There's a lot of stuff. They either flunk out of school, end up having a child so they have to drop out of school and raise that child, or end up going to jail. It really just made me want to do something more than what my peers were doing." Ward would later surround himself with positive influences.

- Ward's family is no stranger to professional athletics. He is the cousin of former NBA player, Caron Butler. Butler, 10 years older than Ward, watched him grow up in Racine, WI, prior to Ward's move to Mobile, AL.

- While playing youth football, Ward went by the nickname 'Neko' and was teammates with former Alabama QB AJ McCarron with the Mobile Youth Football's Municipal Raiders. He played linebacker for the team that won multiple Youth Bowl Championships in Mobile.

WARD'S GOLDEN NUGGETS

- Named the 49ers Hazeltine Iron Man Award winner for the 2015 season. The award is named for former linebacker Matt Hazeltine, a 13-year performer who played more seasons at linebacker than any other 49ers player. Known for his durability and dedication, Hazeltine passed away in 1987 from ALS, and Bill Walsh established the award in his honor that year. The award is given annually to the most courageous and inspirational defensive player as voted upon by the defensive coaches.

- On the day he was selected by the 49ers in the 1st round of the 2014 NFL Draft, drove three hours to New Orleans to purchase a new purse for his mother's birthday. He said, "I never really bought her anything expensive, because you're a kid. Growing up you would write a card, color a card or just buy a card or simple flowers. That's the most I ever did. She likes purses, so I just decided to get her a purse. It really didn't matter how much it cost, you just wanted to see that smile." His act of generosity shows his true character. "I'm not a selfish person. I just like to see and make other people smile too. It makes me feel better as a person."

- Was best friends growing up with 49ers 2015 2nd round draft pick, S Jaquiski Tartt. The two were teammates at W.P. Davidson High School in Mobile, AL.

WITHERSPOON'S TRANSACTIONS

Originally the first of two 3rd–round (66th overall) draft choices by SF in 2017.

Making his head coaching debut, Kyle Shanahan's team was unable to secure a victory in Week 1, falling to the Carolina Panthers, 23–3 . After exchanging multiple possessions in the first quarter with no score, the Panthers capitalized on a sack–fumble of the 49ers, recovering the ball at the SF 42 yd. line. Three plays later, Panthers WR Russell Shepard scored on a 40–yd. pass from QB Cam Newton. The 49ers defense forced a Panthers turnover a couple of possessions later as S Jaquiski Tartt leaped up for the one–handed interception of Newton near the goal line, and returned it 37 yds. The INT by Tartt was the second of his career and first since at Cle. (12/12/15 – QB Johnny Manziel). The 37–yd. return is the longest by the 49ers defense during Week 1 of the regular season since S Eric Reid vs Dal. [48 yds. (9/7/14)]. The 49ers offense was unable to capitalize on the turnover and trailed at halftime, 13–0, after Panthers K Graham Gano tacked on a couple of field goals before intermission. San Francisco QB Brian Hoyer threw an INT on the team's first possession after the half that was returned to the SF 28 yd. line. Capitalizing on the turnover a few plays later, Panthers RB Jonathan Stewart scored on a 9–yd. TD pass from QB Cam Newton, increasing the road teams lead to 20–0. The 49ers kept the Panthers out of the end zone after they drove to the 6 yd. line, forcing a Gano 20–yd. FG. San Francisco's offense was able to put some points on the board late in the third quarter as K Robbie Gould nailed a 44–yd. FG to make the score 23–3. On the Panthers next possession, 49ers CB Rashard Robinson stripped RB Christian McCaffrey and recovered the forced fumble as well, marking the first FF and FR of his career. Neither team would score in the fourth quarter as the game came to a close in favor of Carolina.

NOTES: S Jaquiski Tartt made a leaping INT of Panthers QB Cam Newton, the second INT of his career. His first INT came at Cle. (12/12/15 – QB Johnny Manziel) … Tartt returned the pick 37 yds., setting a new career long. His previous career long INT return was 25 yds. at Cle. (12/12/15) … CB Rashard Robinson forced and recovered Panthers RB Christian McCaffrey fumble, marking the first FF and FR of his career … The FF is the first by the 49ers defense in Week 1 of the regular season since [NaVorro Bowman 1 FF vs GB (9/8/13)] … In their NFL debut, WR Trent Taylor (8–yds.) and TE George Kittle (13–yds.) registered the first recepts. of their careers … Kittle finished with 5 recepts. for 27 yds.

Traveling to the East Coast for a third consecutive road game, the 49ers fell short against the Washington Redskins, losing 26–24 at FedExField. After Washington received the ball first to begin the game, the Redskins drove down the field and scored an early TD as WR Josh Doctson caught an 11–yd. TD pass from QB Kirk Cousins. After exchanging possessions, Cousins found RB Samaje Perine for a 3–yd. TD pass early in the 2nd quarter to extend the Redskins lead, 14–0. On the Redskins next possession, CB Rashard Robinson intercepted Cousins on a deep pass down the right sideline, the second INT of his career. After consecutive defensive stops by both teams, Washington managed to tack on a 48–yd. FG by Dustin Hopkins to increase the Redskins' lead 17–0. With the 49ers offense struggling, 49ers Head Coach Kyle Shanahan made the decision to hand over the reigns to rookie QB C.J. Beathard. In his second series running the offense, Beathard led the 49ers on an 11–play, 75–yd. drive resulting in a 1–yd. TD run by RB Carlos Hyde to trim the Washington lead, 17–7, at halftime. After receiving the ball to begin the 3rd quarter, 49ers K Robbie Gould nailed a 52–yd. FG to make the score 17–10 in favor of Washington. Hyde has now registered 2–or–more rushing TDs in a single game twice this season [vs. LAR (9/21/17 – 2 TDs)] and five times in his career. Washington regained the lead on a 21–yd. FG by Hopkins to make the score, 20–17. The 49ers had their ensuing drive stall and punted it back to the Redskins. Cousins found former 49ers TE Vernon Davis on a 51–yd. catch and run the put Washington in striking range again. A few plays later, Cousins scored on a 7–yd. TD run, but Redskins K Nate Sundeberg missed the extra point to make the score 26–17. With just over two minutes remaining, Beathard found WR Aldrick Robinson for a 45–yd. TD to trim the Washington lead, 26–24. After the 49ers defense forced a 3–and–out, with less than a minute remaining, San Francisco was unable to convert on 4th down from midfield giving the Washington Redskins 26–24 victory.

Beathard's 235 passing yds. are the most by a 49ers rookie quarterback in their first career start. After Dallas received the ball to start the game, the 49ers defense forced a three–and–out, but San Francisco WR Trent Taylor fumbled the punt and Dallas recovered the ball. The fumble recovery set up a 1–yd. TD run a few plays later by Cowboys RB Ezekiel Elliott to give Dallas the early 7–0 lead. On Dallas' next pos-session, Elliott reached the end zone a second time, on a 25–yd. TD run, to increase the Dallas lead, 14–0. On San Francisco's ensuing drive, K Robbie Gould nailed a 42–yd. FG to put the 49ers on the board, 14–3, at the end of the first quarter. In the second quarter, Cowboys QB Dak Prescott found TE Jason Witten in the end zone for an 18–yd. TD to increase the Dallas lead, 20–3 at the break. The 49ers defense struggled to keep the Cowboys out of the end zone in the second half as the Dallas' lead grew to 40–3. The 49ers would not be kept out of the end zone as Beathard scored on a 4–yd. TD run late in the game, the first of his career. According to the Elias Sports Bureau, Beathard became the third 49ers rookie quarterback to register a rushing TD since the merger in 1970 and the first since 1976 (QB Tom Owen – 1974; QB Scott Bull – 1976).

On a beautiful game day at Levi's Stadium in Santa Clara, the San Francisco 49ers earned their first victory of the season as they defeated the New York Giants, 31–21. With the victory, Kyle Shanahan earned his first win as a head coach and John Lynch his first win as general manager. The 49ers received the opening kick at the 40–yard line after a kick out of bounds by the Giants. The team drove down the field where 49ers K Robbie Gould nailed a 43–yd. FG to put the 49ers ahead early in the first quarter, 3–0. New York Giants K Aldrick Rosas then tacked on two FGs from 47–yds. and 42–yds., to put the Giants ahead 6–3 at the end of the 1st quarter. In the 2nd quarter, 49ers QB C.J. Beathard found WR Marquise Goodwin on a deep throw which Goodwin hauled in, stiff–armed the defender and took to the end zone for an 83–yd. TD, his first of the season. The 83–yd. TD recept. was the longest pass play by a member of the 49ers since 10/13/14 at StL (QB Colin Kaepernick to WR Brandon Lloyd – 83–yd. In the first meeting between the two teams since 2013, the San Francisco 49ers defeated the Jacksonville Jaguars, 44–33, in front of a roaring crowd on Christmas Eve at Levi's Stadium. With the victory, San Francisco earned their fourth–consecutive victory for the first time since 2013, when the team won six straight in Weeks 12–17. QB Jimmy Garoppolo became the first 49ers QB since the merger in 1970 to win each of his first 4 starts with the team. On the game's opening possession, Garoppolo led the team on a 10–play, 79–yd. drive that he capped off with a 1–yd. TD run. A K Robbie Gould 27–yd. FG later in the quarter put San Francisco in front at the end of the first quarter, 10–0. Early in the second quarter, Jaguars QB Blake Bortles threw a short pass that was tipped and intercepted by 49ers CB Dontae Johnson, who returned the INT 50–yd. for a TD. Jacksonville blocked the ensuing PAT and returned it for 2 points to make the score 16–2. Jacksonville would score late in the half on a 1–yd. TD run by RB Leonard Fournette, followed by a 5–yd. TD pass from Bortles to WR Jaelen Strong to tie the game at 16 heading into halftime. Jaguars K Josh Lambo later converted a 45–yd. FG early in the third quarter to give the Jags their first lead of the game, 19–16. On Jacksonville's next possession, 49ers CB K'Waun Williams made a leaping one–handed INT on a Bortles pass, the first INT of his career, returning the pass 27–yds. into Jaguars territory. The turnover led to an 8–yd. TD pass from Garoppolo to TE George Kittle, the 2nd TD recept. of his career, as San Francisco regained the lead entering the fourth quarter, 23–19. On their ensuing drive, the 49ers offense continued to find their way into the end zone as Garoppolo escaped the pocket and found WR Trent Taylor for a 5–yd. TD pass on 3rd and goal. On the next play from scrimmage by Jacksonville, Bortles threw a deep pass down the sideline which was intercepted by CB Ahkello Witherspoon, the 2nd of his career, who returned the INT 23–yds. into Jacksonville territory. With 3 INTs on the day, it marked the first–time San Francisco's defense had 3–or–more INTs in a game since 12/28/14 vs. Arz. (3 INTs). The turnover would set up another San Francisco score, as RB Carlos Hyde reached the end zone on a 6–yd. TD run, his 6th TD of the season, which tied his single–season career high [6 rushing TDs in 2016] and extended the 49ers lead to 37–19. The Jaguars orchestrated a comeback late in the game, reaching the end zone twice in less than a minute, after recovering an onside kick following their initial score. Lambo would miss the PAT after the Jaguars second–consecutive TD, leaving the score at 37–33 in favor of San Francisco. After Jacksonville failed to recover a second onside kick, the 49ers offense looked to close out the game. With just over a minute remaining, on third and eight from the Jacksonville 30–yd. line, RB Matt Breida took a toss to the left and bolted up the sideline for a 30–yd. TD run, the 2nd of his career. Breida rushed for a career–high 74 yds. and 1 TD on 11 carries, as his TD late in the fourth quarter would be too much for Jacksonville to overcome and the 49ers closed out the win.

By Eric Branch
San Francisco Chronicle
February 17, 2017

Former NFL safety John Lynch recently detonated his idyllic life as though it was a wide receiver crossing the middle. The impact sent him to Santa Clara while his wife and four children stayed in San Diego.

The separation is temporary. His family will join the new 49ers general manager at the end of the school year. But the months apart will be arduous.

That became clear earlier this month. Lynch, 45, in a suit and tie after his introductory news conference, was asked, as he leaned against a counter in the media room at Levi's Stadium, why he'd swapped serenity for stress. All GM jobs are demanding, but Lynch's could be particularly grueling, at least initially: He has no executive experience and is in the midst of a front-office crash course.

Before joining the 49ers, the 15-year NFL veteran spent eight years as a well-respected Fox broadcaster, and his work-half-the-year gig let him stay close to family as well as football. So why accept an all-consuming job he didn't need? The GM suggested Linda Lynch had posed the same question.

"My wife keeps on saying, 'Are you sure?'" Lynch said. "I said, 'Well, this has already started. We're in.'"

His response inspired laughter. Lynch was smiling, too, but then the grin faded and his eyes pooled with tears.

"I tell you, I've never been apart from my family," said Lynch, his voice cracking with emotion he didn't anticipate. "So it's been gut-wrenching already."

His tears, of course, make his recent decision even more perplexing.

Why is John Lynch doing this?

The answer involves the craving for competition that fuels countless athletes and often can't be satisfied after the final whistle.

As a Fox analyst, Lynch quickly ascended to the No. 2 broadcast team, but he found success without a scoreboard unsatisfying. At the end of a telecast, the nine-time Pro Bowl player and four-time Hall of Fame finalist often fist-bumped his play-by-play partner and then … nothing. No anguish or elation.

"He really missed someone winning and losing at the end of a game," 49ers head coach Kyle Shanahan said. "He enjoyed doing the announcing and being a part of the NFL. But the fight to go through something with a group of guys and what we go through together — it's not easy, and it's a grind for everybody, but it's worth it."

Indeed, the grind-loving competitor that lurks within the charismatic and composed Lynch has re-emerged after spending the past decade in post-playing limbo.

It's fitting that Lynch rejoined the NFL by signing his contract with the 49ers on a Sunday. During his playing career, that was typically when he transformed from mild-mannered to maniacal.

For his first five NFL seasons, cornerback Champ Bailey knew Lynch only from afar as a bone-rattling enforcer who punctuated hits with screams. In 2004, however, they became teammates with the Broncos and Bailey saw there was far more to the madman than met the eye.

Lynch is the Stanford-educated, San-Diego-bred son of a successful businessman. His father, John Lynch Sr., is the president and CEO of the Broadcast Company of the Americas, which owns three radio stations, and was the CEO of the San Diego Union-Tribune. In 2006, Lynch won the Bart Starr Award, which is given to the NFL player who best exemplifies outstanding leadership and character.

Bailey was shocked: He didn't expect the thumper to be so thoughtful.

"Man, that's what fools you about him," Bailey said. "If you meet him before you see him play, you'd never think he'd play the way he does. But, for me, I saw him play before I met him and immediately it was like, 'Dang, this is not what I expected.' I expected some nut case wanting to run through every brick wall he sees. But he wasn't. Calm, collected, he had great values, focused."

Bailey gives Lynch, who is seven years older, much of the credit for his longevity. The 12-time Pro Bowl pick also played 15 seasons — partly because he noticed how Lynch cared for his body and how his obsessive film study compensated for declining late-career skills.

"I don't really know anyone personally that would be better suited to run a team than John Lynch," Bailey said. "I believe he could be the general manager and the head coach. That's how competitive he is and how much he prepares before he does anything."

Before becoming a GM, Lynch prepared for the job by learning from his close friend, Broncos general manager John Elway. With the Hall of Fame quarterback, Lynch discussed front-office intricacies and the emptiness that was prompting him to consider an executive role.

The ultra-competitive Elway returned to the NFL in 2011 when he joined Denver's front office. During Elway's tenure, he has asked Lynch to evaluate college prospects, asked him to attend draft meetings and asked him this: Why stay in TV if you can get back in the trenches?

"I think one thing that was a common denominator (between us) was what fills up your balloon?" Elway said. "Obviously, John did a tremendous job with TV. But I think — that's what I told him — I don't know how much TV fills up your balloon, but being in this position to where you're putting a football team together, a football staff together, is very satisfying. And, obviously, it's a great challenge. The next thing to playing is being in that position."

Lynch's challenge is daunting: He's a novice who has inherited a 2-14 team with serious quarterback issues.

However, the man ranked the 10th-hardest hitter in league history by NFL Network specialized in obliterating obstacles during his football career.

At Stanford, he spent his first two seasons as a never-used quarterback, transitioned to a hybrid linebacker role as a junior and didn't start until he moved to safety his final season. The result: He left Palo Alto as a second-team All-American.

"What it really comes down to is he's extraordinarily competitive," said Tom Holmoe, a former 49ers safety who was Lynch's position coach during his senior season. "It was real early in his transition to free safety that you said, 'Oh boy, he's going to take it to the limit.'"

In the NFL, Lynch was a third-round pick of the Buccaneers whose inexperience at safety partly explained why he didn't start more than six games in any of his first three seasons.

Tampa Bay head coach Sam Wyche had been encouraged to draft Lynch by Stanford's Bill Walsh, under whom Wyche had served as an assistant with the 49ers. Lynch was a project, but Wyche was wowed by the rookie's off-the-chart intangibles, which forecast future success.

"There are players that come in and you notice their competitive spirit right away," Wyche said. "Well, with John, it just oozed out of him. He couldn't hide it. The really great players only know one speed."

Lynch earned his first Pro Bowl berth in 1997, his fifth season, and was a captain of the 2002 Buccaneers, who won a Super Bowl on the strength of one of the best defenses in NFL history. However, Tampa Bay released Lynch in a salary-cap move after the 2003 season, and the then-32-year-old underwent surgery to remove bone spurs in his neck.

It was his last significant challenge. And Lynch responded by morphing from injured and unemployed to seemingly indomitable. He signed with the Broncos and immediately had an I'm-back hit on Chiefs wide receiver Dante Hall, who was impaled by Lynch in the 2004 season opener. It set the tone for a career-ending, four-year run with Denver that featured four Pro Bowl berths.

"He absolutely came in (in 2004) with something to prove," Bailey said. "He didn't talk about it a lot, but you could see the fire in his eyes. … The guy was a presence. He knew it. He just had to prove it over again that he could play."

Now, Lynch hopes to conquer perhaps his greatest challenge.

With the 49ers, he'll attempt to resurrect a franchise while maintaining a normal life with a family that includes a 17-year-old son and daughters Lindsay, 16, Lilly, 14, and Leah, 9.

Lynch said his children and Linda, his wife of 23 years, eventually reached the point where they shared his excitement over his new job. But it will take some adjustment.

His son, Jake, might stay in San Diego and live with Lynch's parents in the fall to play his senior season of high school football. In addition, the complications of their temporary separation were clear when plane-grounding fog in San Diego prevented his family from surprising him at his introductory news conference.

Lynch, who said he's been getting little sleep, joked that he's still trying to locate his new work-life balance when asked about contacting quarterback Colin Kaepernick.

"I got chewed out for not calling my daughter before she went to bed last night," he said. "So I'm trying to get a lot of things in."

Moments later, the former NFL tough guy was fighting back tears and the moment illustrated the anguish involved in his latest task.

So, again, why is John Lynch doing this? He clearly agrees with Shanahan: It won't be easy, but it will be worth it.

The Unconventional Career Path of 49ers GM John Lynch

By Albert Breer
The MMQB
February 16, 2017

Behind John Lynch's desk in Santa Clara, there are a number of bottles of wine, each one wishing him luck in his new venture as the 49ers general manager. That he got them from agents is one surprise from his first three weeks on the job.

"I'm telling you, I didn't think agents were this nice," he said over the phone on Wednesday afternoon, laughing before conceding, "They're buttering me up."

The haul of reds hasn't been the only things to catch Lynch a little off guard with this move that set the football world back on its heels at the outset of Super Bowl week. There's the breadth of the work, which goes well beyond scouting. And related to that, there's how a GM gets pulled in so many different directions during a given day.

But there's good news here, too. With a couple weeks to spare before the Niners staff packs up for Indianapolis and the scouting combine, this very much feels to Lynch—the former player and broadcaster—like what he's supposed to being doing.

"It does," he said. "I'd caution you, one thing Monte Kiffin always said to us was that the worst three words any football player can say are, 'I got it.' I'm right at the beginning stages. We're right at the beginning stages. We're taking on challenges every day. But I can tell you, I'm not overwhelmed, each day I come in and there's a routine.

"A priest once said to me, 'Think about eating a huge steak, you can't eat it all in one bite. You gotta take one bite at a time.' And that's the way we're going through it. You can get overwhelmed in this job, particularly coming in late. I got all this to do, how do I do it? Instead, we're just going about our business each day and taking things as they come. It does feel very natural."

In this week's Game Plan, we'll look at how the 2018 quarterback crop could affect the Mitch Trubiskys and Deshaun Watsons of this year, the Redskins' Kirk Cousins quandary, how the use of the franchise tag has changed dramatically over the past five years and a lot more.

But we start with the Niners' new GM, his first few weeks on the job, and why he hardly feels like a fish out of water—despite the fact that he landed in his new role without taking the traditional path to it.

Lynch's precursor to one of 32 jobs running the personnel side of an NFL franchise is comprised of 16 years as a player and some eight-and-a-half seasons working his way up in the world of football broadcasting. He, in fact, never left pro football, having been involved for the past 24 years running. And this is where, in these stories about him, you point out where he was never a scout.

That's where we'll take our left-hand turn. Let's explain why, through his words, his start has proven Lynch to be more prepared than most of the skeptics expected, and how he already has a pretty evolved vision.

His playing experience. That's beyond just having played for Denny Green, Bill Walsh, Sam Wyche, Tony Dungy, Jon Gruden, Mike Shanahan and, briefly, Bill Belichick. It also goes past figuring, between the lines and through endless film study, what makes a great NFL player. And it goes to his first experience in the pros, and being part of the 1990s Bucs' transition from doormat to dominant force.

"There's a lot of parallels," he says, comparing those Bucs with these 49ers. "There'd been constant change, so the thought process as a rookie was 'don't get close to the guy next to you, because he may not be here in a couple weeks. Don't let your wives make friends, because they're not gonna be here.' That was the culture. Everybody talks about Tony [Dungy], and Tony was certainly integral.

"But before that, Rich McKay came in and brought some stability—we're gonna draft good winning players that have certain traits, and football character. Then Tony came in and gave it more stability— these are the schemes we're gonna play. We're not deviating in Week 1 or Week 2 if it's not working. We're sticking to them."

His TV experience. Lynch settled in Denver after his playing career and grew close to John Elway. So when Elway took the Broncos' job in 2011, he'd get after Lynch about leaving broadcasting to work for a team. To that end, in 2012, Elway had him write reports on safeties in the draft. In 2013, Lynch sat in Denver's draft meetings for a month.

Now, Lynch maintains that he followed advice he got from Mike Tomlin in Tampa: Be where you're at. He was focused on his job with Fox, and was moving up in the ranks there. Still, he knew, as he puts it, "What was missing was a scoreboard." And so Elway's poking, plus working to be prepared as a broadcaster, opened the door to Lynch subconsciously developing team-building beliefs in the course of his work.

"I wasn't out there soaking up information from organizations as I went in their buildings, I was trying to be the best broadcaster I could be," he explains. "But you're meeting with the quarterback, you're meeting with the head coach, the GM usually comes and finds you, you're meeting with coordinators on both sides, you're meeting with finest players in the league. … So it challenges your mind."

His Broncos experience. At one point, Elway discussed hiring Lynch before deciding he didn't have the right role for him. In the end, the Broncos GM may have given him something more valuable than a job— an open-door to his own experiences growing into the role without the traditional career path behind him. Two pieces of advice stuck with Lynch. First, Elway said "hire some good people around you," which Lynch now jokes was to Elway's detriment, since Lynch's first hire was one of Elway's best people—new 49ers VP of player personnel Adam Peters. Second, Elway told Lynch that he had to learn to close his door, which seems simple, but relates to time management as a boss.

"Day 1, all I wanted to do was turn on the tape of the San Francisco 49ers to see what we have," Lynch says. "And it wasn't until 4:30 that I finally turned the tape on, because I was meeting people, meeting the trainer, going through the office. But that was very important too. That's how it is. … You also have to learn to close your door. You need your quiet time to yourself where you can just get stuff done."

His life experience. Lynch says that, at the end of his playing career, "You're always saying, 'I haven't come close to knowing it all, there's always something I can improve on.'" He took that thirst to learn into broadcasting, and he plans to take that humility into his new job, too. "I think that'll be the case 15 years from now," he says.

Early on, it's been small stuff. At the Super Bowl, both college and NFL players would approach him, and he'd wonder, Is this tampering? He's leaned on Peters and fellow new hire, and former Lions GM Martin Mayhew, for help in those areas. And he knows he has a lot to learn elsewhere. So yes, he'll delegate some. But what's as important is that he maintains that quest for knowledge in all areas.

"Part of the interview process was, 10 characteristics of a GM, go 1-10 on what you'd be strongest at," he says. "And I just followed my heart. Setting the tone and vision for a building, that was 1. Negotiating salary cap and contracts, right off the bat, I had that as 10, because I haven't done it. So listen, I'm gonna have to rely on some people. But I will learn that, because I think to be good at it, you can't just say, 'that's my guy over there.' You gotta learn it and be a part of it."

So why will this work? I don't know if it will, because these are hard things to forecast. But I do think that Lynch and head coach Kyle Shanahan have a chance, and not just because both are competitive, smart and driven football junkies. My feeling is it's more because Shanahan has a very defined vision for a football team, and Lynch has a clear-headed idea of how to build that, and they share a lot of ideals.

Getting that alignment was a stated goal of CEO Jed York's during the GM/coach search, and it looks like San Francisco has that at this early juncture. On Tuesday, Shanahan gave a lengthy, detailed presentation for the scouts on what his staff would be looking for at each position. And that adds detail to the character traits Lynch has talked to his scouts about seeking.

One that Lynch calls "critical" is football character. "You gotta live it and breathe it," he says.

The 49ers GM certainly does, and he's gotten to work in surrounding himself with others that do, too. Which is probably why none of this feels unnatural to him at all.

John Lynch to 49ers Fans: 'We're Going to Make You Proud'

By Joe Fann

February 1, 2017

Lynch spent more than 25 minutes on KNBR Wednesday morning with the Murph & Mac show. His first interview with the San Francisco 49ers flagship radio station covered everything from rooming with Edgar Renteria during his minor league baseball career, to his expectations as an NFL general manager.

Lynch continued to speak candidly about the interview process with the 49ers, his qualifications for the job and how important it is to embrace the randomness of life. But maybe the most impactful portion of the half-hour chat came at the end.

As Brian Murphy began to wind down the interview, Lynch interjected with a thoughtful message for what 49ers fans should expect from his new regime.

"I would just tell people, watch the moves we make," Lynch began unprompted. "Of course we're going to make some mistakes along the way, but we're going to make you proud with the type of players that we build this team around. I (also) think it's very important to be invested in this community.

"I remember (former Tampa Bay Buccaneers head coach) Tony Dungy and the first meeting he ever had with us. He told us, 'Our job is to win championships, but if that's all we've done at the end of our time together, then we haven't done enough.' I've been around a lot of people that live that.

"I understand what a special community (the Bay Area is). We want to be a part of it, and we want to make people proud. I can give my commitment that we're going to leave no stone unturned to try and get people that represent the organization. First of all, everything we do, being single-minded to win World Championships and also to make the community proud with the guys we have.

"That's the one thing I will promise."

Best of the Rest

Lynch continues to embrace the fact that he won't win everyone over until the 49ers start winning football games.

"Are there skeptics? Absolutely. Should there be skeptics? Absolutely," he said. "I understand that, and I understand that the only way we change those skeptical thoughts is to win. That's what this league is all about.

"I can't make any promises about when that's going to happen, but we're going to work our tails off."

The general manager shed some light on what went into hiring vice president of player personnel Adam Peters, who has spent 14 seasons of NFL front office experience with the New England Patriots and Denver Broncos. Prying Peters away from the Broncos was a crucial first step in Lynch's plan.

"You look at his experience, I've talked to people in the New England organization, and I know how much they valued him," Lynch said. "Josh McDaniels valued him so much that he brought him to Denver. Denver valued him incredibly. They kind of had a log jam. I've got a good relationship with John Elway, who immensely respects Adam Peters. He gave him an opportunity for a big promotion.

"Adam Peters was a home-run hire for us. We're full-speed ahead already."

Atlanta Falcons offensive coordinator Kyle Shanahan is reported to be the top candidate for the 49ers head coach opening, but nothing can become official until after Super Bowl LI. Once a coach is in place, the two will work together to assess the needs of San Francisco's current roster.

"I'm going to do whatever it takes, along with the head coach and along with the team we build, to put together a winner," Lynch said. "Frankly, we're putting together roles right now.

"As soon as we get our head coach on board, we're going to work tirelessly to be on the same page, so we can go to our scouts and say, 'This is what we're looking for.'"

Lynch admitted that one of the things that lured him to a front office position was the desire to have a stake in the game. He loved his time with FOX Sports, but missed the highs and lows of winning and losing.

"The one thing that can be unfulfilling is that there's no scoreboard," Lynch said. "When you're used to scoreboards, winning and losing, that void is always kind of there."

49ers' John Lynch looking to build culture, not choir

By Eric Branch
San Francisco Chronicle
April 24, 2017

In 1996, just-hired Tampa Bay head coach Tony Dungy met with his players and offered the standard prattle about winning a Super Bowl.

He didn't stop there. And what he added has stuck with John Lynch, then a Tampa Bay safety, who has invoked Dungy's words often since being hired as the 49ers' general manager.

"He spoke to (winning a Super Bowl), but he also said, 'If that's all we've done, we haven't done enough.' And he talked about the role we had in our community," Lynch said in January. "So I think you can do both. I think they enhance each other. I think that's going to be at the forefront of the culture."

The charismatic Stanford alum has been charged with re-establishing the culture of a once-proud franchise that has fallen short of CEO Jed York's goal of "winning with class" in recent years.

In less than three months, Lynch has made his mark, most notably by releasing starting cornerback Tramaine Brock hours after hearing that he'd been arrested for felony domestic violence. It was the 15th arrest of a 49ers player since 2012, and it was unique in that it inspired an immediate termination.

Now, Lynch will turn to his first draft, which is dotted with the usual prospects who have been red-flagged for character concerns.

Two of the top defensive players, Alabama inside linebacker Reuben Foster and Michigan safety Jabrill Peppers, tested positive for diluted urine samples at the combine, which the NFL counts as a positive drug test. And two of the top running backs, Oklahoma's Joe Mixon and Florida State's Dalvin Cook, are first-round talents who could slide because of off-field issues. Mixon, from Oakley, was suspended for the 2014 season at Oklahoma after he was charged with misdemeanor assault following an incident in which he punched a woman in the face.

Lynch acknowledged the impossibility of fielding a roster comprised of 53 pillars of the community.

"I think the one thing to know — and I've learned from playing and from this process — is people have issues," Lynch said. "Just like a lot of people in life have issues. And so if you're looking for a bunch of choirboys, that ain't happening. It would be hard to fill a team. But we believe in football character. Do they love football? Are they dependable? Are they accountable?"

Lynch said the process of reshaping the locker-room culture has started. The 49ers have signed or traded for 19 players since Feb 22. They have re-signed just two of their 18 unrestricted free agents. Much of that was about upgrading the talent on a 2-14 team, but Lynch said other factors were involved.

"We got rid of some people that we didn't feel ... sometimes were more talented, but we didn't feel embodied what we wanted to be all about," Lynch said. "And (we brought in) in people that do represent that."

Lynch was asked whether the 49ers would be more apt to take chances on character-risk players in future years, after they've established a locker room patrolled by established leaders. He agreed with the premise that 2017 might not be the year to gamble on players with significant off-field issues.

"What I've found is, when you have a locker room that is strong, maybe you can bring some people in that have seven of the 10 qualities but three of them aren't there," Lynch said. "... Are we there yet? No. We're not there yet. So I think that's fair that in the future we'd feel much better about doing that. That's what we're striving for."

During his 15-year NFL career, Lynch won the Bart Starr Award, given to the player who best exemplifies character and leadership. In Tampa Bay, with Dungy, his teammates included running back Warrick Dunn and linebacker Derrick Brooks, who both won the Walter Payton Man of the Year Award.

However, Dungy didn't have a team of choirboys. One of the Bucs' best players during his tenure was Hall of Fame defensive tackle Warren Sapp, who slipped to the No. 12 pick in the 1995 draft after reports of multiple failed drug tests. He also was arrested and charged with marijuana possession in 1997. In retirement, he has been arrested for domestic battery and assault, although both charges were dropped.

Lynch was asked whether Sapp possessed the "football character" he's seeking.

"I can tell you this about Warren Sapp: That guy loved football. I never wanted to play without him. My job was a lot harder when I played without him," Lynch said. "He was dependable. Those are the type of things. While he's had some issues, one of the things (head coach) Kyle (Shanahan) talks about a lot is 'protect the team.' And I felt that most of the time Warren protected the team.

Paraag Marathe

Paraag Marathe and his back story are a slice of 49ers intrigue

By Mark Purdy
San Jose Mercury News
August 7, 2017

Do you know Paraag Marathe? You don't know Paraag Marathe.

"Hey, it's the same oven!" he exclaimed.

We had just entered the front door of Mountain Mike's pizza parlor. Marathe grew up blocks away. But this was far more than Marathe's old stomping ground. This was much more.
"I don't know how long it's been since I was here," Marathe said, gazing around. "I helped my dad set up this place. I hired the first employees, I picked out this furniture. I picked this color scheme."

Yes, it turns out there is a lot that all of us don't know about Paraag Marathe. I used to think that was exactly how he and the 49ers wanted it. But as we sat down for a nearly two-hour lunch at the restaurant that this family once owned, a lot of insightful doors opened up into the team's mystery man.

Marathe's official title with the 49ers is "Chief Strategy Officer And Executive Vice-President of Football Operations." His unofficial title is "Senior Associate Lightning Rod." As basically the right-hand man of owner Jed York, Marathe has been given credit for helping the Levi's Stadium project come together and blamed for . . . well, just about everything else. Fans and various media voices have accused him of meddling in the college draft, lurking in the coaching booth on Sundays, spying on behalf of York and/or undermining the operation in just about any conspiracy theory you want to offer.

Do you know Paraag Marathe? You don't know Paraag Marathe. Through all the lightning bolts, the man himself has been polite whenever encountered but mostly silent, very rarely granting interviews. But he agreed to sit down with me when I suggested that we do the interview at one of the pizza places that his immigrant father and mother operated on Saratoga Sunnyvale Road throughout his childhood. We talked about his family's back story, one that may go against the image many 49ers fans have of him as a privileged intellectual with degrees from Cal and Stanford.

Marathe does indeed own those degrees. But his upbringing was hardly one of privilege. His parents immigrated from India and pursued the American dream from the ground up. They endured disappointment and tragedy as their two children pitched in to help the family succeed. It provides good insight into what makes Marathe tick and propelled him to the second most powerful executive on the business side of the 49ers organization–though he might argue that point, as we'll see in a few paragraphs.

Actually, Mountain Mike's was the second restaurant owned by Vijay and Seema Marathe. The first was a Round Table Pizza just up the street, in a building that's now a savings and loan. At the Round Table, Paraag would often stand behind the counter and work the cash register. Nothing unusual about that — except that he was only 12 years old at the time and slightly under five feet tall.

"I could barely see above the register," Marathe said. "It was almost like a gimmick for customers at first because I looked really young back then. It was a like a little kid was running the restaurant. But we would churn out 200 or 250 pizzas on a Friday evening and there were times I really would run the whole operation. It's crazy now when I think about it."

Marathe worked long hours at the pizza businesses while attending Lynbrook High School. That way, his father could keep his other job as an electronics engineer–a job that Vijay ultimately had to quit, anyway, because the pizza business was so labor intensive and many of the teenagers they employed didn't always show up. Marathe's dad needed to be there just in case.

"Which is why all my guilt came in," Marathe said. "It was like, why would I be with my buddies in the evening when I should be working to give my dad a break?"

It's the story of hundreds of immigrant Silicon Valley families. But this one had a new twist. After Vijay and Seema pushed themselves so hard to send their children through college, they wondered why in the heck Paraag wanted to pursue a career with a NFL team. It was a dream he'd had since he was ringing up those pepperoni specials while the 49ers games played on the projection big screen TV.

"In Indian American culture," Marathe said, "everyone's got to be a doctor or engineer . . . or maybe a lawyer. Like, working in sports, my whole family, the ones who are in India and everywhere else, they just thought this was a hobby."

Reading between the lines, you can see that Marathe was out to prove a point–both to those folks who chuckled at the kid behind the register and to the family members who were mystified why such a bright young man was so obsessed with . . . a football salary cap?

Do you know Paraag Marathe? You don't know Paraag Marathe. He's a competitive guy who, while pitching for his high school baseball team, sparked a brawl in a game when he followed his coach's orders to throw at an opposing batter. But it was Marathe's obsession with front office NFL matters that fueled his rapid rise in the 49ers organization after he joined it 17 years ago as a jack-of-all-trades numbers guy who knew finances and statistics and how the NFL dealt with both. He became expert in negotiating contract terms. Marathe eventually became Chief Operating Officer and finally team president. He and.York were considered hotshot young wizards when the 49ers went to the Super Bowl following the 2012 season.

Then came 2014. A clumsy offload of coach Jim Harbaugh led to the 49ers losing 25 of their next 32 games. And the two young wizards conjured up only loathing among the fan base. Marathe lost his president's title–but is still a major front office presence.

So what does Marathe do, exactly? If you ask around the league, the people who deal with him tend to respect him and his intelligence. Yet some of those people ask the same question. So could he please enlighten us? He could.

"The lion's share of my job," Marathe said, "is what it's been for a long period of time — chief negotiator, monitoring the salary cap and figuring out our Collective Bargaining Agreement compliance with the league. The other part of my job has evolved over time. In the beginning, I was a troubleshooter looking at things where we could make things more efficient and better. And then I was finding a location for a new stadium and doing the stuff for the Levi's project."

With Levi's complete, Marathe dipped into other branches of the 49ers multi-tentacled operation, including a stadium-technology startup and a piece of Sacramento's pro soccer team. So why do 49ers fans think he's to blame for so much of the team's recent misery? Probably because he has participated in the coaching searches that resulted in Jim Tomsula and Chip Kelly's miserable seasons — and remains involved in day to day elements of the operation under new general manager John Lynch and new head coach Kyle Shanahan.

"I'd say 75 of my job is football related," Marathe said, "because the cap goes up and up and up and now we're at $165 million and accounting for every dollar and penny takes a lot of time."

Is criticism of him fair when the team does a faceplant?

"Yes, absolutely," Marathe said. "We're measured by wins and losses . . .We haven't won and we have to get that straightened out . . . (but) I'm not the spokesperson for football. That's John and Kyle's job and they're really good at it. And that's not my job. My job is to do my job and do it so I can be useful and a utility player for them."

Which is where things get foggy. How, exactly, does Marathe define the term "utility player?" He says it means that he takes orders from Lynch and Shanahan if they need him to research a potential player's expected compensation and whether it fits into the 49ers template–or anything else they might ask.

"I support those guys in everything football," Marathe said. "I'm our chief contract negotiator and manage our salary cap and help them in all our player personnel decisions. And you'd better have your 'A' game because they're going to challenge you. It's their show and I'm here to support them . . . The only time I do something with football is because someone wants me to do it. There are certain things within game management that I've done, but only at the request of the head coach."

Out of respect for the York family and coaches, Marathe also keeps his mouth shut in public. The practical effect, however, is that Marathe becomes an empty vessel for fans and media to fill up with castigation for things that he might or might not have actually done. At some point, he surely must want to speak up and clarify whether that's true.

"Is it frustrating?" Marathe said. "That's one of the things I learned from Round Table when I was 12 years old. People were counting me out because they thought I couldn't do that job. I learned how to just focus on doing the best I can. I can't sit here and tell you that it doesn't hurt. My wife and my daughter, my in-laws and my parents do live a stone's throw away from where we are right now. They hear and read things. That hurts. I'm still human. But all I can do is know that the sun rises and sun sets– and focus on doing the best job I can."

Do you know Paraag Marathe? You don't know Paraag Marathe. He gained the best perspective, sadly, when his sister died in 2005 after years in the grip of anorexia. That was the Marathe family tragedy. As the condition of Shilpa Marathe progressed, Paraag had difficulty dealing with her situation. He considered it grim irony that his family was in the food service business while at home, Shilpa had an eating disorder that made her so thin and weak, Vijay had to carry her upstairs to bed every night.

"Because I was really into my job at the time," Paraag said, "I became good at blocking it out of my mind, compartmentalizing. I probably didn't get at peace with it until 2012, 2013, 2014 . . . and then I kind of had that moment where I felt like I had this voice because I'm in this industry where . . . no one talks about mental illness that often. And being in an immigrant family, there's no such thing as mental anxiety or mental issues. You should just do or not do. There's nothing else. And being a male, to be able to talk about anorexia . . .I felt I had a really good platform to be heard. So I started to get involved and there's a couple of boards that I joined."

The two organizations, Andrea's Voice and Project Heal, have websites to consult for those dealing with anorexia in their own families. But Marathe says the first step is "to talk about it because I kept it inside for many years."

By now, the lunch was almost over. Marathe kibitzed a bit with the restaurant's current owner, Eil Abbasi, who bought the Mountain Mike's outlet place from Marathe's parents a while ago. Looking back on it, Marathe said, his pizza experience was exhausting but invaluable.

"I honestly felt like my third parent was Round Table Pizza," Marathe said. "It was more influential in my life than anything I can think of, including school and graduate school . . . You know, I was interviewing prospective employees when I was 13 or 14 years old, hiring delivery drivers . . . Knowing I was being counted out but knowing if you keep your head down and focused on what's doing right and not listen to the noise, that's what you need."

As we wrapped up our interview, he asked: "How'd you like the pizza?"

Marathe then told one final story. Both his family's pizza places were not far from Saratoga High School, so the football team often showed up for postgame meals. One of the Saratoga High players that Marathe served was a frosh-soph wide receiver named Kyle Shanahan.

Shanahan is the new 49ers' head coach. Does he know Paraag Marathe? Shanahan didn't then. He does now. After lunch at Mountain Mike's, maybe we all do.

Of Will Ferrell, Jerry Rice and Drake: How Kyle Shanahan is rebuilding 49ers culture

By Nick Wagoner
ESPN
September 5, 2017

To find the ultimate answer for creating a successful culture on a NFL team, why not go to a guy with an economics degree from the Ivy League?

Luckily, the San Francisco 49ers have fullback Kyle Juszczyk (Harvard, '13).

"You didn't know that Will Ferrell is the key to building a football franchise?" Juszczyk said with a grin creeping across his face. "I thought everyone knew that."

Juszczyk, of course, was joking. Well, sort of. The real answer to building a culture that can lead to sustained success in a league full of parity is far more complicated. It's an answer the 49ers are currently seeking under first-time head coach Kyle Shanahan and general manager John Lynch.

Believe it or not, Ferrell is part of the equation, and so are Jerry Rice and Drake. In San Francisco, it requires striking a balance between pulling from a rich tradition and finding ways to evolve.

For Shanahan, it also means mixing in various things he picked up during his years around his father, Mike, when Mike was the head coach of the Denver Broncos. Those are things Kyle carried through a collegiate playing career at Texas and through 13 seasons as an NFL assistant.

"I think the most important thing is getting the right people," Shanahan said. "Everyone can talk about the culture and what you're trying to build, but you have to get the right people who are capable of being a part of the culture that you want because it's got to be natural. It's got to be real. It can't be fake, so what we try so hard to do is get people in here where football means everything to them. It means just as much to them as it does to me and it does to everyone in this building, to where our No. 1 priority in everything we do is to win on Sunday."

Majoring in football

Sitting in his spacious office at the SAP training facility on a recent afternoon, Shanahan has his shoes off and feet up on the desk as he ponders the origins of his culture-building philosophy. It's clearly something he has thought about a lot.

When Shanahan says he wants people who care as much as he does, he offers examples. For instance, when he was playing at Cherry Creek (Colorado) High, anytime he suffered an injury, he ditched class so he could go to the Broncos training facility for treatment so he could play in the next game.

"I obviously grew up in a football house, and it's not like my dad told me to be that way," Shanahan said. "It's just playing high school football was the most important thing in my life, and when I got to college, playing college was, and then when I got into coaching the pros, being successful as a coach was the most important thing. Every decision I made was that way."

Take when Shanahan sat out his redshirt season at Texas after transferring from Duke. In December 2000, the Longhorns held a scrimmage for the redshirt players in the midst of bowl practices. In one of Shanahan's classes, the final was scheduled for the day of the scrimmage.

A seemingly meaningless practice or an important final? The decision for the seven teammates Shanahan had in the class was easy: take the final.

"I was the only guy who showed up to the scrimmage," Shanahan said. "They were like, 'Don't you have a final?' I was like, 'Yeah, I'll just take an F. I'm here for football, and there's no way I'm missing a scrimmage to go to this class.' I had a B in the class, and I ended up getting a D-minus because I skipped a final. They thought I was crazy. I wasn't doing it to show off to the coaches. I was doing it because I came to Texas to play football. I'll be all right with my grades, but I came here because that was how my mindset was. That's how it is in coaching, and that's how I expect players to be."

Shanahan and Lynch have driven that message home from the day they arrived in the Bay Area in January. When the Niners approached free agency armed with nearly $100 million in salary-cap space, they didn't intend to spend money for the sake of spending. Shanahan wanted players who wouldn't be changed by big paydays. He wanted players who would set examples for younger players about what is required of them if they want to get a big payday.

Much of that money was spent on players such as Pierre Garcon, who Shanahan already knew would be the same guy, regardless of the extra zeros on his check. Lynch dug deep to make sure players he had never coached had his same ethos, which they found in Juszczyk.

"I go back to something that Bill Parcells told me a long time ago. He said, 'Jed, this is kind of a cheat sheet for owners. If your coach can't explain how they're going to use a player, don't sign the check,'" York said. "I think that's so true. You look at some of the guys we brought in, and either they have a connection directly or indirectly in the past, and Kyle knows how he wants to use people. He knows what they do well. And when you have that mentality, it helps set that tone from the beginning. Right now we're trying to build a foundation, and that doesn't mean we're not trying to win, but you can't consistently win unless you have a strong foundation. If we can get that done, the sky is the limit. Whether it's this year or in the future, we want to make sure that we have that foundation built, and I think Kyle and John have done an unbelievable job of identifying, 'This is what we want 49ers football to be about, and we're going to find people to fit that mold.'"

'There's not a bear in the building'

Early in the Niners' first preseason game against Kansas City, Shanahan's first game as a head coach, cornerback Rashard Robinson was on the wrong end of a long completion to Chiefs receiver Tyreek Hill. Soon after, he missed a tackle that would have forced Kansas City to kick a field goal. Robinson was upset as he returned to the sideline, until he heard a familiar bit of 49ers' jargon.

"There's not a bear in the building," Juszczyk said. "It's an obscure reference, but it makes sense when it comes to football. Just summing it up, there's no need to panic out there. There's not a bear in the building. Jump offsides, you have a bad play, whatever happens out there, there's no need to panic. Nothing is worse than a bear actually being in the building. That's not what we're dealing with."

Even for the most fervent fans of Will Ferrell movies, the bear in the building might not immediately jump to mind. It's a reference to the 2008 movie "Semi-Pro," in which Ferrell plays an ABA basketball owner/coach/player named Jackie Moon. During one scene, Moon is forced to wrestle a bear, which eventually escapes into an arena full of people. Once the bear breaks free, Moon shouts into a microphone, "EVERYBODY PANIC!"

Early in his tenure as coach, Shanahan showed the clip to his team. It's one he picked up from Atlanta coach Dan Quinn when he was the Falcons' offensive coordinator. Quinn, whom Shanahan notes is a big proponent of culture, likes to find ways to keep it light while offering an important message.

Shanahan has also been known to make frequent references to the Catalina Wine Mixer, a fictional helicopter leasing event in the movie "Stepbrothers," again with a lesson for his players to not let a moment get the better of them.

"Some things you have to realize it's just not that big of a deal," defensive tackle Earl Mitchell said. "It's not the Catalina Wine Mixer. Those are the two big messages: There's not a bear in the building, and it's not like we're at the Catalina Wine Mixer."

When the Niners turned the ball over five times in a preseason loss to Denver, both of those phrases were tossed around liberally on the Niners' sideline.

"You start fumbling, and guys are coming to the sideline, and everyone is freaking out," Shanahan said. "Everyone wants to freak out after the game, and like, 'We suck. We can't do anything,' and it's like, guys, there's not a f---ing bear in the building. We had five turnovers. They had zero. Go look at the stats. It's probably 0 percent win percentage. Let's not reinvent the wheel. Let's not panic. Let's learn how to not have five turnovers, and then we'll talk about how to play football after that. It kind of brings perspective to everybody."

'If Jerry Rice wants to practice, go ahead and practice'

For four straight years, Shanahan has made it a point to find a young running back and ask him if he knows who Marcus Allen is. He has yet to get a positive ID. As a lifelong student of the game, it drives Shanahan crazy.

So when Shanahan and Lynch took over the Niners, one of their top priorities was to make sure that every player on the roster knows about the franchise's storied past.

"I think of San Francisco like people think of the Yankees," Shanahan said. "Just me growing up, that's what the Niners were just throughout the '80s and early '90s. They were the team, and I know my generation saw them that way. I don't know how all the players now feel. Half these guys don't know a lot of players that would surprise the hell out of you if you ask them. You want people to understand the expectations of something like that and the standard that they set.

"You want players to understand that and respect it and grow from it. But that's about where it ends. You have to do everything else on your own. You just want people to understand the importance of where you're at."

Lest any of the Niners forget, Shanahan and Lynch have made sure that there are visual cues almost everywhere you look. Levi's Stadium now has banners of current and former stars, with other pieces recognizing great moments in team history. On the walk into the locker room, the wall to the right is adorned with a mural featuring Joe Montana, Ronnie Lott, Patrick Willis, Roger Craig and Steve Young, with the words "It won't be easy, but it will be worth it" underneath it. Shanahan also changed how the lockers are arranged, eschewing the usual position group formation and mixing players from all facets of the team.

Along with that, any time there's an opportunity to bring one of the franchise's legends into the building, the Niners haven't hesitated. Before one training camp practice, Young and Rice spoke to the team. During that day's workout, the 54-year-old Rice appeared in shorts, a T-shirt, cleats and receiver gloves and went through individual drills with the receivers. When team drills started, Rice lined up about 5 yards behind the play and ran through every rep, offering an example of what went into making him the most prolific receiver in league history.

"It's almost like a cheat sheet," Lynch said. "This is the way it should be. And these guys know when we walk by those Super Bowl trophies that they don't come free. You've got to go earn them, but why not take advantage of guys like that, and why not invite them? And if Jerry Rice wants to practice, go ahead and practice. That's good for us. And Steve Young up here, I've always respected Steve. The stories they told, I think, better than we ever could, they told them what the 49er way is, and it was awesome."

To be sure, Shanahan and Lynch are well-aware that they can't use the past as a crutch.

"Our past is something that we want to celebrate, but we can't rest on what people did in the past," York said. "We have to build our own present and make our own future, and I think that's what Kyle and John understand. I think it's really important that those guys know this is what Bill Walsh was about, this is what the great 49er teams were about, and that's part of their fabric, but they've also made it their own. I think that's the thing that's important. You can't be Bill Walsh. You can't be George Seifert, you can't be somebody else, but that's a part of their fabric, and I think it makes it a lot easier for me to communicate with those guys because the 49ers run in their blood."

Age as an advantage

In addition to his duties as Shanahan's administrative assistant, Nick Kray is known as DJ Kray Kray, the man responsible for the practice music. Kray has his own pop-up tent near the practice field where he spins a variety of cuts -- mostly hip hop -- during every workout. Behind closed doors, Kray handles plenty of other daily tasks, including putting together the aforementioned video clips.

Kray's musical stylings aren't limited to the practice field, either. Before every team meeting, music is playing. The artist most often heard? Drake. More often than not, that comes at the request of Shanahan, not because he's actively trying to relate to his players but because he genuinely likes it.

"I play Drake because I like Drake," Shanahan said. "That's still what I listen to. I'm still close with the music. Now it's starting to be different, but I still know the main guys. I don't know some of the weird stuff. But Drake is what I would be playing because that's what I like."

At 37, Shanahan is older than every player on the Niners' roster, but he's close enough in age that it's not that difficult for him to relate to his team. Veterans such as Mitchell and center Daniel Kilgore emphasize that Shanahan sets a standard of what is expected of each player, and so long as those players meet that standard, there is time for fun.

But Shanahan has long viewed his relative youth as an advantage when it comes to connecting with players of all backgrounds. He is quick to point out that none of that matters unless he can first earn every player's respect as the coach. That's why he emphasized being able to provide answers to any and all questions. If not, players will pick up on it right away.

"I think that's been one of the first things that kind of jumped out to me is just, like, he understands the younger culture and the lingo," Juszczyk said. "I think he can use it to his advantage to be able to get the point across. It's not just the same old banter that you have earned from older coaches your whole career. He kind of puts it into our perspective and understands it a little bit better."

Plenty to prove

The idea of measuring culture is nearly impossible. For now, Shanahan will only allow that he is happy with his team's work ethic. The real tests will come after the Niners go through a losing streak. Shanahan knows that such tests are on the way.

For a team that was 2-14 a year ago, fixing everything in one offseason is almost impossible. These Niners still have plenty of holes, but there seems to be a genuine belief that things are headed in the right direction, especially once they get the right people in place.

"We want 53 guys who realize this is what I do to support my family, this is what I do for a living, and this will come over everything -- except, obviously, your family and life-and-death decisions," Shanahan said. "But [otherwise] this is the No. 1 important thing in my life."

In other words, 53 players who are willing to skip the final.

'I could feel the pole coming out of my leg': Freak injury sped up Shanahan's career

By Matt Barrows

Kyle Shanahan's dog needed to go to the bathroom. It altered the trajectory of his career.

It was about 5 p.m. on a summer day in 2001. Shanahan was a 21-year-old receiver at the time, one day from joining his University of Texas teammates for the upcoming season. He was at his parents' house in Denver when he took his dog out in the backyard and went to jump over a four-foot-high fence with decorative, iron prongs at the top.

Shanahan, 6-3 and 185 pounds, had been training furiously all year and was in prime physical condition. He'd leaped the fence hundreds of times. But this time, his hand slipped as he went to propel himself and he came crashing down.

"I thought I was going to hit my head on the ground and I just stopped," Shanahan recalled.

He found himself dangling upside down, his left thigh impaled on one of the fence's spear points. His father, Mike, was the Denver Broncos' head coach at the time and already was at the team's training camp in Greeley, Colo. His mother wasn't home.

"No one was out there," he said. "So I had to reach to the ground and push myself off it. It was nasty. I could feel the pole coming out of my leg. And I was so upset because I knew right then, 'Man, I've just messed this up for myself.' Because I was going to training camp the next day."

In 2008, Shanahan became the youngest coordinator in the NFL at age 28 when he was picked to run the Houston Texans' offense. In February, at age 37, the 49ers made him the NFL's second-youngest head coach behind the Los Angeles Rams' Sean McVay. Everything about him and San Francisco's new regime smacks of energy and youth.

But he never would have gotten such a quick start at coaching if his hand hadn't slipped that summer afternoon.

Shanahan's dream at the time was to play in the NFL and it was realistic. A strong spring earned Shanahan the role of No. 3 receiver on a loaded Texas squad that featured Roy Williams and B.J. Johnson at receiver, Major Applewhite and Chris Simms at quarterback and Cedric Benson at tailback.

"I've never seen a guy work as hard as he did to prepare himself," said Darryl Drake, Texas' wide receivers coach at the time who now has the same job with the Arizona Cardinals.

"He wasn't the fastest guy in the world, he wasn't the most gifted guy, but he understood the game," Drake said. "He had a great feel for the position. He was a guy that I was counting on – and we were counting on – to have a big-time role."

Shanahan said when he removed himself from the fence he found he couldn't walk. So he crawled to the back door.

"And I promise, it didn't hurt that bad," he said. "It was like the worst deep thigh bruise you could ever have. There wasn't a lot of blood, but I could see my muscle. And I could see it twitch."

He got a friend to drive him to the hospital. His initial instinct was to have it stitched up and to play through any pain. But it quickly became clear that the wound was too deep, too ripe for an infection – there were paint chips from the fence inside – and that he needed to have surgery.

He called the Broncos' team doctors and soon underwent a two-hour procedure that required three layers of 21 staples to close. Shanahan has a white, nine-inch scar to remind him of the event.

Today he freely talks about the incident and even offers to reenact how it happened using a chair in a Levi's Stadium office as a prop. When it's suggested to him that he has the same proud wound an ancient Greek warrior might have picked up in battle, he frowns.

"It's not really bad-ass," he said. "I was walking my dog. But it was gruesome."

At the time, he was crushed.

Doctors told Shanahan he wouldn't play that season. They were wrong. He missed only one game and was back on the field in 18 days. But he lost his prime spot in the rotation, never regained his former speed or quickness and finished the year with seven catches.

Drake says he doesn't know where Shanahan ultimately would have been drafted but that he had the ability to play in the NFL.

"It was devastating," he said. "Not only for him but for me personally because he's a guy that I loved dearly and wanted to see him go out and show what I knew he was capable he was doing."

Shanahan had an invitation to the scouting combine after his senior season but didn't go. He stopped lifting weights. His NFL aspirations slipped away.

"I went through depression for a while over it," he admits. "My whole life, my whole world was playing (football). It was tough on me. It took me a long time to get over it."

A few months into 2003, he got a job on UCLA's coaching staff. Six months later, he was hired by the Tampa Bay Buccaneers. He's been in the NFL since.

"I always knew I would eventually coach," he said. "But the work I put into the scholarship to Texas – I lived and died for playing at the time. I had aspirations to try to play in the NFL. I knew when it was all done and I'd made my run – whenever that was – that I would coach. But I always joke with players; I say it sarcastically: 'If I never had this injury I'd probably taking one of your guys' job.' Then they all laugh at me. Because obviously I wouldn't have."

Lifetime focus on football put 49ers' Shanahan on fast track

By Matt Kawahara
Sacramento Bee
February 11, 2017

Kyle Shanahan's initiation into the 49ers family began years ago.

While his father, Mike, was running the 49ers' offense from 1992 to 1994, Kyle tagged along as a ballboy. And of course, players tried to make the kid feel included.

"We forced him to sit on Santa Claus' lap at the team Christmas party," recalled former 49ers tight end Brent Jones. "I think (Santa) was actually Bill Walsh. And we told him that was part of the deal – if you were a child of one of the coaches or players, you had to sit on Santa's lap.

"He was probably 14 or 15. I've got pictures somewhere."

Shanahan is now 37, an accomplished coach himself. And Monday, the 49ers placed at least a share of their future in his lap, making him the 20th head coach in franchise history.

"He's not only a smart football man, but he's a leader who sets the tone through his work ethic," new general manager John Lynch said Thursday in a news conference introducing the two. "I like what Kyle represents because he's (dedicated). He knows what he wants, and he's going to find a way to make that happen."

While the move had been expected for days – the 49ers had to wait until after the Atlanta Falcons, with Shanahan as offensive coordinator, lost the Super Bowl in gut-wrenching fashion to the New England Patriots – one could argue that for Shanahan it was part of a natural progression going back much further.

They could point to the childhood spent around football, the father who won three Super Bowl rings as a coach and the swift ascension through the NFL's coaching ranks, capped by orchestrating the league's top-ranked offense last season in Atlanta.

Indeed, Shanahan said in his introductory 49ers news conference Thursday that becoming an NFL head coach had been a goal "my whole life." He added, though, that he would not have accepted just any job. And in a way, his hiring marks a return of sorts, to a place that helped dictate his path.

Shanahan said his early experience with the 49ers has "always been a special part of my heart." He recalled summers spent at the team's training camp in Rocklin, sleeping on a rollout bed in his father's room with former offensive-line coach Bobb McKittrick as his connecting roommate, playing pingpong nightly with wide receiver John Taylor.

"It took me two years to beat him," Shanahan said, "and then after I did, he finally told me he was going to start using his right hand.

"But guys like Harris Barton, Tom Rathman, Steve Young, Jerry Rice, all these guys have really been a big part of my life, even though I was only with those guys for three years," he said. "It's just, those are the guys I looked up to and guys I wanted to be."

HARD WORKER CLIMBS COACHING LADDER

He would not reach their level in pads. A wide receiver in college, Shanahan played his final two seasons at Texas, totaling a modest 14 catches for 127 yards. He then landed a job as a graduate assistant at UCLA in 2003 under then-head coach Karl Dorrell.

"He had a knack for just loving the game and understanding the process of seeing what defenses do and reacting to it and trying to make plays for the offense," Dorrell, now a receivers coach for the New York Jets, said by phone. "It was kind of in his DNA, so to speak. He was already in that mode of a coach prior to him landing his first job."

Dorrell had met the younger Shanahan while coaching receivers in Denver under his father. But the decision to hire Shanahan, he said, arose not out of loyalty to the family but because he recognized in Kyle "somebody who wanted to plant his own roots."

"He put in the work – there's no question about that," Dorrell said. "By no means did he think he was entitled to anything. He was trying to work his way up the ladder."

He did so quickly, spending two years as a quality control assistant in Tampa Bay under Jon Gruden, then two more as a position coach in Houston under Gary Kubiak. In 2008, the Texans made him the youngest coordinator in the NFL at age 28, giving him the reins to an offense that finished in the top five in total yardage in each of the next two seasons.

What followed was far less smooth. In 2010, Shanahan left Houston to be the offensive coordinator in Washington under his father. But his first season was marked by tension with veteran quarterback Donovan McNabb, a six-time Pro Bowl player who ultimately was benched late in the season as the team went 6-10.

Recalling his season with Shanahan to the East Bay Times recently, McNabb said: "We both had our egos. There was no sitting down and discussing what we were going to do to make it easier for every party going forward."

Shanahan worked with three primary quarterbacks in four seasons in Washington. His offense tailored around Robert Griffin III thrived in Griffin's rookie season in 2012 but stalled the following year, which Washington finished 3-13, leading to the Shanahans being fired.

Thursday, Shanahan recalled his time in Washington as "a great learning experience. I wouldn't take it back for the world. It wasn't the most fun place to be at. There was a lot of ups and downs. But I think it was a pivotal point in my career. I think I got a lot better from it."

Those years likely contributed to a perception, which hasn't dimmed much, of Shanahan being cocky – something he took exception to when asked about it Thursday.

"You get humbled every single day," he said. "As soon as you feel good about yourself, you're going to get humbled very quickly. So I never really feel that good. I don't think it's fair to say I'm cocky and arrogant. But I also don't know a lot of people, either."

His self-assessment led to one of the lighter moments of Thursday's news conference.

"There's really two things that are important to me, and that's my family and football, and that's really all the things I think about," Shanahan said. "As sad as that is, it's true."

Still, the 49ers could perhaps use an edge as they attempt to rebound from a 2-14 season under the recently fired Chip Kelly. Broadcasting a Falcons game weeks ago, before either was hired by the 49ers, Lynch made a prophetic observation about Shanahan.

"Kyle, I think he goes in these (head-coaching) interviews and maybe comes off a little confident, a little arrogant," Lynch said. "I don't care. I want an arrogant coach. I want a confident coach. I'd be hiring that guy in a second."

TRIUMPH, HEARTBREAK IN ATLANTA

It wasn't only Shanahan's attitude that convinced the 49ers to give him a six-year deal, an extraordinary show of faith in a man with no head-coaching experience. Atlanta's offense last season led the NFL in points per game (33.8), ranked second in yards (415.8) and produced the MVP in quarterback Matt Ryan, earning Shanahan the Assistant Coach of the Year honor from the Pro Football Writers Association and The Associated Press.

His tenure there ended painfully. The Falcons blew a 28-3 third-quarter lead in a 34-28 overtime loss to the Patriots in the Super Bowl, after which Shanahan was pilloried for his play-calling late in the game – namely, to continue throwing when a more conservative approach might have helped Atlanta salt away a championship.

Thursday, days removed from the loss, Shanahan said he was still "definitely grieving on it, and I probably will for a while." Ryan, though, said after the game he did not blame his coordinator.

"Too aggressive? No. I thought Kyle did a good job," he said. "I thought we played the way that we play. We always play aggressive, and play to win, and we had opportunities as players."

Already, the 49ers had begun to envision that style for their own. Not 24 hours passed between the Super Bowl's dramatic ending and the 49ers officially naming Shanahan their new head coach. Linebacker NaVorro Bowman attended the news conference, observing his fourth head coach in as many seasons.

"I can say for myself, standing on the sideline (last season while injured) watching the Falcons just move the ball up and down the field, with my intellect, he had me (confused)," Bowman said. "So I'm glad to have him on our side."

His rise from 49ers ballboy to their head coach complete, Shanahan now faces a much larger challenge: Restore the luster to a faded franchise.

"I think he's one of the brightest minds in the game," Lynch said. "He's proven that, I think, every step of his career.

"He had a big challenge because his dad was kind of a big deal in this league. But Kyle, I think to me, he's a guy who soaked in all the knowledge and experience of being a coach's son, but then went out and did it on his own, and has become his own man."

Not first pick, Saleh has proven to be best choice as 49ers D coordinator

Robert Saleh knows he was not Kyle Shanahan's first choice as 49ers defensive coordinator. But, now, Shanahan has come to conclude Saleh might have been the best choice for the job.

After Shanahan was named 49ers head coach in February, the clock was ticking for him to put together his staff. Former Jacksonville Jaguars coach Gus Bradley accepted the coordinator job with the San Diego Chargers. And the Chicago Bears would not allow Vic Fangio out of his contract to return to the 49ers.

But with two games remaining in his first season as 49ers' defensive coordinator, Saleh has proven himself and will unquestionably be back in the same role next season, Shanahan said.

"Yeah, there's no doubt about that," Shanahan said on "49ers Game Plan," which is scheduled to air Saturday at 3 p.m. on NBC Bay Area (Ch. 3).

"Robert has been great. I think he's gotten better throughout the year, and I think he'll be even better next year. Robert has a great future ahead of him. And I feel very fortunate that he's the coordinator for the Niners."

Saleh, appearing on the 49ers Insider Podcast during training camp, said he knew he was not the top person on Shanahan's list to become defensive coordinator after serving three seasons as Jacksonville's linebackers coach. But he said he was confident if he got an interview, he would convince Shanahan of his worthiness to lead the defense.

And that is exactly what he has accomplished while implementing his 4-3 scheme. The 49ers were ranked last in the league a year ago. This season, the 49ers' defense is holding the opposition to 56 fewer yards per game and is 22nd overall.

The 49ers' defense is playing its best football in the second half of the season. A defense that was among the worst in league history stopping the run a year ago has now turned in four consecutive games of holding the opposition to fewer than 100 yards rushing.

"I think Robert has done a great job," Shanahan said. "It's his first year as a coordinator, and I know he's waited for this time for a while. He's been everything I hoped for and more. He's very smart with how he's run our scheme. I've been excited with our scheme."

The 49ers' improved defensive play has coincided with better continuity – the result of fewer injuries forcing starters to leave the lineup.

"He's really worked through a lot of things this year with moving people around with the injuries we've had and trying to find the best spots for guys," Shanahan said. "I think it's not a coincidence this last month or so we've had the most consistent play with the same people out there. If you look through our first 10 weeks, it seemed like a new lineup almost every week.

"And the more guys can play together, the more you can run the same coverages, the same fronts, the same blitzes every week-in and week-out, and that's when you can start improving."

By Grant Cohn

Forty-Niners defensive coordinator Robert Saleh nearly went into the furniture business.

This was 2001. Saleh was 22 years old, fresh out of Northern Michigan University, where he played tight end and majored in finance. He got a job at Comerica Bank and prepared to take over the family business, a furniture store in Detroit.

"If you just talk furniture," Saleh said on a sunny afternoon at the 49ers practice facility, "there are so many different things you have to organize at one time. There's your warehousing, your employees, your bookkeeping. There's the sales part.

Saleh's older brother, David, was a financial adviser for Morgan Stanley and worked in the World Trade Center. On 9/11, David was in the South Tower when the plane hit. He escaped.

"That was the 'aha' moment for me," Saleh said. "It gave me an opportunity to reflect on whether or not I was doing the things I wanted to do. My brother, did he get to do things that he really wanted to do? Or did he want to sit in an office and crunch numbers?"

Saleh is of Lebanese decent. He grew up in Dearborn, Michigan, home of the largest concentration of Arabs in the world outside of the Middle East. His dad, Sam, owns the furniture store, a demolition company and a bank.

"My dad chased money," Saleh said. "He always wanted to coach football, but he didn't. I wanted to coach, and I talked about it with our head coach at Northern Michigan, but afterward I just went home."

That was before 9/11. After 9/11, Saleh quit his job at Comerica and became a defensive assistant at Michigan State. Four years later, he was coaching in the NFL.

Now, he's in his first season as a defensive coordinator. And Sunday, he faces his mentor, Seattle Seahawks head coach Pete Carroll. Carroll hired Saleh as a defensive quality-control assistant in 2011 and together they won a Super Bowl in 2013.

"There wasn't anything Robert did that wasn't first class and right on point," Carroll said. "No indications of anything other than he was going to be in this position eventually. He was prepared to do this and he's doing a really fine job with it."

In Seattle, Carroll helped Saleh develop a football philosophy. Saleh calls his philosophy a mission statement.

"I keep it in my office," he said. "It's 'A commitment to consistently execute the details required to compete at our greatest level, with loyalty and conviction.'"

What does that mean?

"It means being committed to not only my family, but the people I'm working for and the people counting on me to do a job.

"Being consistent in my message day in and day out. Not double talking.

"Being very detailed. I try to go overboard in detail so there is zero gray area in what we're asking a player to do.

"Competing. That would be No. 4. Always competing. Everything we do is a competition, from reading a book to driving a car.

"Loyalty. All players really want is for you to give them something that can help them and to show that you care. And the only way you can show that is to be as loyal as possible.

"And then conviction. I will never approach anything unless I'm completely convinced that it's the right thing to do."

In addition to instilling this code, Carroll helped Saleh develop a system.

"The whole scheme is built on the premise of having strong convictions in what you want," Saleh said, "having an identity of what you are and giving the players enough looks that they can actually get good at what you're asking them to do.

"We don't do a lot. We play simple three-deep zone, some man-to-man coverage and a little curveball here and there. Players, just by nature of doing the same thing over and over again, will get good at it naturally. They start to understand what teams are trying to do to them because there are only so many ways you can attack our system.

"Once they're not worried about what their schematic job is, and when they're not worried about what their fundamental technique is, they only have one more thing to worry about — the offense."

Five teams currently use this scheme — the 49ers, Seahawks, Chargers, Jaguars and Falcons. The scheme has been successful on each team. Here is Gus Bradley, defensive coordinator of the Chargers, on Saleh:

"Robert has done a great job everywhere he has been at. The first time I met him he was with the Houston Texans. We hired him with the Seattle Seahawks. And his growth that took place in Seattle, being in that system for a number of years, led me to hire him at Jacksonville.

"And at Jacksonville he did a great job with the linebacking crew, and his overall input on game planning led me to believe that there was no doubt he was ready to take the next step. And the opportunity he has at the 49ers, I know that each day, each week and each year that he's there, that team will improve on defense because that's his past history."

But, the Pete Carroll- Gus Bradley-Robert Saleh scheme would be irrelevant if the players didn't play hard. And Saleh's players play hard, which you wouldn't expect from a team with a 1-9 record.

"We have our standard, our style of what we're trying to accomplish," Saleh said. "There's the violence that we want to play with, the effort that we want to play with and, of course, a team that constantly attacks the ball. That's our style.

"We consistently show them what it looks like versus what it doesn't look like. And when the players can hold themselves accountable to a standard, that's when it becomes contagious, and that's when you get a team that can play really hard."

No one embodies Saleh's ferocious defense more than rookie linebacker Reuben Foster. Foster comes from the University of Alabama, where he played under Nick Saban, one of the best football minds in the world.

What does Foster think Saleh brings to the table?

"Confidence and poise," Foster said. "He brings attitude. He brings love to the sport. Passion. He makes you want to go out there, just how he talks about the game. He comes to you in a professional way. And it's so smooth, to the point where I want to do this for you, Coach, because of how you said it to me. It's business. I love that about him."

Saleh already has improved the defense. Last season, it ranked dead last against the run. This season, it ranks 14th of 32 teams.

What does Saleh think he brings to the table? How does he get his players to play hard?

"That's a tough question," he said. "You can be a rah-rah guy. You can be hard-nosed. You can be whatever you want. Tony Dungy is one of the most soft-spoken human beings in the world, and he got guys to play out of their minds.

"There are a million ways. That was something Pete always stressed — never be afraid to represent your style. You have to be authentic. My players know where my heart is."

49ers coordinator Robert Saleh paves way for Arab Americans in the NFL

By Eric Branch
San Francisco Chronicle
September 15, 2017

Before he was the 49ers' defensive coordinator, Robert Saleh was a credit analyst at Comerica Bank's world headquarters in Detroit.

Then 23 years old, Saleh was poised to follow in the lucrative footsteps of his older brother, a financial adviser, and his father, a business owner.

He was set.

And he was sobbing uncontrollably.

In February 2002, less than five months into his job analyzing multimillion-dollar loans, Robert called his brother, David, and told him he wanted to ditch financial security to pursue a dream. At least, that's what the hulking former college tight end said when he could finally form the words.

"I was trying to get him to get a grip and talk to me," David said. "I couldn't understand a word he was saying. Have you ever cried so hard where you can't even speak or breathe?"

Said Robert: "It was the kind of crying when you get the hiccups."

Fifteen years after that call, Robert, 38, was making calls last week as the NFL's third-youngest defensive coordinator in the 49ers' season opener.

For the rookie, who is believed to be the league's first Arab American coordinator, it was a strong debut: The 49ers allowed just 287 yards — their fifth-fewest in their past 38 games — in a 23-3 loss to the Carolina Panthers.

Now, he returns Sunday to Seattle, where he won a Super Bowl in 2014 while working under Seahawks head coach Pete Carroll, his most influential mentor.

For David, 41, who was at Levi's Stadium for the season opener, the game was a reminder of the sometimes penniless path his brother traveled, and the courage it required to begin the journey. Instead of earning a six-figure salary, Robert didn't pocket more than $800 a month until his fifth year in coaching. He spent his first two seasons living for free in the home of family friends.

He didn't start with much, but he also began without regrets.

How many people bemoan late in life the decision to work at a job instead of pursuing a passion?

"God bless him," David said. "There's something to be said about someone who knows at that age that he didn't want to be doing that. He had to travel the unknown, work pretty much for free and slave at it."

Football was a passion for the Saleh family and their hometown of Dearborn, Mich.

Their father, Sam, was a linebacker at Eastern Michigan who spent a training camp with the Chicago Bears. Their late uncle, Ossum, was a guard at Michigan State. Robert and David also played at Fordson High, and David, who has remained in finance, is an assistant coach at Dearborn Heights Crestwood High.

When he was 5, Robert began filling his falls with football as a water boy for David's pee-wee team. But Robert figured his 17-year relationship with the sport was finished after he was a four-year starter in college at Division II Northern Michigan.

And that's what was expected in his community. In Dearborn, which has the highest concentration of Arab Americans in the United States, stability and proximity are prized. Robert, the son of Lebanese parents, was working less than 30 miles away from home at Comerica.

"We come from a very close-knit community," said Brian Mosallam, a Dearborn native and close friend of the Salehs who helped Robert get into coaching. "It's a very insular community where we are always around family. So what Robert did was very different. Our kids don't go away and live in eight cities in six years."

Robert missed football. And he might have lived with his emptiness, if not for his father's experience. Sam still regrets declining an offer to be graduate-assistant coach at Eastern Michigan because, as Robert says, he chose to "chase money." Robert decided to chase the sport he felt rudderless without.

"I'd be in my cubicle and think, 'I'm not supposed to be here,'" he said. "And I finally reached a breaking point. I knew if I went into coaching, I'd lose my girlfriend, I'd have to leave home and I wouldn't have any money. I just reached a point where I didn't care. I wasn't going to live with the regret."

The problem: How to get a coaching job.

Robert and David enlisted the help of their coach at Fordson, Jeff Stergalas, and a group of former Michigan State football players that included their uncle and Mosallam. The ex-players made calls to their alma mater on Robert's behalf, while wondering: What was the kid thinking?

"He could have done very well (financially) and I just thought he was wasting his time, quite frankly," said Mosallam, 43, a financial adviser who is on Michigan State's board of trustees. "I just thought it was a crazy decision."

Robert Saleh knew many thought he was foolish. Before he landed a job as a graduate assistant at Michigan State, he was discouraged from taking the job during his interviews. Mike Vollmer, who played at Fordson and worked in MSU's football personnel department, was briefed on Saleh by their high school coach.

"He told me, 'Stergalas told me you'd be overly prepared,'" Saleh said, laughing. "'You don't want to do this. You can make so much money in banking.'"

Instead, Saleh made $650 a month during his two seasons in East Lansing and lived with his uncle's former MSU teammate, John Shinsky, 65, and his wife, Cindy.

Saleh repeatedly says it took a "village" for him to beat long odds. The Shinskys took him in ("You talk about a godsend," he says), his parents gave him their blessing and financial support and his first door opened because of a flood of calls on his behalf.

At some point, though, he had to prove he could coach. And he slowly rose through the ranks with a blend of creativity and ability.In 2004, he drove to Central Michigan and showed up unannounced at head coach Brian Kelly's office to ask for a job. He hoped Kelly would remember recruiting him seven years earlier. Kelly did, but he had bad news: He could only offer him a defensive graduate assistant position that paid $700 a month.

Saleh's reaction: A raise?

"I said, 'OK, that's great. I'll take it!'" Saleh said, laughing.

His decision quickly paid off. A year later, Saleh landed in the NFL based on the recommendation of Texans defensive backs coach Tony Oden, a former assistant at Central Michigan.

It was the start of a six-year stint in Houston during which he was promoted to quality control coach (2006-08) and assistant linebackers coach (2009-10). He went to Seattle as a defensive quality control coach (2011-13) before serving as Jacksonville's linebackers coach from 2014-16.

During his formative years in Houston, Saleh impressed defensive coordinator Richard Smith, whose strong recommendation landed him in Seattle, and then-Texans offensive coordinator Kyle Shanahan. The 49ers' head coach hired Saleh in February after Saleh presented him with a bulging binder that painstakingly detailed his plan for his first nine months on the job.

"I had this coordinator book," Saleh said. "And Kyle grabbed it and was like 'Geez.'"

Saleh also made an impression years ago on 49ers linebackers coach Johnny Holland, a former NFL player who spent five seasons with Saleh in Houston. Holland isn't surprised the former intern is now his boss.

"Back then, I knew he was special — such a smart and detailed guy," Holland said. "Robert will be a great defensive coordinator in this league. And there's no doubt he'll be a head coach in this league."

About his smarts: Despite no formal training, Saleh has a near-expert chess rating, and he also taught himself Vizio, the computer program NFL teams had starting using for their playbooks when he entered the league.

As a low-level assistant, he stood out because of his ability to produce mountains of work in a relatively short time. And Saleh's tech savviness gave Shinsky, who initially questioned Saleh's career choice, the first inkling that Michigan State's new graduate assistant coach might have a future.

"Robert would come home every night from work and get on his computer to get plays set up," Shinsky said. "He was so good with technology and that really enhanced his opportunity because he presented everything in an organized and detailed way."

Saleh is a long way from living in the Shinskys' upstairs bedroom. And he's even further removed from the day he called his brother crying hysterically.

"It just came down to: I could make money," Saleh said, "or coach football."

Fifteen years later, it was noted that he's currently doing both.

Robert Saleh: The Road from 9/11 to the 49ers

By Robert Klemko
The MMQB

The Seahawks were in the pupal stages of what would become five consecutive playoff appearances and a Super Bowl victory. It was early in 2011, the lockout year, and Pete Carroll was entering his second season on the job. Marshawn Lynch had been acquired in a trade with the Bills; second-year safety Earl Thomas held steadfast to his fast-receding dreadlocks; the world hadn't yet met Richard Sherman, an outspoken rookie cornerback who'd mostly played wide receiver at Stanford; Russell Wilson was negotiating a release from N.C. State to play his final year of college ball at Wisconsin.

Carroll, ever the motivator, asked his coaches to create mission statements. Among them was a newcomer, Robert Saleh, a quality control assistant who had come highly recommended to then-defensive coordinator Gus Bradley. "Carroll gave the coaches the task and the challenge of finding out what was very important to us as individuals," Saleh says, "to identify who we were as coaches … what defined us."

Saleh, 32 at the time, was not simply a man with an entry-level job in the NFL, but someone who was on a path to daily betterment. As summer morphed into fall, he would become an integral cog in a burgeoning NFL powerhouse. But first, he had to explain his personal philosophy in no more than 20 words.

In short, what do you stand for?

Robert Saleh's journey to the NFL began on Sept. 11, 2001. His oldest brother, David, was beginning his second day of intensive training as a financial advisor with his new employer, Morgan Stanley. During a work break, David looked down from the 61st floor of 2 World Trade Center, the South Tower, and gazed upon a monstrous yacht in the Hudson River that had two helicopters resting on helipads. It wasn't a sight often seen in his hometown of Dearborn, Mich.

"I could not believe how big this yacht was, based on how big it looked from being so high up," David says.

Suddenly, a fireball obscured his view. He didn't know it at the time, but it was American Airlines Flight 11 crashing into the North Tower at 8:46 a.m. David took a step back, stunned by the blast. His colleagues sprinted to the window, and his supervisor rushed into the room and asked, "What's going on?"

"I think the building next door just blew up," David told him.

The supervisor looked through the windows and saw charred debris falling to the ground. He instructed all employees to go back to their offices. Many trainees, including David, ignored him. David grabbed his suit coat, wallet, cell phone and briefcase and started moving down the packed staircase in what he describes as "a very intense and orderly flight."

"It wasn't any chaos or anything like that," David says. "On the 40th floor, I remember the intercom guy saying everything was good, it was an accident, everybody could go back to their offices and continue working."

Some people turned back, fighting against the flow to return to their offices. As David reached the 24th floor, 19 minutes after the first attack, United Airlines Flight 175 struck the South Tower, the building he was in, between the 77th and 85th floors. The stairwell shook, lights flickered. "Initially I had thought that the [first] building tipped over on top of us," David says. "Never in my wildest imagination did I think it would've been a plane."

The pace of the escape picked up. By the time David reached the 11th floor he saw firefighters ascending the doomed tower. "There was one firefighter," David says, "he was a kid, maybe like 19, 20, somewhere around there. His face looked like a white T-shirt."

By the time David reached ground level, evacuees were being diverted to a back exit, because victims trapped above the impact zone were jumping out of windows, with some impacts clustering around the other doors. When David got outside, he kept running for about seven blocks. When his adrenaline wore off, he slumped down on the ground and tried calling his parents. No signal. So he ducked into a party supply store and asked to use the store phone.

His father, Sam, answered the phone. David told him he was OK. His father replied, "OK, good. You're OK. Can you believe what's going on?"

"I have no idea what's happening," David said.

"You don't know what's going on? It was these son of a guns. They flew planes into the building!"

"What do you mean they flew planes into the building? You know what? Let me call you when I get back to the room."

David hung up and kept walking back to the hotel where he was supposed to be staying for the next month while in training. Then, like the scene in "Independence Day" during the alien invasion, cars came to abrupt halts and onlookers stood slack-jawed in the streets.

"Everybody was stopped dead-smack in the streets, just watching everything," David says. "I want to say it was a cab driver, he had his radio on. Then some lady comes on, 'The Pentagon was just hit. A plane just crashed into the Pentagon. Ladies and gentlemen, we are under attack!' I was like, 'What the f--- is going on?' It was nuts."

He kept walking, but the sprint down 61 floors and across Manhattan finally caught up to the former high school football player. Exhaustion took over. Just as he took a seat, at 9:59 am, the South Tower began to collapse. David sat on the sidewalk, watching in disbelief as the world changed.

Back home in Dearborn, his dad fielded phone calls from family and friends. Sam had heard from David, but that was before the towers collapsed and blanketed lower Manhattan in debris and dust. Robert Saleh, 22, had just been hired at Comerica Bank in Detroit. He came home after staying out with friends the night before to find his parents sitting on the couch, crying in front of the TV. "David's in one of those buildings," his mom said.

"That was the start of a very long day," Robert says. "We watched the news. Every minute that passed by became more and more anxious. I can't begin to describe the stress level for the house. Especially when I looked at my mom. It was not an easy day, not a great day to reflect on."

At about 4 p.m., David called from his hotel room to confirm he'd made it out alive. Early the next morning he called home again to say he needed a ride home, because all air traffic was suspended in the U.S. His dad contacted a family friend who was returning from Chicago to White Plains, N.Y., in a rental car. David found his way to White Plains, took the rental car and arrived in Dearborn around 5 a.m. on Sept. 13.

"There must've been 100 people waiting for me, family and friends," David says, "and I just wanted to go to sleep."

Robert went back to work at Comerica the next day, stunned. He'd almost lost his brother, and as he went through the motions as a first-year credit analyst for a commercial lending department, his mind raced. He contemplated the fragility of his brother's life, of his own. He began thinking about his purpose, about what he wanted to do with his life.

It was football.

Robert Saleh was a four-year starter and all-conference tight end at Division II Northern Michigan. He followed in the footsteps of his father, who starred at Fordson High in Dearborn, played at Eastern Michigan and saw his pro career cut short by a major knee injury in his first training camp with the Bears.

Robert and his friends always joked that his father resembled Bald Bull, the bug-eyed, bald-headed Turkish boxer from Mike Tyson's Punch-Out!! But Robert's dad and his mom are Lebanese (Sam was born in Michigan but spent some of his childhood in Lebanon, and Fatin was born abroad and emigrated as a teenager). Today they're retired after running a furniture store in Dearborn, where Lebanese immigrants began settling in the 1930s to fill new automotive jobs in the city's Ford headquarters.

Over the years, the city attracted immigrants and refugees from all over the Middle East. By 2000, 30 percent of the community was of Arab ancestry; in 2010 that number has risen to about 42 percent. The football team at Fordson, where most Arab-American students clustered in Dearborn, remained a consistent Michigan powerhouse, with the sport becoming a favorite of the Arab-American community. From 1961 until the time Robert graduated, in 1997, there had been a Saleh at Fordson High.

When David was a senior, coach Jeff Stergalas (an alum of the school) created a highlight reel of all the Fordson greats throughout the years. Before a game against top-ranked Lincoln Park, Stergalas gathered the team, dimmed the lights and showed the compendium of big hits and touchdown plays. In one grainy clip, a linebacker bulldozed through the line of scrimmage, tipped the quarterback's pass into the air, snagged it and returned the interception for a touchdown. As the students clamored, Stergalas paused the tape, turned on the lights and told David Saleh, "That's your dad."

Sam had earned a scholarship to play linebacker at Eastern Michigan, despite requiring reconstructive knee surgery during his senior season—the same knee that would later end his short stint with the Bears. Sam never got to realize his NFL dream, and in the wake of 9/11, Robert started to believe he was throwing away his own.

At the end of the 2001 NFL season, Tom Brady and Bill Belichick launched a dynasty, with Brady marching the Patriots into field goal range and Adam Vinatieri nailing a 48-yard field goal to beat St. Louis 20-17 as time expired in Super Bowl 36. As Brady celebrated the first of his five Lombardi trophies, and as Robert financed golf courses at his desk in Detroit, the latter reached a breaking point. He called his brother, David, in tears.

"The Super Bowl was just done, and he calls me up in my office. He's crying profusely, he can't even speak," David says. "I'm like, 'What? What's going on? What's happening?' I told him, 'Just call me back. Call me back when you catch your breath,' and I hang up. I'm calling people to see what's going on, if anything bad is going on. Nobody's answering.

"He calls me back and he says, 'I can't stand this s---. I have to be on the football field,' and I'm like, 'What? Buddy, you didn't go to the combine, you didn't enter any of the drafts,' He's still in that crying voice telling me he doesn't want to play—it hurts, it hurts too much, he's sick of icing everything. I'm like, 'Well, what do you want to do?' He says, 'I'd rather coach.' "

David suggested that he drive over to the high school to see Coach Stergalas, whom Robert describes as a "second father."

"He was on his way to being very successful in the business world," Stergalas says. "I said, 'Well, if you want to get into coaching, you have to become a graduate assistant. That's not a very glamorous life. You better learn how to make coffee and make copies.'"

Stergalas had always envisioned a coaching career for his former team captain. "After doing this for so long, you can always tell early on those special kids," he says. "They have an intangible about them. They carry themselves a little bit differently."

Stergalas connected Saleh with another former Fordson player, Mike Vollmer, who was in the football personnel department at Michigan State. "Vollmer said he had a student assistant job, and I had to enroll in grad school, pay my own way, and he might be able to hire me as a student assistant," Robert says. "I don't know if I called his bluff. He tried to talk me out of it, but I was hell-bent."

What followed was a short but wild odyssey that ought to inspire any young budding coach looking for a light at the end of the tunnel: Michigan State coach Bobby Williams was fired after the 2002 season, and though Saleh remained on staff, he saw no future on John L. Smith's staff. David urged him to drive to Central Michigan after the 2003 season to ask for a meeting with Brian Kelly, who had just been hired in Mount Pleasant. Kelly, who had recruited Robert out of high school, remembered him and offered a GA job on the spot. A year later, feeling passed over by the hiring of a grad assistant from Georgia to be a position coach at CMU, Robert called Stergalas, who called Brian VanGorder, the former Wayne State coach who was now the defensive coordinator at Georgia. Then, just a few weeks into his new GA job at Georgia, Robert got a call from Tony Oden, a coach who had left Central Michigan for the Houston Texans. They needed a defensive intern.

Are you crazy? Richt told him. You're thinking about that? Get your stuff and get outta here. Don't worry about us, buddy. Everybody dreams about going to that.

The following year Houston hired Richard Smith as its defensive coordinator, and Saleh spent the next three seasons as his quality control coach. He was promoted to assistant linebackers coach under new coordinator Frank Bush in 2009, then let go with the rest of the defensive staff after the 2010 season, when Gary Kubiak replaced Bush with Wade Phillips. At the 2011 Senior Bowl, Pete Carroll and defensive coordinator Gus Bradley asked Smith to recommend a quality control coach, and Smith didn't hesitate to name Saleh, newly a free agent.

"Smith said, I've got a guy, one of the best QC coaches I've ever been around," Bradley says. "He was fast and detailed."

Three years later the Seahawks trounced the Broncos in Super Bowl 48. Saleh called Stergalas from the winning locker room to thank him for everything. Says Stergalas: "I said, 'Well Robert, you better pack your bags.'"

Bradley, who had taken the head-coaching job in Jacksonville a year before Seattle won the title, had passed on Saleh for his linebacker coach slot, choosing to keep longtime position coach Mark Duffner on staff—a move that shook Saleh's belief in loyalty. But now the position was open, and Bradley wanted Saleh.

Over the next three seasons Saleh helped mold fifth-round rookie Telvin Smith into a top-20 standup linebacker, and he helped the Jags' defense improve from 26th in yards allowed in 2014 to sixth in 2016, despite last season's 3-13 finish under new head coach Doug Marrone.

Saleh believes what sustained him through his rise through the coaching ranks was an ability to fill a new niche on football coaching staffs at the turn of the century.

"A QC or GA is asked to do a lot of the computer work, especially back then because of the older generation of coaches," Saleh says. "Even though I didn't know much, I made it a point to figure it out. That skill set helped me create a reputation of being very detailed and efficient, because the amount of work I could produce in the amount of time was different from other people."

Saleh was able to master Vizio, the program that gradually replaced Playmaker Pro as the go-to playbook resource for NFL and college coaches beginning in the early 2000s.

"I think when you have a staff you're trying to build your staff with certain strengths," Bradley says. "Obviously you want coaches on the grass who can really relate to players and teach them, and then there's that technology part of it. It was growing so fast in the NFL that someone who understood it and could teach us could get a leg up. Robert came in and opened our minds up to some of the things that we could do."

While Saleh was immersing himself in coaching technology and bouncing around college football in preparation for the NFL, the world he'd known in Dearborn was coming to grips with life after 9/11. The high school football team, riding a streak of 34 consecutive winning seasons, became the subject of racial taunts during road games. After an 8-2 season in 2002, they finished 7-11 over the next two seasons combined.

"After 9/11, those kids couldn't recover," Robert says. "The racial backlash they faced, I don't know if you can imagine it, but for a kid to go through what those kids went through was not fair."

Stergalas led the program to a rebound, going 11-2 in 2004 and again in 2006, the year he retired to become the athletic director at nearby Dearborn High. His wife, Georgene, a teacher at the school, filed a lawsuit in 2010 alleging that she and a white colleague were discriminated against in a larger effort to rid Fordson of Christian employees. A judge ruled that the claims were without merit.

Through the years, Dearborn found itself at the center of a struggle to define the Arab-American experience. In 2010, failed Nevada Senate candidate Sharron Angle told supporters the city of Dearborn was under Sharia law. The Islamic Center of America in Dearborn was the target of a 2011 bombing plot and numerous anti-Muslim protests. Last August, University of Michigan-Dearborn chancellor Daniel Little wrote a letter to students and faculty denouncing then-Republican presidential candidate Donald Trump's "virulent strand of anti-Muslim bigotry."

Saleh, who is believed to be the first NFL coordinator of Arab ancestry, was reluctant to be profiled by The MMQB. He feared that his story would be interpreted as a political statement while Trump tries to ban immigrants from a number of predominantly Muslim countries.

"Unfortunately, the perception of our culture and of Arab-Americans who were born in this country and worked tirelessly to assimilate, goes unnoticed," Saleh says. "And all some people can see is what they think they know from what they see on TV. One bad apple spoils them all, fair or not."

Saleh, who is Muslim, declined to say whether he supported Trump or his policies. He speaks Arabic, though not as fluently as his wife, who is also Lebanese. When Ramadan falls on the football calendar, long hours usually prevent him from fasting, though he tries. He wants the focus to be on the community of people who raised him, and the example he's trying to set. "In our culture we believe it takes a village to raise a child," he says. "There are a lot of people back in Dearborn who have helped me."

This offseason, when Kyle Shanahan got the coaching gig in San Francisco, the first-time head coach reached out to Saleh to interview him, and came away impressed with his preparedness. Saleh had the next nine months planned out, in the event he got the job. "He knew exactly what he wanted to do. Mapped out from beginning to end," Shanahan says. "It was a fool-proof plan, and you could tell he's been thinking about it for a long time."

That's how Saleh, who once cried at his desk before changing his life to chase his dream, became the defensive coordinator of the San Francisco 49ers. His journey is encapsulated in the 18-word statement of personal philosophy he gave Pete Carroll six years ago:

A commitment to consistently execute the details required to compete at my greatest level; with loyalty and conviction.

By Matt Barrows
Sacramento Bee
September 4, 2017

They started with the type of plastic chess set you can find in any drugstore. If they were missing a piece they'd use a checker as a substitute or simply write "rook" on a scrap of paper.

Robert Saleh, the 49ers' new defensive coordinator, used to have epic matches with his brother, David, who is four years older. David dominated their early encounters. But at some point, when they were teens, the tally evened out. And soon after that Robert pulled into the lead.

"We don't like to lose to one another," David, 41, said. "Sometimes you wouldn't let the other get up from the table unless we played again."

Robert has had no formal training and has taken no classes, but his chess rating has grown to 1950, just below that of an expert (2000-2199).

"He's very, very meticulous, very methodical," David said of his brother's game. "He really thinks everything out. As a matter of fact, that's why I can't play him in person anymore. He'll take 20, 30 minutes to make a move."

After the 49ers finished the 2016 season with two victories, they hired Kyle Shanahan, one of the sharpest offensive minds in the game, as their head coach. But San Francisco's defense was a far greater problem last year. It finished at the bottom of nearly every category and broke a 70-year franchise record in the most elemental principle of the game: stopping the run.

The 49ers looked at several veteran options before making the hire, including former Jacksonville Jaguars head coach Gus Bradley and Vic Fangio, whose San Francisco defenses finished in the NFL's top five from 2011-14. Fangio, however, couldn't get out of his contract with the Chicago Bears. Bradley was hired to run the Los Angeles Chargers' defense.

Who is Robert Saleh? If you ask Shanahan, he's a lot like him.

The two first met when they were young assistants with the Houston Texans. Shanahan started as the team's wide receivers coach in 2006. At that time, Saleh was what the Texans called a defensive assistant.

"I was really just a little intern," Saleh said.

The two were the same age and Shanahan said he was impressed with the speed and skill with which Saleh took in the team's defensive schemes and incorporated them into Vizio, the computer program teams had begun using for their playbooks. If Shanahan had questions about defense, he went to Saleh.

"He thinks through everything," Shanahan said. "I always thought he was extremely intelligent in how he'd explain it and – he was so good with computers and stuff – he was pretty off the chart in his preparation and organization."

Said Kailee Wong, a former Stanford linebacker who was with the Texans at the time: "He had an incredible work ethic. He had a lot of good defensive coaches around him at the time. But you noticed that he was the one who worked the hardest."

Saleh grew up in Dearborn, Mich., where he was part of a large Middle Eastern population that's been drawn to jobs in the automotive industry since the 1920s. His mother was born in Lebanon. His father, Sam, was born in Michigan after a civil war in Lebanon forced his family to flee to the United States in the late 1940s.

The Arabs, Assyrians and other groups who moved to Dearborn had no background in American football, but they immediately were drawn to the sport.

"A lot of people say they play football because they're angry," Sam Saleh said. "I don't think that's true at all. I think it's a way to express their freedom to have fun in a country that allows them to do whatever they want to do and choose what they want to do. But the immigrants who come here certainly embrace football and basketball very quickly."

Sam, big and bald-headed like his son, was a high school linebacker and nose guard in the 1960s and earned a scholarship to Eastern Michigan. Robert, meanwhile, was a tight end who was talented enough to get attention from Lloyd Carr, then the head coach at the most renowned football school in the state, Michigan.

He also was recruited by Northern Michigan, a Division II program. When he was 18, he visited the school over a three-day weekend and returned to Dearborn with a surprise announcement: He had committed to attend Northern Michigan instead of Michigan.

"I was livid," Sam recalled. "I looked at him and said, 'What did you do?' I kind of hollered at him. And he went upstairs in his bedroom and he laid awake crying. And my daughter said, 'What is wrong with you, Ba? How can you do that, Dad?' Even today I get a lump in my throat when I think about it."

What Sam would learn is that his son does not make decisions without an exhaustive amount of thought.

In his community, young men became doctors, lawyers or financiers. That's what Robert did after college, landing a job as a credit analyst at a bank that paid him $800 a week, excellent money for someone in his early 20s. But Robert hated it. He eventually realized his passion was football and that he would become a coach.

"He's deep thinker," Sam said. "I always said Robert took after my dad in one way. He was a calculated mover as well. He would tell us, 'Before you make a decision, think about it. Then think about it two, three hundred more times. Then if you feel good about it, do it.' "

Deep thinking also is what drew Robert to chess. Looking five, seven, 10 steps ahead is challenging, fun – even cathartic – to him.

"It's training your mind to see farther and farther," Robert said. "It's a game that you can actually improve in, not because you trick people, but because you can see farther than they do."

Wong said that during the Texans' road trips, the two used to take a chess set to the back of the plane and settle in. The flight would take off from Houston and land in, say, Chicago and they'd just be wrapping up their first match.

Wong said Saleh's game is built on strategy and patience and controlled aggression. He wasn't the type of player who'd bring out his queen early and attack in one mad rush. He played like an older man.

"He was very organized," Wong said. "He was very strategic. He would just pressure – he always would put pressure on you. It was constant pressure. You didn't know exactly what he was trying to do. He'd just always be making small, strategic moves to advance his cause."

For Robert and David, who were close but highly competitive brothers, chess also was a way of staying in contact when they went off to their respective colleges and, after that, started careers and families. The two would play over the computer and, of course, Robert usually was the winner.

With one exception.

"One day, miraculously, he absolutely crushes me," Robert said. "And he was like, 'I guess I was in the zone.' Then he does it again. And again. And I'm like, 'Something's up.' "

It turned out that David was plugging his brother's moves into a computer program, one that was set to Grandmaster level.

"It would tell me what move to make and I would wax him that way," David said, laughing at the memory.

Said Robert: "And I'm like, 'This son-of-a-gun! At least set it to intermediate.' "

Ray Wright

49ers players love Ray Wright, hate his hill

By Matt Barrows

August 3, 2017

The 49ers players had a day off Tuesday, but Ray Wright didn't want them sitting around in their hotel rooms playing video games and otherwise doing nothing.

So Wright, the team's new strength and conditioning coach, crafted an enticing menu.

If they came into work they could have a session with one of the 20 massage therapists, acupuncturists and chiropractors he'd have available. There would be a yoga session at 11 a.m. And perhaps most alluring of all: There would be a free breakfast.

"Believe it or not, they would tend to skip those things if they have to pay for them," Wright said. "But it's our job to maintain their bodies as best we can. So they (team officials) graciously allowed us to bring this body-maintenance team in."

As it turns out, more than 80 of the 90 players on the roster took advantage.

Lest you think Wright is running a new-age spa in Santa Clara, he also had some decidedly old-school surprises in store for training camp, including one that stands nearly 40 feet tall.

A man-made hill constructed on the southwest corner of the playing fields was trucked in from Houston in June and assembled over the next six weeks. Made of steel and covered with turf, it's the most striking structure at 49ers headquarters and it dwarfs the earthen hill Mike Singletary had built in 2009 that he dubbed Mount Pain. That hill was flattened after Singletary was fired the following year.

The new edifice supports a 60-foot-long ramp that's on a 30-degree incline. Wright has no name for it yet – "At some point someone will call it something and that name will stick," he said – but it's already stirring plenty of dread among the players.

"Honestly, I thought it was a joke," said cornerback Dontae Johnson when asked his impression when he first saw the hill. "The incline – it looks like it's 45 degrees. Coach Ray has got some tricks up his sleeve. I don't know if I really want to really get into 'em."

Johnson and the rest of the defensive backs have been the first to tackle the hill.

"We do backpedals up it, we do bear crawls up it, unfortunately" Johnson said with a grin.

Are bear crawls the hardest?

"Yeah," he said, "because you're going backward. So, yeah, it's pretty rough."

That toil, however, is the reason players already believe in Wright.

Running back Carlos Hyde, offensive tackle Trent Brown and defensive end Aaron Lynch, for example, were asked to drop weight this summer, in Lynch's and Brown's cases, a dramatic amount. They also were among the group that trained in Santa Clara during the long, six-week stretch between spring drills and training camp.

All three reported in what they have individually said is the best shapes of their lives. Lynch dropped about 25 pounds, Brown was under the 358-pound benchmark the 49ers had set for him this summer, while Hyde's body fat went from 16 percent to single digits, according to Wright.

"Ray's workouts are real, so there was no point in going anywhere else," said Hyde, who intends to play under 230 pounds for the first time in his career. "Even in college I wasn't this light. I feel like I'm in the best shape of my life."

In 2002, the Houston Texans hired Wright as an assistant strength and conditioning coach. It was there that he met Kyle Shanahan, who was instrumental in bringing Wright to Washington when he and his father, Mike, were hired there in 2010, and to Santa Clara when Shanahan became the 49ers' head coach.

Houston also was where Wright first learned the value of a sturdy, man-made hill.

The Texans had one that was similar in dimensions to the one in Santa Clara. It was made of wood that, after being drenched by a few South Texas rainstorms, began to warp and had to be removed for double the cost it took to install it. In Northern California, the concern is earthquakes, so Wright's hill had to be built to withstand a temblor.

Wright said the beauty of the steep incline is that players must exert full energy to climb to the top with gravity ensuring they don't overdo it and pull a muscle. The angle also forces them into an ideal running motion.

"If you were to take a picture of someone on the hill, the form they're in – because of the angle of the hill – it's perfect," he said. "Even if you don't know anything about running, you're going to run with good form. You have to, to get up it."

Zane Beadles Parade Foundation
By Joanne Davidson
Denver Post
July 27, 2017

Just because Zane Beadles isn't a Denver Bronco anymore doesn't mean he has forgotten about the Mile High City.

The Zane Beadles Parade Foundation, a nonprofit organization that the offensive lineman for the San Francisco 49ers founded in 2013, is headquartered here, and he comes back for a visit whenever his schedule allows.

Most recently, Beadles joined friends and fans at a reception that kicked off sales of the 2017 Parade Partners Card. Cardholders receive a 20 percent discount at over 100 shops, spas and restaurants in the Denver metro area Nov. 3-12. Many of the participating retailers are those that don't often offer discounts or have sales and include Arhaus, the St. John Boutique GNAT Jewelers and the St. Croix Shop.

Cards remain on sale until the end of the promotion. They're $50 until July 31; after that, the price jumps to $60. Visit partnerscard.zanesparade.org, where there's also a partial list of participating retailers.

The kickoff party, planned by the foundation's executive director Julie Gart, was held at Venue 221, a Mid-Century Modern event space at 221 Detroit St. in Cherry Creek North. Owned by Cindy Wynne and her son, Thomas, the two-story facility was designed by architect Michael Knorr and opened last fall.

Beadles and his wife, Meredith, a speech therapist who he met while playing for the Jacksonville Jaguars and married in March, were joined by Broncos rookie tackle Garrett Bolles and Ryan Harris, a former offensive tackle for the Broncos whose 10-year career in the NFL ended when he retired from the Pittsburgh Steelers at the end of the 2016 season.

Beadles and Bolles are both graduates of the University of Utah and Beadles is helping his friend prepare for the ups, downs, joys and sorrows that are part and parcel of life in the NFL.

Bolles' wife, Natalie, and infant son, Kingston, also attended the party, as did such Zane Beadles Parade Foundation board members as certified public accountant Rob Knorr; Keegan Gerhard, an award-winning pastry chef and co-owner of D Bar Denver ; and Ching-Yuan Hu, an event designer for Catering by Design.

Income generated from the sale of the Parade Partners Cards helps support the foundation's efforts to bring "joy and a sense of normalcy" to children in the midst of treatment for cancer and other life-threatening conditions, and their families.

"Fun, memorable experiences during treatment have proven to significantly improve the quality of life and overall recovery," Beadles said, adding that since its start, the foundation, through its Greatest Gifts Program, has helped 5,000 families in Colorado, Florida and California by providing such pleasant distractions as tickets to a sporting event and surfing lessons.

Brent's Place, the only Children's Hospital Colorado-approved safe-clean housing facility for long term oncology and bone marrow transplant patients, has long enjoyed support from the Zane Beadles Parade Foundation. In addition to preparing and serving meals, hosting birthday parties for the young residents and their siblings, foundation volunteers are raising money to build a sports court at Brent's Place Too, a new facility that will be built adjacent to the second Brent's Place that is located near the Anschutz Medical Campus in Aurora.

The original Brent's Place opened in 1998; the move to a second, larger location happened in 2009.

Beadles' foundation also supports a suite for long-term cancer and bone marrow transplant patients and their families at a Denver Ronald McDonald House; provides volunteers for the Cuddle Program in the newborn intensive care unit at Rocky Mountain Hospital for Children; helps with the Gabby Krause Foundation's Bags of Fun program and in December partnered with Jazz Pharmaceuticals to send 20 teens in treatment at the Lucile Packard Children's Hospital at Stanford University to see the 49ers play

Matt Breida

By Matt Barrows
Sacramento Bee
October 27, 2017

Matt Breida doesn't pronounce water as "wooder," doesn't use the phrase "youse guys" and like most Americans would struggle if asked to spell the Schuylkill River.

But the 49ers rookie running back has Philly hard-wired into his system and will have a gaggle of screaming relatives in the stands Sunday wearing his red, No. 22 jersey. His parents are from North Philadelphia – "Philly born and bred!" Terri Breida says with oomph – and he was raised watching the Eagles on Sundays.

Like most Philadelphians, the Breidas loved Brian Westbrook, cheered Donovan McNabb and, in the words of his father, Mike, thought Terrell Owens was "a butthead, but also a heck of a player."

Matt was born in Brandon, Fla., in 1995.

Two days after his delivery, he was adopted by Mike and Terri, who had moved to the Tampa area after Mike got sick with a life-threatening case of meningitis. One of Matt's biological parents is white, the other black. The Breidas are white and both currently are in wheelchairs.

Money always was tight in their household, especially after Terri had to quit her nursing job when severe arthritis seized her back and legs. Which partly explains why their son is perhaps the most driven member of the 49ers' rookie class.

An honor student at Georgia Southern, Breida graduated a semester early so he could concentrate on acing the NFL scouting combine. He wasn't invited. And two months later, he wasn't drafted.

Instead he signed a free-agent deal with the 49ers and joined a running backs group that included fellow rookie Joe Williams, whom the team's new coaching staff hand-picked in the fourth round. During spring practices, however, Breida was the young runner who caught everyone's attention.

"He's just going for it," coach Kyle Shanahan said early in training camp. "You've got a guy who comes in who's undrafted. He's got a chip on his shoulder, which you love. He's trying to prove himself every single day. It doesn't matter whether it's a run play, a pass play, whether he's in protection. The guy loves competing."

That was the working-class Philadelphia ethos shining through.

Both Mike's mother and father worked in North Philly factories – "My dad always worked two jobs," Mike said – so that Mike and his sisters could go to the Catholic schools in the neighborhood. Before he became ill, Mike said he worked 50-plus hours a week while also taking night classes in business.

Terri, meanwhile, started working straight out of high school. Unbeknownst to her, her parents were setting aside $50 from each of her paychecks until there was enough for her to go to nursing school.

Matt Breida may not have their genes, but he picked up that ethic.

In high school, he was up at 6 a.m. to work out, then he was off to classes followed by more training.

"He wouldn't get home until 6:30," Mike said. "He had a 12-hour-plus day. Even during the offseason he kept crazy hours."

During one of his junior varsity games, Terri noticed her son was holding his water bottle in his left hand. Was there something wrong with the right? He said he was fine and scored two, two-point conversions later in the game. But a trip to the emergency room the next day revealed a broken bone in his forearm.

Mike: "He had to have been in a heck-of-a lot of pain. He has a high tolerance …"

Mike: "… Yes, a high, high tolerance for pain."

The Breidas are characters.

Their Philly accents have very much survived two decades in Tampa and Matt says it becomes even more acute in his mom when he or his younger brother, Josh, who also is adopted, does something wrong.

"When my mom gets mad at me she'll use my full name and I'll really hear it," he said.

Terri says she and Mike went to every one of Matt's police-league games when he was a grade schooler, were in the stands at each high school game and attended Matt's home games at Georgia Southern.

She says she knows they "embarrassed the hell out of him" the way enthusiastic, doting parents do, but she also knows that he always would look into the stands during pregame warm-ups to find out where they were sitting.

They won't be in the crowd on Sunday. "We just don't have the money to get up there," Mike said.

Matt, however, said they are the reason he'll be on the field in Philadelphia.

"It's me not wanting to let them down," he said. "Because they gave me the chance to have the life that I'm having right now. I always wanted to succeed for them, always wanted them to know that they made the right choice in adopting me and my brother. That's what drives me."

Trent Brown

49ers' Trent Brown is a big, big man
By Phil Barber
Santa Rosa Press Democrat
September 30, 2017

The last time the 49ers played at Levi's Stadium, against the Rams on Sept. 21, I glanced down at the team bench between a couple of random plays. NFL offensive lines tend to sit as a group on the bench, frequently in the same pattern in which they line up on the field. And there was Trent Brown, the 49ers' starting right tackle, at the far right of a chain of O-linemen. From my sky-high vantage point, it looked like Brown was perched atop the backrest of the bench rather than the seat.

I looked through my binoculars and found that, no, Brown was not elevated. It just looked like he was getting a boost, because he tends to dwarf even other NFL linemen.

At first peek, probably no one did. The photo showed the 49ers lined up for an offensive snap — beefy guys in an offset row. Then you realized the right guard was missing. To Brown's left was center Daniel Kilgore. To his right were a pair of tight ends, Garrett Celek and Vance McDonald. Where was Garnett? Completely hidden behind Brown. For the record, Garnett stands 6-foot-4 and weighs about 312 pounds.

Someday I may write about Trent Brown's performance on the field. I will quote his Pro Football Focus evaluation and cite his sack rate, and I'll explain how he made the 49ers roster as a seventh-round draft choice in 2015, and was in the starting lineup by his second season. But not now. Today I'm writing about Trent Brown and his role as a large, large human being.

As one of his teammates told the Palm Beach Post when he was at the University of Florida: "Trenton Brown is the biggest person I ever saw in my life."

Is he the biggest I've ever seen? Not sure about that. Brown is listed at 6-foot-8, 355 pounds on the 49ers' team roster, and he told me the weight is accurate. I've met Shaquille O'Neal. He's 7-1 and, post-playing days, must exceed the 325 pounds at which he competed in the NBA. I've always figured the biggest football player I'd encountered was Terdell Sands, a quiet, countrified Raiders defensive tackle who was listed at 6-7, 337. Daniel Kilgore, the 49ers center, nominated his former linemate Leonard Davis, a pillar of muscle who went 6-6, 375.

It's hard to parse when you're judging height and weight, muscle and fat. But let's just say Brown is in the conversation regarding The Biggest Man in Sports.

His size is no genetic mutation. His father, Reginald Brown Sr., stands 6-7. So does his older brother, Reginald Jr. His maternal grandfather is 6-6, as are his mother's brothers. But Trent outgrew them all.

Brown was a long baby at 22 inches, but he weighed a highly average 6 pounds, 9 ounces. Of course, he was a month premature. By elementary school in Albany, Georgia, he was towering over his classmates. By fifth grade, he could look his mother, 5-8 Tiffany Brown, in the eyes. That was also the year he started wearing the same shoe size as his dad.

Reginald Jr. is little more than a year older than Trent, and they made quite a pair at the playground.

"They always would say, 'There's them Brown boys,'" Trent recalled a couple weeks ago, as I talked to him at his locker at Levi's Stadium. "Because if they saw one of us, they would see the other."

Reginald Sr. was a police officer in Albany. (He's a major now.) Tiffany worked in education. The Browns were comfortable, but keeping up with their sprouting sons was a challenge. Imagine feeding them. "I remember a lot of trips to Sam's Club," Reginald Sr. told me over the phone.

Imagine clothing young Trent. "There was a time when every time he'd get new shoes, it seemed like a month later he'd say they were too small," Reginald Sr. recalled. "We'd say, 'That can't be.' But you'd feel his toes and yep, they were too small."

Reginald Sr. was a good basketball player who competed at the University of Mobile. Reginald Jr. and Trenton always played both hoops and football.

"Since I came out of the womb, I've had a ball in my hand," Trent said.

But the Browns ran into a problem well known by any parent of a large boy. Other moms and dads didn't want their kids to play with Reginald Jr. and Trent. It made them nervous.

"You know how kids roughhouse and play rough sometimes," Brown told me. "I would kind of get in trouble sometimes. They were like, 'Boy, you're bigger than everybody, you don't know how big you are, you don't know how strong you are.' I'm like, 'I'm just being a kid. I'm eight years old. I don't know better.'"

That's one reason the Browns decided early on that their sons would compete against older kids. Reginald Jr. and Trent always played up a level or two. There were other reasons. Reginald Sr. said he wanted them to learn humility, and to improve their games as much as possible. Still, other parents complained.

"What's funny about that is, they would always try to say that me and my brother were old and all this stuff," Trent said. "It's guys that were four years older than me that I was playing against. They were freshmen in high school when I was still in elementary school."

Trent, always agile for his size, was a guard on the basketball court. In football he played everything from running back to defensive end to defensive back. He starred at Westover High School in Albany and earned a scholarship at Florida. Believe it or not, Brown was bigger in college. In fact, he is the largest football player in Gators history. His weight soared to 387 pounds at Florida until he got it under control.

Brown wasn't entirely productive as a collegian, but his size made NFL scouts take notice. There's more to playing offensive tackle than mass, but it's the base-level requirement for a position that requires moving defensive linemen on running plays, and shielding your quarterback from them on pass plays.

As Kilgore said: "Trent definitely lucked out in the gene pool. His parents are two people you'd want as parents. Trent should be very appreciative."

NFL players are generally large men who spend their days around other large men, but even they are wowed by the sight of Trent Brown.

"I saw him at the (NFL scouting) combine," said 49ers defensive end Arik Armstead, listed at 6-7 and 292 pounds. "Being a taller guy, to have someone eye level with you is new."

Brown acknowledges that he matches or exceeds pretty much every big dude out there. He mentions Steelers nose tackle Daniel McCullers (6-7, 352) as someone who comes close; they played together in junior college, which sounds comically unfair.

"We got two big guys here in Arik and DeFo (defensive lineman DeForest Buckner, listed at 6-7, 300)," Brown added. "But I'm bigger."

And that brings challenges when Brown isn't playing football.

"He probably can't ride a rollercoaster," Kilgore said. "And I'm sure it's hard to find clothing, and a car for his size."

Kilgore was 2 of 3. Brown said his GMC Yukon Denali is perfectly roomy. But no, he is not allowed to ride on rollercoasters. (He said he wouldn't want to anyway.) And yes, clothing options are limited for a man with 37-inch arms, a 47-inch inseam and size-17 feet.

"That's been a task since forever, man," Brown said. "Especially shoes. I haven't bought shoes out of the store since fifth grade. … I'm glad I played traveling sports, because you get introduced to some of that stuff."

Now he has a lot of clothes made to fit. Brown employs a stylist to help with some of that.

"I've always had an eye for fashion," he said. "I never really looked sloppy or anything. That's one thing I've always kind of prided myself on."

Flying is tricky, too. Brown makes sure to use the bathroom before boarding, because there's no way he's going to fit in an airplane restroom that he describes as "like a little cubbyhole." And he'll be in misery if he has to fly coach for more than an hour or two. That made things hard for Brown when he was a rookie, because the 49ers backups were in coach. When he took over a starting position in 2016, he moved up to first class. But that didn't last long. This year, all the players are in back.

Brown gets an assist on road trips, though. The 49ers' logistical team places name tags in all the seats, and they take care of Brown by assigning him to the rear exit row.

This Gulliver-like existence sounds foreign to us Lilliputians, but of course it's just normal life to Trent Brown. What can he do but shrug those massive shoulders and accept his role as the biggest guy in the room?

"The crazy thing is, most time I don't even eat a lot," Brown said. "I'm just meant to be a big guy."

DeForest Buckner

Forget the statistics, DeForest Buckner is having a breakout season

By Nick Wagoner
ESPN
November 21, 2017

Scan the list of the NFL's leaders in traditional defensive categories -- tackles, sacks, forced fumbles -- and you'll have to look long and hard to find San Francisco 49ers defensive tackle DeForest Buckner.

Through the Niners' first 10 games, Buckner had 45 tackles, 1.5 sacks and a lone forced fumble. None of those numbers jump off the page and none will draw the attention of those who prefer box score scouting to actually watching game tape.

For those willing to dig a little deeper, there's an obvious conclusion to reach from watching Buckner: He's one of the league's most dominant interior defensive linemen and an unquestioned foundational piece in the 49ers' on-going rebuild.

"He's very good in the run game and the pass game," coach Kyle Shanahan said. "He's got the ability to be a very good player in this league. I know he doesn't have the sack numbers, but he gets after the quarterback a lot. Around the country, they're [not] going to notice the numbers. But from a coaching standpoint, what offensive coaches look at when they turn on the tape, he's in the backfield, he gets to the quarterback, he affects a lot of the game."

The 6-foot-7, 300-pound Buckner isn't your traditional 3-technique defensive tackle. After spending his rookie season playing defensive end in a read-and-react gap control scheme, Shanahan and new coordinator Robert Saleh moved Buckner to the position generally reserved for the best interior pass-rusher.

A typical 3-technique's primary responsibility is to get in the backfield quickly and create as much havoc as possible. Among all-time greats at the position, smaller, quicker players like John Randle and Warren Sapp have been the prototype. In today's game, the Rams' Aaron Donald and Cincinnati's Geno Atkins are considered the standard.

But Buckner's ability to defeat blockers in multiple ways is changing perceptions of what a 3-technique can look like. Because of his size, Buckner has to play with incredible discipline just to ensure his pads are low enough to maintain leverage on every play. Once that's done, Buckner gains an advantage because of his brute strength, which makes him difficult to move in the run game.

"He's a dominant 3-technique in the run game," Saleh said. "That's his first job, is to make sure that he gets great penetration, sets edges and just wreaks havoc in the backfield as much as possible. Obviously in the pass game, same thing, from a 3-technique spot, to be able to win one-on-ones and get to the quarterback. He's done an unbelievable job at doing exactly what we ask him to do. There is an art to being able to penetrate and maintain your gap, and I believe that he's mastered that.

"He can penetrate and create knock-back, still maintaining his gap, and he wins constantly. He constantly wins one-on-ones."

So with all of those tools in his belt, why doesn't Buckner have bigger numbers in the traditional statistics? There are a couple of reasons.

First, as Shanahan points out, opposing offenses view Buckner as a threat and they design game plans around, slowing him down. That means endless double- and even occasional triple-teams.

"The one thing that I would encourage, and it's something we're still trying to work on, is for him to find that extra step, that one more step," Saleh said. "That step that we're working on, bending the corner to be able to, so that when he does win that it's that half a step. That's what makes players elite. A lot of players can win. Not very many can win at the rate he does. The elite ones have that two-yard burst to the quarterback to create that sack production, for lack of a better word. That would be one thing if there's something that he needs to improve in his game and the one thing that we're continuing with him is to find that extra step, find that extra bend, find the lean that when he does win to be able to get the hit on the quarterback and bring him down with the ball."

Buckner's current step has been enough to make him one of the most disruptive players in the NFL, even if it's not turning into sacks. Through 10 weeks, Pro Football Focus had Buckner ranked as the No. 3 interior defensive lineman in the league. PFF also had Buckner in the top five interior defenders in the league in total quarterback pressures with 34 and his total of run stops was at the top of that list.

So, how can Buckner get that additional step to turn those pressures into more traditional production? One way would be to get more help from the Niners' edge-rushers. As an interior defender, there's a built-in advantage of being closer to the quarterback when the ball is snapped but that advantage can be negated by the fact that quarterbacks can see you coming.

However, if there's a strong outside pass rush bending the edge and leaving no outs for the quarterback, it can serve to create that extra half-second for a guy like Buckner to get home. Think Robert Quinn complementing Donald or what Carlos Dunlap and Michael Johnson have done for Atkins in the past.

The Niners have no such threat on the current line, save for the occasional flash from veteran Elvis Dumervil. Dumervil has 4.5 sacks on the season but no other teammate has more than two.

Adding help at that spot might have to wait until the offseason but in the meantime, Saleh said Buckner is seeking ways to close the gap on his own.

"There's a bunch of different drills to help him with his lean, his pad level, helping him stay low to the ground where when he does win to be able to instead of having a long loop to run, it's a tighter loop," Saleh said. "And so, those things you just continue to drill it and drill it and drill it. That's the best you can do with him."

For now, perhaps. But if his current trajectory is any indication, Buckner's best is yet to come.

By Joe Fann

November 20, 2017

DeForest Buckner was glued to the window. The first-grader's eyes widened, fascinated by the images of his first journey to the United States mainland that came long before he'd become a first-round pick of the San Francisco 49ers. As he looked down from the plane, he saw thousands of tiny cars move through the streets of cities that looked nothing like his home of Waianae, Hawaii on the island of Oahu.

The ultimate destination was Knoxville, Tenn., in order to visit the family of Buckner's father George. After being born in Tennessee, George moved to Hawaii and met Maria. This particular family reunion provided DeForest with far more than a meet-and-greet with distant relatives.

Everything looked different from his home on the islands. For starters, the lack of beaches was troubling for Buckner. But beyond the aesthetics and the geography was the contrast of the people who called the mainland home.

"The way everything was moving, it felt so fast-paced," Buckner said.

Even at such a young age, the overall anxiety level was readily apparent. Where was everyone going and why did they need to get there so quickly?

Things move much slower on the islands. That's not to say that people are lazy or unmotivated, but it speaks to the emphasis placed on being present and, most importantly, enjoying the people surrounding you in each moment.

Time already flies as is, so what's the point in trying to speed up the timeline?

"Everything here is so on the go," Buckner explained his impression of the continental U.S. "Everyone is always going. People don't take the time to slow down and really enjoy the moment. You're thinking about what happened yesterday or what's going to happen tomorrow. Back home, we are all hardworking people, but we always find time to enjoy the moment."

Long to-do lists are replaced with mid-week get-togethers. We're not talking just immediate family, either, but an extended family that goes well beyond bloodlines. Every elder (which is really just loosely defined by a person older than oneself) is referred to as either "auntie" or "uncle" in Hawaii.

"That's just how it goes. It was a big difference coming to the states. I'd call someone's parents by their first name. I felt like I was being disrespectful. It was an adjustment for me. Oahu is such a small island, it's kind of like everyone knows everyone."

Events of all kinds were extravagant, especially in regards to the culinary spread. Nobody ever came empty-handed, and most gatherings featured enough food to feed a small army.

For example, when kids in the mainland play sports growing up, it's customary for one parent to bring postgame snacks. In Hawaii, everyone pitched in. So instead of orange slices and a Capri Sun, Buckner grew up with spreads that consisted of chicken katsu (his favorite), fried rice, poke and kalua pork along with several other dishes. The same went for graduations, birthday parties and all other celebrations.

Never lost in the extravagance is the purpose behind the feast – to spend quality time with cherished loved ones.

"Family is everything," Buckner said. "It's been instilled in me from such a young age, and I'll never forget that. Whenever you have a chance to take care of a family member, I'll go out of my way to take care of them."

DeForest proved that when he was just 13 years old. George was the victim of a motorcycle accident that left him fighting for his life. DeForest recalled the anxious moments in the hospital waiting room, linking arms with family in prayer as his dad underwent heart surgery.

"The initial impact was I thought I was going to lose my dad," Buckner said. "He was always there for me, my brother and my sister at any event we had. He was always in the stands at every game. I'd always know where he was sitting. When I was playing basketball, I'd hear him from the court. It was a scary moment."

Thankfully George pulled through, but not without long-term ramifications. George went through a lengthy rehab period and remains in a wheelchair to this day. That put added pressure on Buckner to mature faster than most teenagers. Make no mistake, "DeFo" was never a problem child, but it was still an adjustment.

"I made sure I wasn't a problem for my mom and my dad. I made sure they didn't have to worry about me or what I was doing."

DeForest also took a much larger role with his younger brother. They were always close, but he had to be much more of a mentor rather than just a best friend. Buckner would make sure that his brother stayed out of trouble and kept on top of his schoolwork.

Buckner's responsibilities around the house changed as well. DeForest became a teenage handyman, landscaper and house cleaner all in one. All the while, he continued to emerge as an elite athlete, starring in football and basketball.

He accepted a full ride to play football at the University of Oregon in 2012. But moving to the mainland away from home and family was a big adjustment. Buckner admitted he was homesick during his freshman year. Luckily, he was surrounded by several other players from Hawaii, namely Tennessee Titans quarterback Marcus Mariota.

Those players took Buckner under their wing and made him feel closer to the island that he missed so dearly.

"I had that crew," Buckner said. "I knew I had those guys who were from where I'm from. If I got homesick, I always had them. Being around those guys helped me get through those times. It was a big adjustment."

Fast forward to 2017 and Buckner is in his second season with the 49ers. When San Francisco drafted him in 2016, he opted to stay home with friends and family rather than travel to Chicago to attend the draft in person. There's a lasting image of Buckner buried eyes-deep in leis with George and Maria on either side of him. A local Hawaiian news outlet caught the celebration on camera when the 49ers selected Buckner with the seventh-overall pick.

Buckner is still a kind-hearted family man, which contrasts his physical dominance at the line of scrimmage. He's already developed into one of the premier interior defensive lineman in the NFL.

Buckner shared that he talks to his parents at least twice a week over the phone. He now has the financial means to help his family as well, even from afar. Over the past two offseasons, Buckner has taken a group of his 49ers teammates to his home in Oahu. His family is growing, and it's only right that those worlds collide.

On those trips, his time is spent as it always is – on the beach, surrounded by his loved ones and without a care in the world. There are no autographs to be signed or photos that need to be taken. His primary residence may be in "Toyland" now, but Waianae will always be home.

"There's no better feeling that knowing you're home," Buckner said.

By Grant Cohn
Santa Rosa Press Democrat

This is a portrait of the 49ers' best player, DeForest Buckner.

Buckner is a defensive tackle and an artist. He likes sacking quarterbacks and drawing. In college, he was the Pac-12 defensive player of the year in 2015 and the winner of the breakout artist award in one of his art classes at the University of Oregon.

He won the football award for recording 10½ sacks his senior season. And he won the art award for a self-portrait called "King of Pop," where he's posing like Michael Jackson. Buckner used spray paint on a vinyl canvas for this piece.

He also has a tattoo portrait on his right arm of the statue of the Pietà by Michelangelo. It's the Virgin Mary holding Jesus' dead body. "I really like portraits," Buckner said while standing in front of his locker.

Everyone agrees Buckner is special. He is the bright spot on a winless 49ers team, even if the stats don't show it. He has just 1½ sacks this season. But he is the 49ers' highest-graded player, according to head coach Kyle Shanahan.

"He's tough to block," Shanahan said. "He's very good in the run game and the pass game. He's got the ability to be a very good player in this league. I know he doesn't have the sack numbers, but he gets after the quarterback a lot. Around the country, they're going to notice the numbers. But from a coaching standpoint, what offensive coaches look at when they turn on the tape, he's in the backfield, he gets to the quarterback, he affects a lot of the game."

"First and foremost, he's dominant in the run game. That's his first job, to make sure he gets great penetration, sets edges and just wreaks havoc in the backfield as much as possible.

"Obviously in the pass game, same thing, being able to win one-on-ones and get to the quarterback. He's done an unbelievable job at doing exactly what we ask him to do.

"There is an art to being able to penetrate and maintain your gap, and I believe he's mastered that. He can penetrate and create knock-back, still maintaining his gap, and he wins constantly. He constantly wins one-on-ones.

"His sack total is not where he wants it to be, and teams are sliding protections toward him, completely eliminating him from the game. Now, as a D-line, we've all got to step up. All of us. If you get a one-on-one you have to win, otherwise teams will find a way to continue to neutralize him in the pass game.

"That's the stuff that we're trying to work through, to see if we can find more opportunities for him to get one-on-ones. Because when he is one-on-one, he's winning. That's why his pressure rate is so high. That's what makes him unique; that's what makes him special."

That's not the only thing that makes Buckner unique and special. He's a giant — 6 feet, 7 inches. He's of mixed race; black and Samoan. And he's from Hawaii. He grew up in a small town on Oahu called Waianae.

 "Where I grew up, people always say it's the rougher side, tougher side of the island," he says. "Sometimes you've got to be on guard depending on where you go. But I love where I grew up. It helped me shape the person I am. Just because I grew up being tough doesn't mean I have to be tough all the time."

"What I love is being able to perfect my craft every day. No matter what the record is, I always get an opportunity to perfect my craft.

:Every day I come in and see what I can work on to be better, to win better on pass rushes or fit better in the run game. That's what I love. Being able to challenge myself every day. Trying to do something to perfect my game.

"The moves, the hand work — all of that is art. When you see a perfect pass by a quarterback, when he throws that bomb and it hits the receiver in stride, I see that as art, guys working on their craft. Everything we do in this game is our own art."

What does Buckner see as his art?

"If you think about it," he says, "you come in and do your job and make one big play every game. That's the mindset. You do that, you'll have a really good career. Everything else is extra."

Thus speaks the artist on the art of football.

49ers' DeForest Buckner: So good, he's already a bad man

By Eric Branch
San Francisco Chronicle
October 28, 2017

With reporters, 49ers defensive lineman and Hawaii native DeForest Buckner is polite, soft-spoken and gives off a laid-back island vibe.

He labors in the NFL's trenches, but a large piece of him is peaceful. On his right biceps is a tattoo that quotes Ephesians 5:2, which reads, in part: "Walk in love as Christ has loved us …"

Buckner, 23, got the tattoo before the 2016 NFL combine, where teams often asked him about being a "nice guy." Translation: They questioned whether he was nasty enough, and Buckner had to assure them he had the necessary "dog" in him.

Given that background, what Buckner said recently near the end of another earnest, look-you-in-the-eye, library-voice interview came as a surprise. As he was explaining the mentality that's required to do his job, it became clear that he doesn't always walk in love.

"Every time I approach the field, I'm thinking to myself that — sorry for my language — but that I'm the baddest mother f— out there," Buckner said. "I view myself like that every game. And I tell myself that every game."

OK, so he still apologizes before his rare expletives, but Buckner isn't the only one who views himself as, well, a very bad man.

After a strong rookie year, Buckner, the seventh overall pick in the draft, has leaped from promising to punishing in 2017 and is one of the few bright spots in a dark season.

As the 49ers (0-7) visit the Eagles on Sunday, Buckner will arrive ranked second among interior defensive linemen in quarterback pressures (31) and fourth in run stops (17), according to Pro Football Focus. He's on pace to have 71 pressures, which would be 23 more than he had last year when he was a member of the NFL's all-rookie team and had the second-most tackles (73) among defensive linemen.

"He's operating at a level of confidence that allows him to speak that way," Saleh said. "Look at him: He's 6-foot-7 and whatever (300) pounds, and he just manhandles people. He needs to continue the course, but, yes, he is: He is a bad SOB out there, for sure."

It's not just Buckner's coaches. Right guard Brandon Fusco, center Daniel Kilgore and left tackle Joe Staley — a trio with 26 seasons of NFL experience — recently marveled at his sophomore season.

"We were all talking the other day about how he just jumps out on film," said Fusco, who routinely battled Buckner in training camp. "It's fun to watch him go against someone during a game instead of doing it to me. My first impression going against him was, 'OK, you really can't let him get in your chest.' But his arms are so long, so it's like you have no choice."

In some ways, the rebuilding 49ers might still be in tear-down mode, but Buckner is a foundational piece. In fact, his blend of talent and intangibles make him the poster boy for what the new regime is seeking as it works to reshape the roster and instill a new culture.

His position coach, Jeff Zgonina, appreciates that Buckner's top-10 talent is packaged with the mind-set of an undrafted rookie. Zgonina recognizes others who share his drive: A former defensive tackle, he was a seventh-round pick whose work ethic helps explain his seven-team, 17-year NFL career.

"I've seen a lot of guys who were way more talented than him and they'll just squander it," Zgonina said. "He doesn't have the mind-set for that. And it's great to see. Other top-10 guys? They got picked there and they just never took advantage of it. DeForest? He's going to blow it apart."

That's what Seahawks defensive end Michael Bennett predicted after working out in Hawaii with a group of players that included Buckner the past two summers. Bennett, 31, a two-time Pro Bowler, has said Buckner will eventually win the NFL's Defensive Player of the Year award.

Among the 49ers' seven defensive linemen on their 53-man roster, Buckner is not the oldest . But the player whom Zgonina describes as "quiet, but not antisocial by any means" already wields considerable influence thanks to his actions, on and off the field.

"He's kind of taken on the leadership of that room," said Kilgore, 29, the team's second-longest tenured player. "He's a younger guy with some veteran guys, but I would say he's the alpha on the defensive line. He's so much more mature than I was in my second year."

Buckner traces his work ethic and maturity to his parents, George and Maria, who raised him and his sister, Shantel, 26, and brother, Kenya, 21, in Waianae, Hawaii, a working-class town about 30 miles from Honolulu.

"It's beautiful, but a lot of people don't recommend going on that side because it's a little rougher part of the island," Buckner said. "But I'll forever love that side of the island."

Maria is a government contract specialist for the Army, and George worked for UPS until a motorcycle accident in 2007 left him permanently disabled and altered the course of Buckner's childhood.

George, a 6-foot-7 college basketball player who attended Mississippi and Hawaii Pacific, clung to life after his accident. He had a crushed pelvis, broken femur, punctured lung and torn aorta, among other injuries, and was in a medically induced coma for six months.

Buckner, then 13, worried whether his dad would live. And when George awoke, and told his son he had to assume the man-of-the-house role, Buckner wondered whether he could fill the void.

With his mom focused on her husband's rehabilitation, Buckner helped Kenya with his schoolwork, mowed lawns for extra money and handled house chores, even handyman duties such as repairing doors.

"It really impacted me because I didn't get to do all the stuff I wanted to do as a kid," Buckner said. "I had to put some of that stuff aside, really step up and be a man and try to help my family as much as I could. It helped me mature as a person."

Said Maria: "I basically concentrated on George. DeForest had his sister's help, but he took the initiative and took care of almost everything else."

George, who has undergone nearly 10 surgeries, including a recent hip procedure, has extensive nerve damage on his right leg and left arm. He deals with chronic pain and uses either a wheelchair or walker.

His days remain difficult. But after DeForest helped his family navigate their nightmare, Maria says he's still helping today from afar: She and George will attend four 49ers' games this season after seeing six last year.

"Going to DeForest's games, and watching him on TV, really helps George's spirits," Maria said. "The family is so proud of DeForest. And the island is so proud of him."

And that pride is understandable. After all, he was a good kid who has grown up to become a bad man.

49ers DeForest Buckner commanding right kind of attention

By Cam Inman
San Jose Mercury News
October 5, 2017

Asked if DeForest Buckner could emerge as dominant a defensive tackle as former 49er Justin Smith, NaVorro Bowman didn't flinch.

"Yeah, I think so," Bowman replied Thursday. "I don't even know how much mental (analysis) is going into his game right now. That's surprising, because his talent speaks for itself."

Bowman marveled at how well Buckner is making plays, including nine quarterback hits, 19 tackles and last week's first sack of the season. Buckner, last year's top draft pick, had a second sack nullified once the 49ers accepted a holding penalty on Sunday's final series.

"If you look at him and not know anything about him, you'd think he's been playing a while," Bowman said. "I'm just glad he's on my team. He's willing to get better every day, not get complacent with anything. You can definitely see how good he's going to be."

Buckner had six sacks in 15 games as a rookie while playing more than 1,000 snaps. He has been the 49ers' top defender heading into Sunday's game at Indianapolis.

"This year I'm more comfortable," Buckner said. "The scheme, too, really helps. Being more of an attacking style defense, it allows me to open up a lot more instead of just reading and reacting at the line of scrimmage"

One question Buckner has heard a lot in recent days regards his new sack celebration.

"I've got a broom and I'm sweeping him off the field," Buckner explained. "If any of you watched the Apollo back in the day, when they got bored, they'd sweep people off stage."

"He's starting to get attention and the attention's only going to get greater," Saleh said, "which is why it's so important for the other three (lineman) to find their niche and come along and catch up.

"… He's playing at a level that offenses won't be able to ignore him any longer."

Before the 2017 NFL season commences, San Francisco 49ers defensive lineman DeForest Buckner returned home to the island of Oahu, Hawaii and brought the 49ers youth football crew along for the trip. Buckner held his first ever youth football camp in the community where his love of the game began, Waianae.

"It was really important for me to have this camp, especially on my side of the island where I grew up, because this side doesn't get enough exposure with the youth and the young athletes," Buckner said. "Growing up, I never had the chance to go to camps like this. I always had to travel. I just wanted to make it easier for the kids out here so they could come out and have a great time."

Buckner was joined by teammates Arik Armstead and Ronald Blair III for the inaugural camp. The DeForest Buckner Youth Football Camp hosted more than 250 children from surrounding communities, learning how to play the game of football through curriculum activated by 49ers director of youth football Jared Muela.

"There's a real love for the game of football and just a sense of enthusiasm in Waianae. There's no pro baseball, no pro basketball, no pro football. There's definitely the University of Hawaii, but this is something different." Muela said. "They're big 49ers fans. So, for us to go out there and really show some love, it's really well received there."

The 49ers didn't stop there. As part of the 49ers "Hawaii Blitz" program, youth football partnered with the Mililani YMCA and USA football for camps and coaches clinics centered around player safety. The camps focused on basic non-contact football drills and spreading messages of work ethic and teamwork in a culture that continues to embrace the game of football.

"The intent of the 49ers Hawaii Blitz is to get out to markets that we can't traditionally visit during the season just because of proximity," Muela added. "We do a good job of going out to all the schools in our market and our community, but when we get to the offseason, we really have the time and the ability to get out and beyond."

Over the duration of the week, 49ers youth football impacted more than 400 kids across various communities. The hope is to continue to expand their reach in the years to come.

Garrett Celek

By David Lombardi
The Athletic
October 27, 2017

Steve and Deb Celek didn't begin discovering much of the destruction until later, years after both of their oldest sons had left their Cincinnati home to play in the NFL.

"There'd be a sticker or a poster on the wall, and we just figured they put it up for whatever reason," Steve Celek said, laughing during a phone interview this week. "And we'd be cleaning or moving or painting or whatever, and we'd take a picture or a sticker off the wall — and there'd be a hole in the wall behind it! "We'd find bits and pieces of what happened five years ago, 10 years ago."

Call them remnants of the coexistent childhoods of two future NFL tight ends, who roughhoused each other and smashed into walls frequently growing up — all in the name of some good ol' living room football.

Garrett Celek, now 6-foot-5 and 252 pounds at age 29, plays for the 49ers. He's three-and-a-half years younger than 6-4, 255-pounder Brent Celek, who plays for the Eagles.
The brothers will face off in an NFL game for the first time this weekend — in the City of Brotherly Love, of all places.

Their parents will be in attendance at Philadelphia's Lincoln Financial Field, as will a host of Celek friends and family members. Fifty strong will roll into town a day early for a Saturday afternoon party — with both brothers in attendance — before crowding into one stadium section on Sunday.

For context of the photo up above: The Celeks were remodeling their house, and the two future NFL tight ends — teenagers at the time — were busy being their competitive selves.

"We weren't even playing football or anything," Garrett said. "But we were just tackling each other, smearing mud in each others' faces."

But, in typical Celek fashion, both remained jovial. They were too competitive to get upset. They smiled for the camera as if nothing had happened.

Brotherly love, indeed.

The duo's path to professional football began years before that, when Brent was a toddler.

"That's all Brent has ever wanted to do," Deb Celek said. "Before he turned two, he said he wanted to play football on TV."

So Brent's ascent was linear: He stayed in Cincinnati and played for the Bearcats in college before being taken by the Eagles in the fifth round of the 2007 draft.

Garrett, meanwhile, wasn't even sure he wanted to play college football until high school, where he played offensive line.

He originally planned to follow in Brent's footsteps at Cincinnati, but coach Mark Dantonio — who had developed a close relationship with the Celek family — left for Michigan State in 2007.

So Garrett followed the coach to East Lansing instead.

"He saw me running a 4.6 at a camp as an offensive lineman, and Dantonio saw the type of tight end my brother was," Garrett said. "And he said, 'I want that same guy,' when he saw me."

Garrett signed as an undrafted free agent with the 49ers in 2012. (And, in an interesting twist, his rookie season ended at a Super Bowl in which the opposing coaches were brothers by the name of Harbaugh.)

The Celek brothers both opened their careers at Green Bay's Lambeau Field, but it's taken five years for them to hit the same NFL field at the same time.

The 49ers and Eagles met in 2014, but Garrett was hurt then — foiling the family affair. This time, the stars have finally aligned, and special teams assignments mean that both brothers should be in the game simultaneously.

It's time to renew the rivalry that first broke the walls of the Celek living room.

"When we were kids, we would play football on our knees so we wouldn't pick up too much speed," Garrett said. "We'd have the football, and if you could get it from this end of the couch to the other end, you'd score."

As the boys grew older and stronger, the living room had to be re-arranged to accommodate these football games. Think of the room as a miniature Veterans Stadium or Candlestick Park — the former cathedrals of both brothers' current teams, which could both switch between baseball and football configurations.

"You had to push the furniture out of the way and hope nothing got broken too bad," Steve said, laughing about the destruction that probably wasn't as funny at the time. "Chairs got flipped and stuff. They had fun."

Steve and Deb have racked up frequent flier miles over the past decade, following their sons' football travels around the country.

Just last weekend, the couple flew from Cincinnati to the Bay Area to watch Garrett's 49ers on Sunday. They then shot back across the country to catch Brent's Eagles in Philadelphia on Monday Night Football before completing the loop back to Cincinnati.

"And then back to work the next day," Deb said.

In 2012, Garrett's 49ers were playing on Sunday afternoon against the Jets outside of New York City, while Brent's Eagles played that night in Philadelphia.

Steve and Deb attended both games, speeding down the New Jersey Turnpike to pull off the doubleheader.

But Deb fears that the actual game this Sunday may not be as fun for her as advertised, since rooting for Garrett means rooting against Brent — and vice versa.

"It's exciting, but it's tough to watch," Deb said. "Even the last one, where Garrett wasn't even playing, was tough. It was like you had to sit on your hands. You couldn't cheer anything."

Deb cites Peyton and Eli Manning, perhaps the most famous duo of brothers to ever play in the NFL. There were rumors that Peyton would join the Eagles after his tenure with Indianapolis finished in 2012, but that would mean entering the same division as his brother.

"Peyton Manning ended up turning the Eagles down," Deb said, noting her appreciation for the quarterback's decision. "He said he couldn't do that to his parents: Playing his brother twice a year."

Even though she's plagued by conflicting rooting interests, Deb can take solace in the fact that her sons will have moved their horseplay out of the house.

Up until a few years ago, when Garrett was home from college and Brent's NFL offseason was in full swing, the two started playfully bickering back in Cincinnati.

"Our mom was making dinner in the kitchen," Garrett said. "We started pushing each other, and then I picked Brent up and slammed him into the wall. I thought we were gonna go through the wall.

"We looked at each other and said, 'We can't mess around anymore. We're too big. We're either going to break something or hurt each other. You're in the league, and I don't want to hurt you.' And that's the last time we went at it."

Until this Sunday. Walls will be broken — this time in the City of Brotherly Love, of course.

Adrian Colbert

By Matt Barrows
Sacramento Bee
December 8, 2017

Adrian Colbert's life went hurtling in a new direction the day he rode his bike down a service road in Wichita Falls, Texas and crossed in front of an oncoming car.

Colbert, 9 years old at the time, went through the windshield with such force he broke the car's steering wheel. The impact left him with a fractured nose, collarbone, shoulder blade and ankle, and he was flown 80 miles to a hospital in Dallas.

Adrian Sr. declined to go into detail about how he grew up on the troubled lower east side of Wichita Falls and what he did for a living, but it wasn't good. He bears bullet wounds that hint strongly at the story. The home in which he raised his son does, too. It was sprayed with gunfire one night when Adrian Jr. was a baby. Two bullets struck the crib where he was sleeping at the time but didn't penetrate it.

"It was bullet holes from the front to the back of my house," Adrian Sr. said. "My house was like Swiss cheese."

The father spent days, then weeks, at his son's bedside feeling alone and abandoned. The guys he ran with on the streets of Wichita Falls – "all the friends and so-called gang members," he said – never showed up in support. In fact, while he was tending to his son at the hospital someone broke into his house.

Adrian Sr. had a lot of quiet time – time for contemplation. And while the son's bones mended, the father's soul did, too.

"God was trying to punish me … well, trying to open my eyes," Adrian Sr. said. "It was like, 'OK, if you don't want to learn through the things you went through, I'm going to take your son through this.' "

Adrian Sr.'s own father had built a menacing reputation in Wichita Falls and the respect he was given transferred to him. So, too, did the violent lifestyle. He worried that if things continued, his son also would be ensnared.

So he changed.

When they got back to Wichita Falls, he got a job at the local Wal-Mart. And a few years after that took a management position at a new store that was opening 90 miles south in Mineral Wells, Texas.

Adrian Jr., 24, said he was resentful at first because the move took him away from his family and friends. He was close to his mother, who had three other children when Adrian was born. But he was raised by his father and later, his step mother, Monique, who made the move with them and helped Adrian Jr. assimilate to the new town.

"It was a bad situation for my dad, which would have trickled down to me – putting me in a bad situation," he said. "It just wasn't a good environment for either of us. It was a good move."

Adrian Sr., 44, has not been shy about sharing his dubious and dangerous past with his son, always with the message: You can forge a new path if you want it badly enough.

Adrian Jr. applied it when he went to the University of Texas. He played safety there but never had much opportunity to show off for the NFL. When he tried for a fifth year of eligibility, the coaches advised him to move on.

"I didn't know what I was doing. I didn't know where I was going," he said. "Then the fact that my coach told me I wasn't going to make it to the NFL – it was kind of like I hit rock bottom at that point."

He said he was depressed at the time, and leaned heavily on his faith and his father.

He decided to spend his final season at the University of Miami. The Hurricanes placed him at cornerback and he showed enough talent that the 49ers spent a seventh-round pick on him in April, their final selection of the draft.

Colbert is set to start his third game at free safety Sunday against the Houston Texans. He broke his thumb in his first start on Nov. 12 and played through the injury. He returned last week in Chicago with the surgically repaired thumb bandaged and didn't miss a snap.

Lynch, a tough-guy safety when he was a player, has been impressed with the rookie's resolve.

"I kind of admire that," Lynch said. "So he's been excellent for us on special teams and then given the opportunity, he's shown that he can do a little more than that."

It's a five-hour drive from Mineral Wells to Houston, but Adrian Sr. and Monique will be among Colbert's fans in the stands on Sunday.

It's been a little more than a decade since they said goodbye to Wichita Falls, and he said it's hard to believe how far he and Adrian Jr. – who has an undergraduate degree in corporate communications and who is working towards a master's from Miami – have come.

Adrian Sr. said he plans to go back to Wichita Falls and take photographs of his old two-bedroom house, the one with the bullet holes from top to bottom, as part of a documentary he's planning about his son's journey.

"People won't even believe the things this boy has been through," he said. "Nowadays, that's the kind of thing that people get their kids taken away from them. But that's where we grew up. We didn't have money. You know what I'm saying? We grew up in the 'hood. It was drugs, gangs and guns. That was the normal. There were no picket fences and white houses and brick homes where we grew up."

That's the beginning of the story. The essence of it, however, is that it doesn't need to be the end.

"You have to want it," Adrian Sr. said. "That's the bottom line and one of the things that I've always told Adrian: It's not about where you come from and what you've got. It's about what you want and what you're going to do to get there. Nobody owes you nothing and no one's going to give you anything. You're going to have to work for it."

Brock Coyle

49ers' Brock Coyle has grown into job as starting inside linebacker

By Eric Branch
San Francisco Chronicle
December 22, 2017

After Brock Coyle was asked to replace linebacker NaVorro Bowman, he made a mistake: He tried to replace NaVorro Bowman.

On Oct. 15, two days after the 49ers released Bowman, Coyle felt the weight of filling his All-Pro cleats and initially appeared to be playing in quicksand. In the first half of a 26-24 loss at Washington, quarterback Kirk Cousins targeted Coyle and completed five passes to a running back for 111 yards and one touchdown.

It was a rough start, by any standard, but it made sense, in a way. Allow the 49ers' inside linebacker and defensive coordinator Robert Saleh to explain.

"You put too much pressure on yourself and the only thing you can do is mess it up," Saleh said. "That first half of the Washington game, he made it bigger than it needed to be."

Coyle, who entered the league in 2014 with Seattle as an undrafted free agent from Montana, was making his sixth career start.

"I was ready to play," Coyle said. "But just with everything that had happened, I think I put too much pressure on myself."

Two months later, Coyle hasn't made fans forget Bowman at his peak, but he's come a long way since his disastrous debut.

On Sunday, Coyle continued his stretch of strong play in a 25-23 win over the Titans. In the second quarter, he ripped the ball away from tight end Delanie Walker and the forced fumble led to a short field-goal drive.

Then, late in the fourth quarter, Coyle launched into the middle and teamed with defensive tackle DeForest Buckner to stuff DeMarco Murray for no gain on 3rd-and-2. The Titans settled for a field goal with 67 seconds left, and the play set the stage for the 49ers' game-winning drive.

In his first four games after Bowman's exit, Coyle earned these games grades, according to Pro Football Focus: 26.7, 43.2, 43.3 and 39.7. His grades in his past four games: 75.7, 73.2, 70.0, 77.0.

Saleh has seen the difference, and he says the change is connected to Coyle's mind-set.

"He's not trying to be a superhero," Saleh said. "He's just being Brock Coyle. And Brock Coyle is a really good football player."

The 49ers' late-season uptick can be largely credited to the man relaying the offensive plays, quarterback Jimmy Garoppolo. But Coyle, who relays the defensive plays, can at least take partial credit: His improvement over the past month helps explain why the 49ers have limited their past four opponents to under 100 rushing yards, their first such streak since 2013.

Next up: Coyle and company will face rookie Leonard Fournette and Jacksonville's top-ranked rushing attack Sunday at Levi's Stadium.

"He gives everything he can," head coach Kyle Shanahan said of Coyle. "You know when he gets in, it's a matter of time that he'll continue to get better. The more he plays, I feel like the better he gets because he's very smart, he works at it, and he learns from all the things that happen to him. ... I think he's been playing his best ball these last few weeks and he's really been helping people around him."

The 49ers signed Coyle to a one-year, $1.45 million contract in March to serve as a core special-teams player, which was his primary role his first three NFL seasons in Seattle.

However, Coyle moved up the depth chart thanks to a season-ending injury in training camp to inside linebacker Malcolm Smith and the release of Bowman. Ray-Ray Armstrong began the season as the primary backup inside linebacker, but Coyle supplanted him before Armstrong was released in late November.

Few expected Coyle to be starting alongside his flashier counterpart, first-round pick Reuben Foster, but he's used to beating the odds as a small-school undrafted free agent.

Coyle grew up in Bozeman, Mont., and was a Junior Olympic ski racer until he focused solely on football at 16. He said he never worried about roadblocks on his path to the NFL.

"I've been asked that before: Did I have any doubt?" Coyle said. "I don't think I objectively stepped back and looked at it like that. I just did it. I just believed. ... Now, being in the position that I'm in, I know that if you're good enough, they'll find you. You'll make the team and then it's up to you."

It's not clear what team Coyle will be playing for after his one-year contract expires. Smith and Foster are projected to be the 2018 starting inside linebackers, but Coyle could return as a backup and special-teamer.

His recent stretch hasn't been without blemishes: For example, he was caught flat-footed at the goal line and beaten for an 8-yard touchdown catch by Titans wide receiver Rishard Matthews on Sunday.

However, he's made great strides since his first start with the 49ers and sounds confident others will agree with Saleh: Brock Coyle is a really good football player.

"In the NFL, what you put on tape is your resume," he said. "I think regardless of what next year holds for me, whether it's San Francisco or another team, I want to be confident about what I'm putting on tape and it will speak for itself."

JP Flynn

By Grant Cohn
Santa Rosa Press Democrat
September 30, 2017

But as for you, be strong and do not give up, for your work will be rewarded."

— Second Corinthians 15, verse 7.

JP Flynn sits at his locker and armors himself for practice. Flynn, a rookie offensive lineman on the 49ers' practice squad, wraps his wrist with black adhesive tape and a pink, rubber wristband. As he does this, he reveals a tattoo of that bible verse on his right arm. The verse sits underneath a tattoo of a pink ribbon and the word "Survivor."

October is Breast Cancer Awareness month in the NFL. But every month is Breast Cancer Awareness month for Flynn.

"I try not to put on a show about it," he says. "You won't see me decked out in pink. I keep little reminders, like this tattoo I got for my mom. The bible verse was her bookmark whenever she went to treatment."

Flynn's mother, Ruth, was diagnosed with breast cancer in 2005. She was 40. J.P. was 11.

"We were all pretty young at the time," Flynn says. "We didn't understand what was going on. And then, slowly you see things develop. My mom loses all of her hair, which is a weird thing. In a kid's eyes, mom is the most beautiful woman in the world. Seeing her struggle every day, seeing how weak she got, her having to put a wig on, having to do whatever she has to do in order to make herself confident, it was hard to bear.

"Her treatment was rough. Chemo and radiation. That typical ordeal. The thing about radiation, it makes a human extremely tired. So, starting your day off and expecting your mom to hop out of bed and her not being able to get out of bed to greet her children, it's rough to look back and think upon. It was a long process. It took over a year. And then she was in a remission for almost 13 years."

Flynn's mom runs a special-needs daycare center in Bettendorf, Iowa, and she runs a bakery out of her own house.

"Best cookies I've ever had in my life," says 49ers linebacker Brock Coyle, whose locker is one to the right of Flynn's. Coyle is listening to the story while he ties his shoelaces and puts on his uniform.

Her doctor said the lump was nothing serious. But it turned out to be a rare form of carcinoma — mucoepidermoid carcinoma. She was diagnosed this past March.

Ruth doesn't know if the radiation she endured to treat her breast cancer caused this carcinoma. "They don't tell you that specifically," she said over the phone. "But, other doctors that I've talked to, they do say the other radiation can cause this kind of cancer. They call it an auxiliary cancer caused by radiation or other types of chemo."

One of them works at the Mayo Clinic in Cleveland. He performed the surgery to remove Ruth's tumor, which required a cut from behind her ear all the way down her neck. She spent six weeks at the Mayo Clinic. She recently finished treatment and had a checkup, and says she's doing well.

"We're hopeful," her son says. "The worst thing is she has a bunch of nerve damage, because that tumor was ingrained in her nerves. It looks like she had a stroke. Her mouth doesn't move on one side and she has trouble blinking and moving her eyelid. She just wants to smile again. We're trying to figure out a way to get her smile back."

Flynn says these episodes have changed his mother. "Oh, God, you can see she lacks some things aesthetically, but she is an incredibly confident woman. She is the strongest woman alive in my life, and these ordeals have made her even stronger. What she has done, she knows she can accomplish anything now. Whatever she wants to do, she can do it. She can take the world on. And we all know that. We support her."

Flynn says these episodes have changed him, too. "It's just motivation every day. The NFL season, it's a grind. That's a fair thing to say. That's why I keep these reminders." He snaps the rubber wristband against his arm. "Whenever I'm having a bad day, I just look down and remember things could be a lot harder."

Since 2009, the NFL has raised $18 million for the American Cancer Society by selling pink merchandise such as that wristband Flynn wears. But Breast Cancer Awareness month is not limited to the NFL. It's an international initiative.

"(This month) is very effective in how we promote awareness and how much is donated to make women aware of what is needed for themselves," Ruth Flynn said. "If I wasn't aware of myself and what I was doing to take care of me, I would not be here today.

"All the testing that I had done previous to my diagnosis for breast cancer, nothing was ever diagnosed. I am the one that went back in and said 'Pursue this further' and found the lump and things that needed to be diagnosed.

"This whole NFL thing way new to us. I'm adjusting to having a son in the NFL. It's still kind of surreal. People say, 'Oh, your son plays for the 49ers.' I'm like, 'Umm, yes. He does.' I'm very much in awe of my son and what he has done."

Not as much as Flynn is in awe of her. "She is my hero. I don't know how else to put that into words. She's my hero."

Reuben Foster

49ers excited about linebacker Reuben Foster

By Eric Branch
San Francisco Chronicle
August 1, 2017

The 49ers are smitten with Reuben Foster.

More than a year earlier, before the 2016 draft, 49ers vice president of player personnel Adam Peters was studying video of Alabama inside linebacker Reggie Ragland.

Peters, then in the Broncos' front office, liked Ragland, the SEC Defensive Player of the Year who became a second-round pick. But he loved Foster, his teammate who wasn't draft-eligible.

"This guy (Foster) is running past (Ragland) on every single play and making it," Peters said. "It was like 'Forget about that guy — who is that guy?' And Reggie Ragland is a very good payer in his own right, don't get me wrong."

Peters is hardly alone. Both he and general manager John Lynch have labeled Foster, the No. 31 pick, their favorite player in the draft. (This, despite using the No. 3 pick on Stanford's Solomon Thomas.) And it's not just the front office. Linebackers coach Johnny Holland has termed Foster one of the best inside-linebacker prospects in the past 10 years.

"I don't want to make undue expectations on this kid," Lynch said last week on KNBR, "but I have full confidence that he's going to have a terrific career. He has it all to me."

Some NFL teams were highly skeptical, but the early returns suggest the 49ers' swooning over Foster is justified. Foster was a consensus top-10 talent, but he nearly slipped out of the first round because of concerns about his surgically repaired shoulder and his character.

It's premature to assess if the 49ers were right to rank him as the third-best prospect in the draft, but this can be safely said: They remain smitten.

Foster was medically cleared just before training camp and he has flashed the ability that made him the winner of the Butkus Award, given to the nation's top linebacker, while practicing with no restrictions. Foster already has a team-best three interceptions in four practices and a few other highlight-reel plays. On Monday, he was a blur who bolted into the backfield to blow up a sweep play to running back Raheem Mostert.

"He's got great instincts — just a real knack for being in the right place at the right time," quarterback Matt Barkley said. "… I remember seeing him play at Alabama — and seeing the hits he can deal can be pretty devastating. He's taking it easy on our guys right now, but I think when preseason games come — he'll be lighting it up on the field."

Foster's physicality was part of the attraction for Lynch, a hard-hitting safety who spent 15 seasons playing with Foster's reckless abandon. Lynch has said Foster's style — best exhibited in college when he flattened LSU's industrial-size running back Leonard Fournette on kickoff coverage — will be infectious.

Defensive quality-control coach DeMeco Ryans, 33, a linebacker who was voted to two Pro Bowls in his 10-year career, noted Foster has a quality many players only talk about possessing.

"He definitely hits a lot harder than I did," Ryans said. "His intention is to run through (people). A lot of people talk about it. 'We want to run through. We want to be physical.' Yadda, yadda, yadda. Reuben actually does it. That's what's unique about him."

Foster is undeniably gifted and apparently healthy. Still, there are those questions about his character: He will have to prove he possesses the focus and discipline to succeed in the NFL.

The MMQB.com reported a team with a top-15 pick didn't have Foster on their draft board because of his "immaturity" and "issues with life skills." And that was before he failed a drug test and was kicked out of the NFL combine for getting into a reportedly "heated altercation" with a hospital employee. Two months later, Foster's draft party was sponsored by a tobacco and marijuana vaporizer company.

The 49ers hosted Foster for a pre-draft visit and later sent team pastor Earl Smith and Keena Turner, a former linebacker involved in their player-engagement department, to visit with Foster for two days in Tuscaloosa, Ala.

The team learned more about Foster's challenging childhood and how it shaped him. In 1996, when he was 19 months old, Foster and his mother were shot by his father, Danny. They both survived. Danny Foster went on to spend 16 years as a fugitive before he was arrested. Foster has spoken with his father, but they do not have a relationship.

The 49ers believe they have a strong support system that includes Holland and Ryans, former NFL linebackers who can relate to the pressure of being high picks. (They were both drafted in the second round.) In addition, Ryans also attended Alabama and got to know Foster when he was still playing for the Tide.

On Sunday, Foster termed Holland a "father figure" and said Ryans was "like a brother."

"He came on his (pre-draft) visit here and we just felt 'He fits us,'" Holland said of Foster's connection with the franchise. "'He can fit in with us. We can offer a lot to him as a mentor, and he can offer a lot to us as a player.' It was one of those deals that was meant to be, it felt like …"

"As a 23-year-old, there's a lot of things that he hasn't experienced yet and he's willing to listen to experiences I've been through. That DeMeco has been through. And he's always willing to learn and listen. That's what exciting about him: How much better we can make him as a football player and as a person."

Foster, who has two children, says he's intent on becoming a "better "man, father and teammate." And he believes the 49ers have the same goals for him.

"I've felt much love, much loyalty," Foster said. "It's not just a business here. I've felt relationships in this program."

On Sunday, when asked about playing with All-Pro linebacker NaVorro Bowman, his eyes widened: "I was worried at first. I was worried. Because if you look at Bo — and you look at me — he's a man. That's a man. Did you see his arms?"

He also had this explanation for his training-camp interceptions: "I guess the ball's got a thing for me. I don't have a thing for the ball."

Later, when a reporter spoke with him off to the side, Foster's mega-watt smile momentarily vanished when asked being viewed as "bad guy" before the draft.

"I'm a great guy. An awesome guy, you feel me?" Foster asked, his smile returning. "I love you; you love me. To know Reuben is to love Reuben."

Three months into their relationship, the 49ers agree.

After playing Division III football at Norwich University, in Northfield, Vt., and then at Mount Union, in Alliance, Ohio, receiver Pierre Garçon never expected to be drafted. Yet the sixth-round pick of the Colts in 2008 has made the most of his opportunity, becoming a top target for Washington's Kirk Cousins this season after hauling in 72 receptions for 777 yards and six touchdowns in 2015.

Garçon has made an even bigger impact off the field with the work he has done in Haiti, his family's homeland. The impoverished nation has been devastated over the past six years: first by a 7.0 magnitude earthquake in 2010, then by Hurricane Matthew, which hit in October, causing more than 1,000 deaths. Garçon has traveled to Haiti to bring supplies, and he also started a foundation, Helping Hands, to bring education, health and community programs to the country. "I enjoy helping people," he says. "That's how I got to where I am."

ON HIS HAITIAN ROOTS
I was born in Carmel, N.Y., but my family was all born in Haiti. We spoke Creole in the house. When I was really young, we moved to Greenacres, Fla., and lived among other Haitians, a lot of Americans and a lot of other immigrants. As kids we didn't know who was Haitian and who wasn't until we met their parents. We tried to adapt to American society and speak English, but I always knew we were Haitian.

ON YOUTH FOOTBALL
We came together around the game. When you are in South Florida, you can play basketball and soccer, but football is No. 1, hands down. We always played pickup football. After school, at recess, on the weekend, it was part of our daily activities. I was good at it. I was fast.

ON GOING TO COLLEGE IN VERMONT
That was the first time I saw snow. I saw mountains—it was eye-opening. The ball was so hard, it hurt my fingers. It was a very tough adjustment. Luckily there were a couple of guys from Florida in their second year. They let me follow them and figure it out. At the end of the day you just try to catch what they throw to you.

ON BEING DRAFTED
I was at my sister's house in West Palm Beach just waiting. I didn't expect to get drafted, but I had done well at the combine. I was projected to go in the sixth round, so around the fourth or fifth round, I started really watching. I got a call from a 317 area code—it was Indy. That was the happiest you could ever be.

ON RETURNING TO HAITI AFTER HURRICANE MATTHEW
It was an amazing trip. I was happy that [Washington owner] Daniel Snyder gave us his plane. We helped out at a hospital and provided much-needed things to speed up the recovery process. It was very impactful for me.

ON HAITIANS IN THE NFL
It's only a matter of time. In South Florida there are a lot of Haitians playing football. In the next few years there will be over 100 Haitian NFL players.

By Peter Hailey

A common thing you hear pro athletes talk about is not forgetting where they came from. But while some stars just use that phrase as lip service, Pierre Garçon is a player who definitely embodies it.

Here are the indisputable qualities that the receiver possesses: Toughness, passion and a love for Haiti. But while the first two are on display each week on the field, the third one sometimes doesn't receive enough attention.

A recent interview with Time Magazine, however, provided Garçon a space to expand on the connection he feels with the country.

"I was born in Carmel, N.Y., but my family was all born in Haiti," he told the publication. "When I was really young, we moved to Greenacres, Fla., and lived among other Haitians, a lot of Americans and a lot of other immigrants... We tried to adapt to American society and speak English, but I always knew we were Haitian."

It's evident that he's carried those ties to his roots with him into his professional life, with the best example of that coming when he and fellow Redskin Ricky Jean-Francois traveled to Haiti to aid in the recovery following October's Hurricane Matthew. The 30-year-old called the experience "amazing."

"I was happy that Daniel Snyder gave us his plane," he said. "We helped out at a hospital and provided much-needed things to speed up the recovery process. It was very impactful for me."

In the immediate aftermath of the trip, Garçon told CSN in a one-on-one interview that the fact that there's such a disparity between where he lives now and his family's home is what bothers him most. It's something that, one day, he'd love to see change.

"It's very tough, because you have to think back to when we complain about what we're going through or being stuck in traffic or the water's not hot — it's just so ancient, what they're living in," he said to JP Finlay few months ago (full video above). "And it's sad to see now because we're so far advanced and Haiti's only a two-hour flight from America. There shouldn't be that disconnect with the living aspects."

Looking Back At Pierre Garçon's History Of Charitable Endeavors

Since his rookie year, wide receiver Pierre Garçon has made it his mission to give back in any way he can. We've seen Garçon work with the Washington Redskins Charitable Foundation, establish his own charities, and even travel the world to personally contribute.

As a result, the Washington Redskins selected Garçon this past December as their nominee for the 2016 Walter Payton Man of the Year award, which recognizes an NFL player for his excellence on and off the field.

In 2008, Garçon was drafted by the Indiana Colts in the sixth round and he went on to establish the Pierre Garçon Helping Hands Foundation that same year. As a public figure, he hoped to use his status as a way to bring attention to the causes he felt strongly about, which was recently documented by NFL Player Engagement Insider Jim Gehman.

When Garçon was picked up by the Redskins in 2012 as a free agent, he brought his charitable works with him to Washington and they continue to thrive to this day. One is the annual Pierre Garçon All-White Party that has raised nearly $400,000 for the Boys & Girls Club alone.

Outside of his own endeavours, Garçon actively supports the Washington Redskins Charitable Foundation by dedicating his off days to assist with events such as Teacher Appreciation Kickoff, Redskins FITT, and Salute to Play 60.

On a more personal level, Garçon has worked relentlessly to support his family's homeland, Haiti. He makes annual mission trips to help raise money and awareness for the country's difficult living conditions. This past October, Garçon led a Redskins relief effort and traveled to Haiti after the devastating destruction of Hurricane Matthew to bring water and medical supplies.

Garçon's mission to help change the world is fueled by the community efforts he experienced growing up. "I grew up in our church and we played sports all the time," he recalled to NFL Player Engagement. "We always had somebody to take us to church, take us to school programs. The guy that always picked us up, without him, I wouldn't be where I am now. I want to put out what he put into me."

The Redskins recognize Garçon as a humanitarian who has given back through charity and on the field. Garcon leads the Redskins in most recorded receptions (356), including a league-leading and team-record 113 receptions in 2013.

Garçon is one of 32 candidates to receive the league-wide award to acknowledge a player's community service and volunteer efforts as well as his excellence on the field. The winner will be announced in Houston at the NFL Honors on Feb. 4.

Pierre Garçon selected as Redskins' 2016 Walter Payton Man of the Year

The Washington Redskins have selected wide receiver Pierre Garcon as their 2016 Walter Payton Man of the Year, honoring him for charitable work both in the community and in his homeland, Haiti.

Garcon is a regular participant in the Washington Redskins Charitable Foundation's outreach event, and he has his own charity, Pierre Garcon Helping Hands Foundation, which serves families in need both in the United States and in Haiti.

Earlier this season, following Hurricane Matthew, Garcon and teammate Ricky Jean Francois traveled to Haiti on the Redskins' team plane to drop off a load of medical supplies to aid in the treatment and recovery of the victims of the storm.

"Giving back is just something I definitely make a point of doing, because I was one of those kids that needed someone to say 'Hey, this is how you do it,' " said Garcon, whose family emigrated from Haiti to upstate New York, where he was born, and then moved to Florida, where he grew up. "Because I grew up with three older sisters, no brothers, no father, just out there. I had a lot of talent, but didn't know what to do with it. But I had someone take me under their wing and say, 'This is what you have to do. Do well in school, do well in this and that,' and I listened and I made it to the NFL. I know there are some kids out there that are way more talented than me and just need a little bit of guidance and need the right direction."

But Garcon said he also tries to provide a positive influence for children who aren't athletes as well.

"There are a lot of kids that aren't going to make it as professional athletes," Garcon said, "but if you put them in the position to be successful, it can change their whole life. It doesn't have to be an athlete. You just point them in the right direction, and they could be a musician, a doctor, a lawyer — anything they strive to be. Just anybody that needs a right direction and helping hand, that's what I try to provide, knowing everyone won't be a professional athlete."

Garcon this season is tied for the team lead in catches, 59, is second on the team with 714 receiving yards. He has two touchdown catches.

Jimmy Garoppolo

Hollywood looks, blue-collar background

By Matt Barrows
Sacramento Bee
December 1, 2017

Anyone worried about Jimmy Garoppolo's ability to process the 49ers' complex offense should consider this: He's been running intricate systems since the 12th grade.

When he was a rising junior at Rolling Meadows High School in Arlington Heights, Ill., the coaches decided to give Garoppolo, a linebacker who never had played quarterback at any level, a shot at the position.

That fall he ran a simple, run-oriented system heavy on tight ends and read options.

His senior year was different.

The coaches rebuilt the offense around Garoppolo's arm, legs and brain. It featured four or five wide receivers. It leaned on the quarterback's ability to check out of unfavorable calls. It was the "Jimmy Show" and his coaches weren't shy about piling on responsibility.

Charlie Henry, the school's offensive coordinator at the time, remembers a visit from an Eastern Illinois coach who was recruiting Garoppolo.

"I said, 'Well, let me show you what we do here,' " Henry recalled. "And I threw up a couple of looks and said, 'So, we'll tell Jimmy, 'You've got to get out of this (protection)' or, 'You've got to get into this one.' And the coach was like, 'And he does all that? That's a lot to ask a high-school quarterback.' "

Henry will be one of 15 or so of Garoppolo's former teachers and coaches at Soldier Field – about a 35-mile drive from Rolling Meadows – to watch their former pupil make his 49ers starting debut Sunday. Like most die-hard Bears fans, Henry said he wants to see the hometown team and the hometown kid succeed, and he decided a shootout would be the ideal scenario.

"I don't care who wins if it's a shootout because that means both quarterbacks probably played pretty well," he said with a laugh. "It would give a little hope for Bears fans and I'd be excited for Jimmy."

Garoppolo will have plenty of family and friends in the stands as well, and he admitted he had to put away his constantly buzzing cellphone after Kyle Shanahan announced he would start this week.

He doesn't seem, however, like the type of guy who will fall into the trappings of the hometown hero. For one, he studied under two men who could teach a Master's class on freezing out distractions, Tom Brady and Bill Belichick, for three and a half seasons in New England.

And perhaps more important, he is firmly grounded by his working-class roots in Arlington Heights. His father, Tony, is an electrician. His mother, Denise, works at an organic foods store but was a stay-at-home mom when Jimmy and his three brothers were growing up.

"We were basically living on one person's salary – six people," said Mike Garoppolo, one of Jimmy's older brothers. "I wouldn't even see my dad some days because he was working so late and going to work so early. That blue-collar approach really got imbedded in us: If you want to do something, you've got to work for it."

Tony Garoppolo is average size – about 5-10, 180 pounds – but was a two-way player at offensive guard and defensive tackle in high school, and his sons grew up hearing stories about the merits of the sport.

So what happened when good-looking Jimmy transitioned from linebacker to the glorified and refined quarterback spot?

"When he got switched over, we definitely gave him a hard time about it – being the pretty boy now," Mike said. "But he worked his tail off. And the way he played the quarterback position, he was no pretty boy. In high school especially he was like their running back and quarterback at the same time. As much as it's a pretty-boy position, he made it a tough-guy spot."

Jimmy was a baseball player growing up, but it wasn't necessarily his arm that convinced coaches he could play quarterback. Instead it was his overall athleticism – Jimmy was a standout in basketball and soccer, too – and the way he interacted with the other kids.

"He's a leader," Henry said. "The kids in his grade, I mean, they always gravitated toward him for guidance. And when you can package that – the running ability, the leadership and that talent – that's exactly what you want to have at quarterback on a good football team."

What Henry and his fellow coaches didn't realize at the time was the depth of Garoppolo's drive and his capacity for work. Between his junior and senior seasons, the boy who had never played the position before hired a quarterbacks coach, got up early every Saturday morning and made massive strides before his senior season.

Henry said he coached two of Garoppolo's brothers and taught social studies to the third.

"They're grounded," he said. "They don't take anything for granted. And they work hard. And that all showed up with Jimmy. He just got better and better and better. And I don't think that's stopped since he left here."

Jimmy Garoppolo's Chicago-area upbringing made him the quarterback he is today — and will be Sunday

By David Lombardi
The Athletic
December 1, 2017

When Jimmy Garoppolo arrives at Soldier Field on Sunday, it will be his first-ever visit to that hallowed venue.

But it certainly won't be Garoppolo's first time in Chicago: The new 49ers quarterback's story began there, in the suburb of Arlington Heights, Illinois — just 40 minutes away from Soldier Field's gates on the windy shores of Lake Michigan.

The Garoppolo saga, or at least the quarterback chapter of it, can be traced back over a decade to its origin at Rolling Meadows High. As a sophomore there, Garoppolo was a basketball player, a pitcher on the baseball diamond, and a rail-thin 175-pound outside linebacker.

"Going into games, I would always ask coach, 'how much does this guy weigh?'" Garoppolo remembered. "Because I knew I wasn't big enough to just man him up. I had to think of other ways to get creative with him."

Those mismatches ended when Doug Millsaps, Garoppolo's high school coach, decided to try the skinny kid at quarterback. The freshman still had an elongated pitcher's throwing release, but the football did zip out of his arm, so it was worth the try.

The rest was history. Garoppolo became — and remained — the starting quarterback, a job title that he wouldn't relinquish until he reached the NFL and Tom Brady was his teammate.

And now, Garoppolo has earned that starter's title again, this time with the 49ers, a team whose general manager has called him the "quarterback of the future."

The road to this point traveled through Eastern Illinois University, which happens to be the alma mater of Mike Shanahan, the father of Garoppolo's new coach Kyle Shanahan, and only really went that way because of an endorsement from former NFL quarterback Jeff Christensen, who's been Garoppolo's personal coach since high school.

Christensen, an Eastern Illinois alumnus himself, convinced Roy Wittke — then the school's offensive coordinator and the man who had coached Tony Romo in college — to catch at least a half of Garoppolo's game while recruiting another quarterback in suburban Chicago.

Wittke obliged. He went to see Rolling Meadows play, and he called Christensen from the school's parking lot after the game.

"Jeff, that's Tony Romo," Wittke said back then, glowing about Garoppolo's lightning-quick release, according to Christensen.

No FBS school offered Garoppolo a scholarship during that recruiting cycle — 2010 was a stacked year for high school quarterback prospects in the greater Chicago area, so he slipped under the radar. But it wasn't long before Eastern Illinois, an FCS program, pulled the trigger.

Wittke returned to Arlington Heights during basketball season, and he began to learn more about Garoppolo's personality by watching other sports, just as he had done while recruiting Romo 10 years prior.

"Tony was a damn good basketball player," Wittke said. "Jimmy was a little bit of a blue-collar guy on the basketball court. Jimmy was a rebounder and he played defense. That type of thing."

Later, Wittke visited Garoppolo's home. The coach met the quarterback's father Tony, an electrician, his mother Denise, and his three brothers.

"They were real down to earth, blue-collar, Midwestern values, people with a great work ethic," Wittke said, having seen a home parallel to Garoppolo's rugged style of play on the basketball court. "I walked away sold. You can just see the home and the atmosphere: The relationship Jimmy had not only with mom and dad, but with his brothers — it was special in my mind. There's no question in my mind that it's been a big part of his success."

He offered Garoppolo a scholarship to Eastern Illinois, and that's when this story truly took flight.

Nowadays, Garoppolo is one of the most celebrated relatively-unknown commodities in NFL history. Sunday will mark only his third professional start in four seasons, but Garoppolo has already been lauded as a potential franchise savior and big-money recipient when his rookie contract expires after this season. But it hasn't always been this way. In fact, when it comes to the correlation between production and publicity, the opposite used to be true for Garoppolo.

During his senior year at Eastern Illinois, Garoppolo made a mockery of the stat sheet: He threw for 5,050 yards and 53 touchdowns, averaging 8.9 yards per attempt.

"It was like watching a video game," Wittke said. "Instead of measuring yards after contact for running backs, you had to measure yards before contact. Because defenses were so adamant to try to stop Jimmy's passing, our backs were always in the secondary before they even got touched."

Eastern Illinois annihilated San Diego State behind three Garoppolo touchdown tosses early in that 2013 season. The Aztecs played Ohio State immediately after that, so Buckeyes coach Urban Meyer watched the Panthers' tape to prepare.

"I think I just saw one of the best quarterbacks I've ever seen," Meyer said of Garoppolo at the time. "And nobody knows what his name is."

Recently, Garoppolo's playing time has been much more sparse than it was back then, but he's become a household name. Backing up Brady in New England certainly helped put him on the map.

Just last Sunday, Garoppolo delivered three of the most exciting garbage time plays in 49ers history when he relieved the injured C.J. Beathard, converted a fourth down, and threw an on-the-go touchdown to Louis Murphy as time expired.

Garoppolo has gone from playing all the time with hardly anybody noticing to hardly playing at all with seemingly everybody clamoring for more.

Over the course of the past month, Kyle Shanahan has said that even his wife, Mandy, has been asking when Garoppolo will appear for the 49ers.

The level of intrigue surrounding the quarterback has ballooned. It should finally be satisfied on Sunday in Chicago, very close to where the build-up began a decade ago, very quietly, in parks around the city's northeastern suburbs.

That's where Christensen, who now has a bevy of NFL clients that includes Washington's Kirk Cousins and Miami's Ryan Tannehill, began working with the 16-year-old Garoppolo.

"It was really about making him feel how the ball leaves his fingertips on all these different movements and different routes," Christensen explained how Garoppolo developed his accuracy, a process he continues fine-tuning every offseason. "You want him to feel 'that's perfect' when it leaves his fingertips."

Christensen broke Garoppolo's mechanics down into scientific detail, converting the former pitcher's elongated throwing motion into a lightning-quick one that current Syracuse coach Dino Babers — who coached Garoppolo at Eastern Illinois — said was "the fastest release of any guy I've ever seen" outside of Dan Marino.

"If you're throwing the ball with the right mechanical movement and the proper body parts functioning at the proper time, you have to have a quick release," Christensen said, describing Garoppolo's training regimen. "And Jimmy just bought in from Day 1."

Christensen remembers fielding a phone call from Garoppolo on a sweltering summer day. The quarterback, about 17 at the time, wanted to throw some more, so the coach met him at a nearby park with a playground and swing sets, setting up a camera to record Garoppolo's passes.

"It was 102 degrees outside," Christensen said. "He just wanted to get his reps in for a full hour-and-a-half. I recently found that film and watched it — and it looked like Jimmy was 12 years old. But even then, watching the ball come out of his hand, it was really impressive."

Christensen points to that hot summer day, and Garoppolo's willingness to sweat through while refining his throwing motion, as early evidence of the success to come.

"Things like that told me about Jimmy," Christensen said. "And that's all I needed to know."

Like Wittke, Christensen points to Garoppolo's family as the grounding influence that shaped his work ethic.

"He's kind of a good-looking guy, so he could've been at the pool — he could've been doing all that stuff in the summer," Christensen said. "Instead, he wanted to get his work in, and he's been the same type of kid ever since.

"Jimmy has zero entitlement in his body. His two older brothers beat on him like a rag doll for 10 years growing up, so he's just a worker. And that's what college coaches want: A guy who shows up and knows how to get to work. Who gets knocked down and can get up."

In Garoppolo, that's exactly who Eastern Illinois got.

Garoppolo started as a true freshman in college, but the Panthers won only three combined games through his first two years.

Then Babers, formerly the wide receivers coach at Baylor while Robert Griffin III was the quarterback there, took over the program.

Babers saw Garoppolo throw five passes in an offseason workout, and the coach was sold. Babers had his man to operate the Veer-and-Shoot offense, Art Briles' offshoot of the Air Raid. This new system featured more deep passes and quarterback running than its predecessor, developed by Mike Leach.

Garoppolo — though he is mobile — wasn't as fast as Griffin, and nasty lake-effect Illinois winds made Babers modify the free-wheeling Baylor version of the Veer-and-Shoot. He created an offense that incorporated the pro-style experience that Garoppolo had developed under Bob Spoo's previous Eastern Illinois staff.

"When we went to the spread his last two years, it completed his training," Babers said, adding that Garoppolo addressed his biggest weakness — deep throws — during this time. "We spent time not only in the spread, but also under center. I think having the ability to do both not only made us dynamic as an offense, but it also helped us to continue Jimmy's development for the next level."

The effort culminated in Garoppolo's 5,050-yard senior season, his second-round draft selection by the Patriots in 2014, and two very impressive starts while filling in during Brady's "Deflategate" suspension in 2016.

And it all built up to the frenetic final play of the 49ers game against Seattle last week, during which Garoppolo stood calmly in the pocket — emulating Brady — before bolting out and throwing a spectacular touchdown as time expired.

"It really seemed preordained by a superior power," Christensen said, chuckling about the play. "He had to scramble to his backside, flip his hips, head toward the right mark to throw the ball, over the top of the ref, over the top of the guy, while leading his guy, so it was in front of the other defender, into a size six-and-a-half shoebox. It was like the perfect demonstration video."

It might've been reminiscent of those training videos that Christensen recorded of Garoppolo throwing in suburban Chicago parks, way back when. Except the play in this recent video would directly precede Garoppolo's action in the most famous Chicago park of them all, at least for football purposes: Soldier Field.

To successfully execute his job, a team's starting quarterback must do more than just succeed on the field. Coaches count on the position for a more general sense of team leadership, and Babers offers a story from Garoppolo's senior season at Eastern Illinois to illustrate that trait:

Before that aforementioned blowout win at San Diego State, Babers wanted to surprise his team — most of whom had never seen the ocean — by taking them to a San Diego beach.

Babers only told Garoppolo about the plan, since he was the team's quarterback. But the coach wanted it to be kept a secret from the rest of the players, and the team buses pulled away from a walk-through at Jack Murphy Stadium and rolled westward, eventually arriving at the sandy shores of Mission Beach.

As the bus ground to a halt, all of the Eastern Illinois offensive linemen started ripping their clothes off. To Babers' shock, they were all wearing Speedos underneath, and they sprinted off the bus toward the ocean.

"Garoppolo, what the heck?!" the coach yelled at his quarterback, who had obviously spilled the beans. "Coach, I had to tell the offensive line," Garoppolo responded. "They're my guys. I had to tell them we were going to the beach!"

Many 49ers players have already commented on Garoppolo's likeable presence, which seems to resonate well in the locker room.

"He was always a guy that had a magnetism and a charisma about him," Wittke said. "From fear of sounding a little corny, he's a really good-looking young man, and he's always been that way. And because of that, he's popular, so he was always good with anyone in the locker room. He could sit with the DBs, and at dinner he could sit with the offensive linemen. He was never above anyone."

Babers added a similar thought, one that should make Shanahan and 49ers GM John Lynch smile during this franchise construction process.

"Jimmy is the type of guy that a team will just rally around," Babers said. "He crosses racial barriers. He crosses economic barriers. He is exactly the type of person you want to build a football team around."
And that's where this all comes full circle.

"That goes back to mom and dad and his family," Wittke said. "There's no question about that. So it's really fitting that he gets his first (49ers) start at Soldier Field, in front of them."

Gould named NFC Special Teams Player of the Week ... again

By Matt Maiocco
NBC Sports Bay Area
December 20, 2017

Robbie Gould was named NFC Special Teams Player of the Week, becoming the third 49ers kicker to win the honor twice in the same season.

Gould, 35, a 13-year NFL veteran, was recognized for the honor for second time in three weeks. He connected on all six of his field-goal attempts, including the game-winner from 45 yards as time expired, in the 49ers' 25-23 victory over the Tennessee Titans on Sunday at Levi's Stadium.

On Dec. 3, Gould made five field goals in the 49ers' 15-14 victory over the Chicago Bears, his former team, to win the award for the first time this season.

Gould joins David Akers (2011) and Phil Dawson (2013) as the only 49ers to win Special Teams Player of the Week twice in one season.

On Tuesday, Gould was named as an alternate for the NFC Pro Bowl team behind Greg Zuerlein of the NFC West-leading Los Angeles Rams. Zuerlein is 38 of 40 on the season, including six of seven on field-goal attempts from 50 yards or more.

Gould is 36 of 38 on field-goal attempts this season, setting a career-high in made field goals. It is the second-highest mark in franchise history. Akers made 44 field goals in 2011.

Gould's list of accomplishments this season include:

--His six field goals Sunday were a career-high and tie the franchise record with Ray Wersching (Oct. 16, 1983, at New Orleans) and Jeff Wilkins (Sept. 29, 1996, vs. Atlanta).

--Gould has made 15 field goals over the past three games, the most over a three-game span in NFL history, according to the Elias Sports Bureau.

--He has made five or more field goals in three games this season. He joins Minnesota's Rich Karlis (1989) as the only players in NFL history to make five or more kicks in three different games in a single season.

--Gould has made 20 consecutive field-goal attempts, the second-longest streak in franchise history. In 2013, Dawson made 27 straight attempts. --He made a 50-yard field goal in the third quarter against Tennessee and is 4-for-4 on attempts of 50 yards or more this season. Gould's career accuracy is 77.1 percent on attempts of 50-plus yards. He ranks second all-time in NFL history behind Matt Prater (78.2).

'I get mad about those': How Robbie Gould's missed kicks help motivate him

By Matt Barrows
Sacramento Bee
December 18, 2017

Robbie Gould can conjure up every kick he's attempted this season.

His two game-winning field goals aren't the ones he thinks about the most. Instead, the 49ers' veteran kicker is motivated by his misses.

There aren't many. A 47-yard attempt in Washington in Week 6 drifted wide right in a game the 49ers lost 26-24. Two weeks later in Philadelphia, a 27-yard attempt was blocked. He also missed an extra point in San Francisco's two-point loss to the Rams in Week 3, a rare error that ended up haunting the team at the end of the game.

"I go back to those kicks because those are the kicks that fuel me every day," Gould said after Sunday's game. "I get mad about those. … I put the two losses we had against Washington, against Los Angeles on my back because I didn't get my job done."

Like a lot of veteran kickers, Gould, 35, uses that self criticism to stay sharp.

When the Chicago Bears abruptly released him at the start of the 2016 season after 11 years with the franchise, he decided to, in his words, "reinvent himself." He said certain aspects of his game had gotten sloppy as he passed the decade mark in the league and became the Bears' all-time leading scorer, and he spent his time away from the game perfecting his craft.

The New York Giants called him in October of last year, and Gould was ready. He made all 12 field-goal tries with New York. In fact, he didn't have a field-goal misfire until the 49ers' Oct. 15 game in Washington. He's on another roll now, having connected on 20 in a row, including a 45-yard game-winner as time expired Sunday for a 25-23 victory over the Tennessee Titans at Levi's Stadium.

"Robbie's playing as good as anyone I've ever had," 49ers coach Kyle Shanahan said. "Whenever he goes out there, I never think he's going to miss it. He's been automatic. I just hope he's not getting too fatigued. I wish I didn't have to use him so much."

Only the Los Angeles Rams' Greg Zuerlein has attempted more kicks this season (40) than Gould's 38, and the 49ers kicker is closing in fast. He was 5 for 5 on field goals against the Bears in Week 13, 4 for 4 a week later in the win over the Houston Texans and 6 for 6 against Tennessee, making him the first kicker in NFL history to kick 15 field goals in a three-game span.

That workload has only boosted his confidence.

As the 49ers (4-10) were beginning their comeback in the fourth quarter Sunday, a third-down sack of quarterback Jimmy Garoppolo turned a 40-yard attempt into a more daunting 50-yarder, threatening to upend the team's momentum. Gould was unfazed by the added distance. He sprang onto the field, did a practice swing with his right leg, then lined up like he always does before drilling his longest kick of the day.

Asked if he said anything to Gould before the kicker trotted out for the 45-yard game winner later that quarter, Garoppolo seemed astonished.

"Absolutely not," he said quickly. "He's in the zone. I know how that is. Just going out for the two-minute drill, we went and handled our business and he handled his. That's what a good team does."

"I usually talk to myself before I get ready to go kick those kicks," he said. "The kicks that I need to go up by one (point), or the kicks we need to extend it by 10 – I usually kind of get myself excited."

After the ball goes through the uprights, he's even more vocal. He directed a hard stare at the Bears' sideline after his game-winner in Chicago. On Sunday, he was mobbed by teammates before the ball even landed.

"My favorite part as a kicker making a kick like that is watching the other sideline go completely silent, to be honest with you," he said.

NFL Athletes, including Eli Harold, give back to the region's youth

By Romeo Styles

July 21, 2017

Day 1 of the VA's Up Next Camp brought out many local NFL stars to interact with and coach young men from the ages of 13 to 19. In the morning session, Kam Chancellor (Seattle Seahawks), Eli Harold (San Francisco 49ers), Lynden Trail (ex-Washington Redskins), Maurice Canady (Baltimore Ravens), Mike Wyche (Miami Hurricanes) and Michael Tyson (Seattle Seahawks) took the time to discuss real life with the young men in attendance. The advice was good and the advice was real, coming from guys who have made it big yet stay true to their roots.

All of the athletes were able to share their experiences.

As noon approached, the campers hit the field at William "Dick" Price Stadium on the campus of Norfolk State and the athletes (as well as several local high school coaches) put the kids through their paces. Each position group received valuable instruction and interaction with the pros.

"It's very important (to have a camp like this). Being able to see a guy like Kam, who's on the top 100 list every single year and been to two Super Bowls, and for the kids to see that just because guys have celebrity status, that doesn't mean you can't reach out and touch these guys and talk to these guys," said Eli Harold during a break at the event. "No matter what, we want to talk to you. We want to help you. (We will) exchange stories, exchange numbers, we will will do whatever we can to help these kids succeed."

Eli is certainly one of those role models. He's played two years in the NFL now and he's earned a role as a starting linebacker for the 49ers. To him, giving back is all a part of what a name athlete should do.

"Growing up without a father, I can let these kids know that just because you don't have a dad, or just because your mom passed away when you were 15, which happened to me… I could have easily turned to the streets but I chased my dream," Eli explained. "You can look up to me because I have your best interests in my heart. I want to see you succeed more than you do. I know how it feels to feel alone."

"Being a 15 or 16-year-old kid is real hard growing up in these days. Being a role model is sweet. I love it."

Carlos Hyde

49ers' Hyde speaking softly, responding to challenge

By Eric Branch
San Francisco Chronicle
July 31, 2017

Last week, when Carlos Hyde met the media after reporting to training camp, the 49ers running back sounded half-asleep, or deathly bored, or perhaps both.

By the accounts of a few high-ranking members of the organization, Hyde is attacking football, if not his media responsibilities, with great enthusiasm.

Hyde has declared he's the lightest (228 pounds) he's been since high school and said he believes "he's in the best shape of his life right now." This, of course, is direct from the training-camp book of cliches, but there's reason to believe Hyde is genuine.

The 2014 second-round pick is entering his contract year without a 1,000-yard season on his resume, and the 49ers' new regime has made it clear that an extension isn't imminent. Instead, Hyde, who has had zero competition in his first two seasons as a starter, will have to prove his worth to general manager John Lynch and head coach Kyle Shanahan.

Lynch and Shanahan have added competition via free agency (Tim Hightower), the draft (Joe Williams) and trade (Kapri Bibbs), and also added undrafted rookie Matt Breida.

The moves were preceded by comments that suggested the new regime didn't think Hyde was realizing his potential. At the combine, Lynch said he thought Hyde, who rushed for 988 yards and averaged 4.6 yards a carry last season, had "a lot more in him" and "we're excited to pull that out of him."

A few months later, Lynch seems to believe the 49ers have extracted some of the intangibles from Hyde that were previously lacking.

"What I saw was a guy who was challenged," Lynch said on KNBR. "We brought in competition at that position and, somewhere along the way this offseason, he flipped a switch. I think (running backs coach) Bobby Turner is a master at this. And all of a sudden, being in the best shape was really important to him.

"… The switch has been flipped for Carlos. You really see a different body type. We always hear, 'I'm in the best shape of my life,' but here's a guy who made a tangible and considerable change in his body makeup. But more so in his mentality."

During the 49ers' five-week break before training camp, Hyde stayed in the Bay Area and worked with conditioning coach Ray Wright. Part of his motivation could have been injury-related. Hyde has missed 14 of the 49ers' past 34 games due to injuries to his ankle, foot, shoulder and knee.

"He started making a move, just his work ethic and just his attention to detail, about halfway through (organized team activities), which we were really excited about. when we broke camp earlier on in the offseason," Shanahan said. "And then, coming back five weeks later and being able to see him, he's even taken it to another level."

During the offseason, Hyde went to Shanahan and asked why he wasn't part of a special-teams unit, which is grunt work not done by starting NFL running backs. Hyde noted that Hightower was on special teams.

"Kyle came up and said how cool is this: 'Carlos asked why he wasn't on some of the special teams like Tim was,'" Lynch said. "That's what we're talking about when we say we believe that competition brings out the best in everyone."

For his part, Hyde has downplayed the notion that added competition has inspired his approach.

"Just going into this season, I just wanted to do things differently," Hyde said. "Do something different that I haven't done. I've always played at 230 and above. I've had success playing at that weight before, but I just wanted to do something different. I just wanted this whole season to be different."

Hyde's training camp actually began on a similar note.

Last year, he arrived in Santa Clara and said he weighed between "225 and 230 pounds" and declared his goal was to rush for 1,500 yards. Last week, he also announced he was fit and prepared to accomplish some lofty goals.

"My goal is to be the No. 1 rushing running back in this league," Hyde said. "And I feel like I have the best opportunity to do that now with this new staff, so I'm definitely looking forward to that. That's my mind-set

D.J. Jones

49ers rookie D.J. Jones was raised on Cowboys and brisket

By Matt Barrows
Sacramento Bee
October 20, 2017

Big Dave Jones' story is one of persistence and barbecue sauce.

Jones had opened a restaurant, Li'l Red Barbecue Smokehouse, in Dallas in the early 1990s when it occurred to him the business really would take off if he somehow became affiliated with his favorite sports franchise, the Dallas Cowboys.

So one day he took a sample platter to team headquarters hoping a nibble would get him in the door. He was turned away, but kept showing up with an assortment of ribs, brisket and pulled pork as well as a bottle of his custom-made sauce.

On the 27th try, the security guard finally broke down and had a taste. It was Jones' ticket into the kingdom.

"So we go down some corridors and make a right and go through these double doors and there's Emmitt Smith, Michael Irvin, Troy Aikman, Larry Allen," he recalled. "My knees buckled."

That foray led to a long-running catering gig with the Cowboys that had Jones making deliveries during minicamps, cooking family dinners at Tony Tolbert's home, catering a birthday celebration for Nate Newton's son and essentially whipping up a batch of barbecue any time the triumphant, ever-partying Cowboys got together.

"If someone got a new hat, they had a party," Jones chuckled.

"A helicopter flew in one day and landed on the back field," he continued. "And the gentleman who jumped out had a Cowboys jersey. I think it had zero-zero on it. It was Supreme Court Justice Clarence Thomas and his wife. He's a huge Cowboys fan."

The relationship also gave his son, 49ers nose tackle D.J. Jones, an early glimpse into the NFL.

He'd be one of the boys running around and playing games at team picnics. He'd also accompany his dad to drop off food at team headquarters. Dave recalled one delivery in which they encountered Smith and safety Kenneth Gant in the hallway.

"And D.J. had his little Cowboys cap on," Dave said. "And I said, 'Son, here's your opportunity.' And nothing happens. I looked to my right and it was like my son had literally frozen. His mouth was open but nothing was coming out. I nudged him a little bit and he gave them his cap. Kenny Gant signed one side and Emmitt signed the other side of the cap."

On Sunday Jones will face the team his father once fueled with slaw and smoked turkey.

A sixth-round pick out of Mississippi in the spring, Jones has been backing up veteran Earl Mitchell and has averaged 17 snaps over the first six games. His playing time stands to increase this week with one 49ers defensive lineman, Arik Armstead, on injured reserve with a broken hand and another, Aaron Lynch, out with a calf strain.

D.J. said that when the final school bell rang, he'd head to his father's restaurant. By that time, the family had moved to Greenville, S.C., to be near D.J.'s ailing grandmother.

"I'd leave school and I'd go to the restaurant," he said. "And eat some fries. Put some (brisket) on top. I'd eat all that and see what else was there."

Big Dave notes that when he was in Texas, a group of powerlifters were regulars at his restaurant. Instead of protein shakes, the group would binge on brisket. "They'd go through two or three pounds of it," he said.

He wondered if it was coincidence that when D.J. transferred from East Mississippi Community College to Ole Miss in 2015, he immediately was one of the school's strongest players, bench pressing 440 pounds and squat-lifting 650 pounds.

"I'm not attributing brisket to his body form," Big Dave said. "But let's just say he ate a lot of brisket."

D.J. said he likes to dabble with barbecue and experimenting with sauces, but not to the extent of his father, whose cooking and catering business is built on his two sauces, Big Dave's Texas Red and Big Dave's All-American Hawaiian Bold Gold.

Ever the savvy operator, he said he's toying with the idea of putting his son's image on the bottle and stocking it on shelves on the West Coast.

"We definitely want to market the Bold Gold out there," he said.

Kyle Juszczyk

Free Agency, Football and a Fiancé: The Busy Offseason of Kyle Juszczyk

By Joe Fann
49ers.com
August 18, 2017

"OK, there's an 80 percent chance you're going to the Philadelphia Eagles, a 15 percent chance you're going to stay with the Baltimore Ravens and a five percent chance that a random team enters the equation," his agent explained to him.

This was the fullback's first encounter with NFL free agency. Juszczyk spent the first four years of his career in Baltimore and was coming off of his first Pro Bowl season in 2016. Now he readied himself for a move to Philly.

Then the focus shifted to the Buffalo Bills. A potential move back home to Cleveland also entered the picture as the Browns gained interest.

"It was a whirlwind of emotions," Juszczyk said. "Literally, every other day, it felt like I was going to be living in a different city."

The San Francisco 49ers got into the mix two days before the official start of free agency when NFL clubs are allowed to speak with agents. Admittedly, Juszczyk was wary at first with the 49ers coming off of a 2-14 season in 2016. That initial trepidation quickly subsided. Among the California sunshine and the quality of life in the Bay Area, Kyle Shanahan's offense became another selling point.

"My agent told me about how well I'd fit in Shanahan's scheme," Juszczyk said. "He could tell how serious John Lynch was about getting a deal done. That's when I knew San Francisco was the real deal."

San Francisco made Juszczyk the highest paid fullback in the NFL, and they introduced their new playmaker at a press conference that featured six other new additions. Brian Hoyer, Pierre Garçon and Marquise Goodwin were among those who joined Juszczyk in the Levi's® Stadium auditorium.

"This is a completely new team – more than half the roster is turned over, a new head coach, a new GM, everything," Juszczyk said. "It almost feels like we are the first class when there's a new head coach at a college and he brings in his recruits.

"We are kind of like those recruits who want to build something. If we do build something special, we will be remembered as that first class."

Juszczyk and his girlfriend Kristin had a trip already on the books to Anguilla shortly after he signed. They nearly cancelled due to the quick turnaround, but ultimately decided that a celebration was in order.

"You know what? Something great just happened in my life. Let's reward ourselves a little bit," Juszczyk recalled the deliberation.

Baltimore Ravens wide receiver Mike Campanaro and his girlfriend joined them on the trip. The week in paradise was spent with morning workouts on the beach and a quick lift followed by good food, rest and relaxation.

The sticker shock of Bay Area properties welcomed Juszczyk back to the States. The fullback told his realtor that he hoped to pay comparable prices to the place he rented in Baltimore. There were no such options.

"That was my first lesson in how expensive things were," Juszczyk said.

Then came the dilemma of whether to rent or buy. The volatile nature of the NFL makes renting the most logical option for a number of players. It makes it much easier to pack up and move to another city should that become necessary.

But Shanahan just got to San Francisco on a six-year deal. The coach's job security, in turn, is also Juszczyk's job security.

"You're going to be here as long as I'm here," Shanahan told the fullback. "Just buy the house."

And so Juszczyk bought a house. The endless paperwork and hassle of applying for a mortgage served a rude awakening to life as a homeowner. Mold turned a one-week project to install new hardwood floors into a three-month headache. The dishwasher needed fixing, they had to order a new garbage disposal and they ended up painting the entire first floor.

"Being an adult is tough, man. It's really tough," joked the 26-year-old fullback.

The offseason program went much smoother than Juszczyk's remodeling projects. The fullback lauded Shanahan for the player-friendly schedule. The coach built in breaks between meetings and made efficient use of allotted practice time. If Shanahan saw legs getting heavy towards the end of a session, he'd cut practice short in order to avoid injuries. The coach also cancelled the final practice of mandatory minicamp for similar reasons.

Instead, Shanahan took the opportunity to plan a family barbeque before players left for summer vacation. Shanahan has made it a point of emphasis for each player's family to be involved. He encouraged wives and girlfriends to get to know each other and make connections as well.

That leads us to Juszczyk's Memorial Day Weekend plans. He and Kristin went back East to her hometown of Long Island, N.Y. Kristen's parents hosted each of their families for the holiday weekend. A Saturday boat ride to Fire Island, a narrow strip of beaches beyond the coastline, provided the perfect backdrop for what Juszczyk had planned.

The families took a walk down the beach before deciding it was time to head back to the boat. Juszczyk slipped off his sandals just before turning around. As everyone reached the boat, the fullback informed his girlfriend that he'd accidentally forgotten them back at the beach. Juszczyk planted a photographer nearby who waited for the couple to return for the sandals. Meanwhile, their family members set up decorations and champagne to celebrate at the boat.

"I got down on one knee, gave my spiel and proposed," Juszczyk said. "I'd never felt my heart thump like that."

But Juszczyk had one more surprise up his sleeve. All of the couple's closest friends – an estimated 50-to-60 people in all – had gathered for an engagement bash back at the house.

"That's a lot of surprises for one day," Juszczyk said. "It wasn't until we got back to the house that I was able to kind of relax."

_____   _____

Following the offseason program, they went back abroad for a two-week European excursion. The engaged couple went to three different cities in Croatia (Split, Hvar and Dubrovnik) and four cities in Greece (Athens, Mykonos, Santorini and Paros).

A new city, a new home, a fiancé and several breathtaking trips in between – not a bad six months for Juszczyk. The fullback returned to the Bay Area two weeks before the start of training camp, and it was back to business.

"Once I got back here and saw some of the guys, that's when the switch flipped," Juszczyk said. "We are pumped to start building something."

Earl Mitchell

Earl Mitchell gives back to his native Houston

By Matt Barrows
Sacramento Bee
December 8, 2017

Earl Mitchell has a Christmas-time memory of Santa Claus arriving where he lived and taking pictures with him and the other kids.

There was no chimney or cozy fireplace involved. The meet-and-greet took place in the community room of a Salvation Army family housing center in downtown Houston where he and his sister lived from time to time when they were growing up.

"Just being raised by a single mother, you kind of end up in predicaments like that," Mitchell, the 49ers nose tackle, said this week as he prepares to play a game in his home city. "The Salvation Army is what we relied on."

It may have been an ordeal for his mother at the time, but Mitchell has no bad memories. Instead he feels gratitude to the Salvation Army, which is why he raised money for the organization after Hurricane Harvey struck the city in August and why he wore Salvation Army-themed cleats during Sunday's game in Chicago as part of the league's "My Cause, My Cleats" fundraising campaign.

 "I thought it was the least I could do – kind of like a 'thank you,' " Mitchell said. "It brought it full circle for me knowing that I was there, living there at one point and that now I'm in a totally different place. They embraced us. They treat you like family. I wanted to thank that organization for helping me in a time of need."

Philanthropy has been a major part of the Houston sports scene since the hurricane struck August 25. Earlier in the week, Texans defensive lineman J.J. Watt and Astros second baseman Jose Altuve were given Sports Illustrated's Sportsperson of the Year Award. Watt, who is one of the most popular players in the NFL, helped raise $37 million toward flood relief following the hurricane

The 49ers, meanwhile, have many other connections to Houston. Head coach Kyle Shanahan was an assistant there alongside defensive coordinator Robert Saleh and special-teams coordinator Richard Hightower a decade ago and Hightower is a Houston native.

Assistant coaches Jeff Zgonina and DeMeco Ryans played for the Texans. In total, seven of Shanahan's assistants either played for or coached on the Texans.

Et cetera – The 49ers nominated punter Bradley Pinion for the NFL's prestigious Walter Payton Man of the Year award, won two years ago by then-49ers receiver Anquan Boldin. Pinion has been a mainstay on the team's community-service events since he was drafted in 2015.

Earl Mitchell's Happenstance Career and the Superstars He's Learned from Along the Way

By Joe Fann
49ers.com
December 6, 2017

I It happened more than once. There'd be a young boy, eyes locked on the 300-pound defensive tackle. His father provided the encouragement to approach Earl Mitchell.

"Go ahead, ask him," the dad would say.

And so the kid, still somewhat hesitant, shyly walked over. Mitchell knew exactly what was coming, but he played along anyways, bending down to the kid's level.

"Do you play next to J.J. Watt?" the boy asked.

That was Mitchell's claim to fame – being blessed with the fortune of playing next to one of the NFL's most beloved megastars. But here's the thing, Mitchell sees it the exact same way. He never could have imagined his name in the same starting lineup as a player of Watt's caliber.

There certainly wasn't that expectation when he began playing football at age 15. Mitchell was a third-string fullback in high school, somehow received a scholarship from Arizona to play tight end, begrudgingly changed positions to defensive tackle, got drafted by Watt's Houston Texans in the third round and is now in his eighth NFL season. Mitchell signed with the San Francisco 49ers as a free agent this past offseason.

Being the teammate of "insert famous person's name here" (there are plenty more than Watt, as we'll get to) is something far beyond what Mitchell ever considered a possibility.

"It's the most amazing thing to me," Mitchell admitted that he remains surprised by his own story.

To say that Mitchell was indifferent to football would probably be underselling his initial lack of interest in the sport. Mitchell never watched football, and he didn't know the rules. The only player he knew was Earl Campbell, and that was only because they shared the same name.

When his grandmother passed away during his teenage years, Mitchell knew he needed something to keep him occupied. His high school basketball coach suggested he join the team, but Mitchell quickly took that option off the table.

"I hated basketball with a passion," he joked.

The coach suggested football next. Mitchell agreed, deciding it would make good use of his athletic 6-foot-1, 175-pound frame. To reiterate, this was merely intended to be an extra-curricular activity that passed the time, not a potential career path.

Mitchell was offered a choice between playing linebacker or tight end. He opted to play offense and chose the latter. Mitchell spent his freshman year on the "B team" at North Shore High School before being moved to junior varsity as a sophomore.

Quick backtrack: Mitchell, a Houston native, moved with his mother to a new area of the city prior to high school. Turns out, his new school was a football powerhouse. The school was split between one campus for ninth and 10th graders and a senior high campus for 11th and 12th graders.

"I was a little kid compared to all the upperclassmen," Mitchell said. "I never lifted. I was playing tight end and had no idea what I was doing."

game, but he got to suit up and stand on the sideline at Rice University all the same. He served as an H-back for his final two years at North Shore, splitting time between fullback and tight end. Seniors buried him on the depth chart as a junior, but once they graduated, Mitchell finally earned a starting job.

As his high school career neared its end, Mitchell had filled out and began attracting the attention of collegiate programs. Oklahoma State, Missouri, Utah and UTEP all had interest, but only if Mitchell was willing to make a move to defensive line. Only Arizona made an offer that would keep him on offense. He signed with the Wildcats in 2006 as an H-back and beat out Atlanta Falcons defensive lineman Brooks Reed to start as a freshman.

Mitchell, by his own standards, had a monster first year in Tucson. He posted nine receptions for 136 yards and a touchdown, which is funny because he never caught a pass in high school.

His playing time dwindled as a sophomore when Arizona signed a hotshot tight end by the name of Rob Gronkowski. For those who have followed Gronk's career with the New England Patriots, you can probably imagine what he was like in college. People were drawn to Gronk just as they are now. Mitchell explained that the tight end never got in trouble "because he was so damn funny and always had everyone laughing."

Arizona had a rule: If you drop a pass, it cost you 10 pushups. But if Gronk let one slip through his hands, the penalty was reduced to 7.5 pushups (which he'd do one-handed, because how else would Gronk serve such a punishment?). Sometimes Gronk would forget the play, and so he'd just run straight down field, waiving his arm in demand for the ball.

Gronk was the first of many notable teammates to make a lasting impact on Mitchell.

"He was like a 12 year old kid. He never took the game too seriously and always had fun. I admired that," Mitchell said.

They weren't best friends, but Mitchell explained that they had a great relationship. Any time they'd cross paths, Gronkowski always greeted Mitchell in the same half-mocking, totally bizarre fashion that only Gronk could somehow pull off as endearing.

"Hey, my name is Earl, and I'm so cool. I'm Mr. Cool guy," Mitchell said, trying to recreate Gronk's voice. He didn't do it well, but he didn't have to. Anyone who has ever seen Gronk in action knows how this would have sounded.

As Gronk ascended as one of the nation's top tight ends, Mitchell's time on offense came to a close. Arizona kicked two defensive linemen off the team and was desperate for talent to fill the void. The program didn't have any big recruits coming in, and so head coach Mike Stoops approached Mitchell about switching positions. The Wildcats strength coach followed up and assured Mitchell that he'd have a brighter future as a defensive tackle. Still, Mitchell was unsure. He took pride in playing offense.

He reluctantly made the move, and once again found himself having no idea what he was doing. Along with the position change came the task of gaining 30 pounds. Mind you, this transition came during spring ball, which didn't give Mitchell much time to transform his body. He resorted to crushing large pizzas and pounding protein shakes. Mitchell estimated that he consumed double digit shakes on a daily basis. Sure, it wasn't an ideal route to gaining weight if you're a health nut, but it got the job done, and Mitchell quickly found his stride on defense.

Mitchell recorded 88 total tackles, 18 tackles for loss and eight sacks over his final two seasons at Arizona. He helped the Wildcats finally break a decade-long bowl game drought as the program made appearances in the Las Vegas Bowl and Holiday Bowl in 2008 and 2009, respectively.

He left school with six classes left before graduation in order to train for the 2010 NFL Draft. Mitchell's 4.75-second 40-yard dash at the NFL Combine was tied for the best among his position group along with Cincinnati Bengals defensive tackle Geno Atkins. Still, he received a sixth-seventh round grade. That meant it was entirely possible he wouldn't hear his name called.

For that reason, Mitchell nixed all ideas pertaining to a draft party. He wanted to avoid the embarrassment of inviting over his friends only to see him go undrafted.

"I didn't want to be that guy," Mitchell said.

He was part of an especially deep group of defensive tackles in 2010. Mitchell created a long list of names prior to of the draft that he believed would get selected before him. That list dwindled quickly. Three defensive tackles went in the top 10: Ndamukong Suh (second overall), Gerald McCoy (third) and Tyson Alualu (10).

Seven more names were scratched off the list into the middle of the third round. It became clear that if a team was still in the market for a defensive tackle, Mitchell could very well be the next man up. His agent called and reported that a few teams had begun to inquire about him. As a result, Mitchell got on the phone to invite over select friends and family.

Mitchell's hometown Texans drafted him in the third round with the 81st-overall pick. He posted 27 total tackles and one sack as a rookie.

Watt came the next year as a first-round pick out of Wisconsin. While Watt was immediately inserted into the starting lineup, Mitchell had to fight simply to make the roster. He didn't receive his first start until his third season in 2012. But the two still connected as Watt became the next influential teammate of Mitchell's career. Coincidentally, Watt had a resemblance to Mitchell's Arizona comrade.

After Watt's rookie season, he went to the ESPY Awards in Los Angeles. Over and over, people mistook Watt for Gronkowski. As you can imagine, Watt wasn't thrilled.

"He was so upset about that, and I just thought that was so funny," Mitchell said.

But Watt would soon become an unmistakable face of the NFL. He went on to win the league's Defensive Player of the Year Award three times during a four-year span from 2012-15. And after each honor, Watt would make sure to properly share the awards with the rest of the team. Mitchell remembers getting everything from gifts like new iPad minis to heartfelt handwritten notes.

 Random (but hysterical) aside: Mitchell, a diehard (and I mean diehard) fan of the WWE, shared that his dream Pay-Per-View main event would feature Gronk as "the bad guy" and Watt as "Mr. America".

If Gronk served as a reminder that football should be fun, it was Watt who illustrated the importance of being a servant to your brothers in the locker room.

"He's the most genuine teammate I've ever had," Mitchell said.

After four years in Houston, Mitchell signed as a free agent with the Miami Dolphins in 2014. By 2015, he was playing on a defensive line that featured a pair of five-time Pro Bowlers in Cameron Wake and Suh.

Mitchell continued to learn from those two, both personally and professionally. He connected immediately with Wake, who was one of the few players he'd come across with a more unconventional route to the NFL. Wake went undrafted out of Penn State in 2005 and had to dominate the Canadian Football League for two years (2007-08) before being given a chance in the NFL. That resonated with Mitchell.

So, too, did Suh's old school style of play that consisted of physical dominance in the trenches and a comprehensive knowledge of the game.

Random (but important) aside: Mitchell finished his coursework in 2015 and earned a degree in behavioral science, becoming the first member of his family to graduate from college. He even returned to Arizona's campus to walk in a commencement ceremony.

Mitchell's time in Miami came to a close in 2016 after three seasons with the Dolphins. Two calf injuries plagued his season and Miami cut the defensive tackle in January. Mitchell didn't have much time to dwell on the disappointment as potential suitors lined up immediately.

"The difference between the teams you're looking at and us is that those teams don't need you as bad as we do," Shanahan told Mitchell.

A bevy of familiar faces in San Francisco didn't hurt either. Former Texans teammate DeMeco Ryans joined the 49ers coaching staff this offseason. Mitchell's former assistant defensive line coach Jeff Zgonina was now his new position coach. Linebackers coach Johnny Holland and equipment manager Jay Brunetti were among others whom Mitchell reunited with in San Francisco.

It didn't take long for Mitchell to realize he was now the eldest statesman in an overwhelmingly young 49ers locker room. Most of the defensive line had fewer than three years of NFL experience, including a trio of former first-round picks: Arik Armstead, DeForest Buckner and Solomon Thomas.

Even amid a difficult 2-10 season thus far, Mitchell confirmed that he has no regrets about signing with the 49ers. Mentoring the young talent on the roster has been the highlight of Mitchell's year. Mitchell thrives in that role with the vast bank of knowledge he's gleaned from his former teammates.

He didn't mince words when discussing Buckner's potential. After playing with the likes of several future Hall of Famers, Mitchell is more than qualified to evaluate talented defensive linemen

"Watching Buck play is crazy," Mitchell said. "I'll watch him from the sideline and think, 'This is only Year 2?' It's so cool to watch him play so well. I've played with some really good players, and I think he can be just as good, if not better. I want him to know that, too."

That isn't to suggest that Mitchell's career has been reduced to a mentorship role. He's started all 12 games for the 49ers in 2017 and is a staple on early downs. Mitchell has 26 tackles, a sack, four passes defended and a fumble recovery this season.

But it is to say that Mitchell is just fine with being known as the guy who was lucky enough to play with NFL greats like Gronkowski, Watt, Wake, Suh and, eventually, Buckner. Because quite frankly, that's exactly how he'll look back at his own career when it's all said and done.

"It's so cool to know that I played next to all those guys and got to know them," Mitchell said. "They're dynamic players of this generation."

Mitchell, now 30 years old, doesn't have a timeline for how long he wants to play, but he knows that he's still nowhere near the end of the road. Football has given him far more than he ever could have asked for or expected, so why try to put a limit on his career now?

"I'm a 'till the wheels fall off' type guy," Mitchell said. "As long as I can play and am having fun, that's all that matters to me."

Bradley Pinion

By Henry Hutton
Independent Tribune
May 15, 2017

In 2015, former Northwest Cabarrus punter/kicker Bradley Pinion made the difficult decision to forgo his senior year at Clemson to enter the NFL Draft.

That year, Pinion was taken 165th overall by the San Francisco 49ers and was the only specialist selected in the entire draft.

The adjustment from life in the Carolinas to the West Coast was a big one for Pinion, but the Concord native seems to have gotten comfortable in California.

"California is really cool. It's a much different pace of life than it is in Concord, North Carolina," said Pinion. "That was a big adjustment getting used to the faster pace of life and the traffic and everything along those lines of living in the city.

"But it's really cool being in Silicon Valley. It's really neat seeing all the tech industries and to meet different people and see a whole different side of how they see the world."

But it hasn't been all fun in the sun for the 22-year-old Pinion. As he prepares for his third NFL season, he has worked year-round at his craft, whether he's back home in Concord or at the 49ers' practice facility.

From a football perspective, life in the pros has been very different for Pinion, who said that his football IQ has increased greatly since he began with the 49ers.

"That's the biggest difference," he said. "You're always working on your technique and form and everything along those lines, but just understanding the game of football as a whole is something I've relly gotten better at."

Soaking it all in

No player in the NFL punted the ball more than Pinion in 2016, as the 6-foot-5, 229-pounder booted exactly 100 balls, making him the only punter to hit triple digits.

Pinion averaged a solid 44 yards per punt last season, and he said his numbers have improved as his consistency has. And his consistency has risen, thanks to some of the players around him.

"Any job, as you get more used to it and get more mature, you're able to handle your emotions better," Pinion explained. "I've had a really good mentor who's been here for the last two years in Phil Dawson."

Dawson, who came into the league when Pinion was just 5 years old, is going on his 19th season as an NFL kicker and has a wealth of experience and knowledge he's passed off to his younger teammate.

Dawson departed for Arizona this offseason, though, but in his absence, the 49ers added 12-year veteran kicker Robbie Gould, who'll be another strong figure in Pinion's continued development.

Along with the veterans who have been his teammates, Pinion has also gotten the chance to play against some of his childhood idols.

"With me being a specialist, I always paid attention to kickers and punters growing up," Pinion explained. "One of the guys I always looked up to was (New Orleans Saints punter) Thomas Morstead. I have a similar body style to him, so I've always tried to emulate his style and a few things that he does.""

Last November, Pinion had the opportunity to meet his role model when the Saints traveled to San Francisco for a mid-year matchup.

Said Pinion, "Being able to talk to him last year before the game and kind of after the game and pick his brain and things along those lines was really cool to do."

One of the best lessons he has learned is simply to take care of what he can control, and the coaching situation in San Francisco has helped reinforce this message.

Pinion has played his first two NFL seasons under two different head coaches. Jim Tomsula, a Catawba College alum, who was replaced a year later by Chip Kelly. Kelly's stint also only lasted one year, with the 49ers hiring former Atlanta Falcons' offensive coordinator Kyle Shanahan in February.

But Pinion hasn't let this affect him.

"Every year coming in, there's one common goal, and that's to win it all," Pinion said. "Every year you have the same goal, no matter who the coach is and no matter what players are here."

Becoming a pro

To many people in this area, Pinion's status as an NFL player isn't a major surprise.

From the first day Pinion set foot on Northwest Cabarrus' campus, then-coach Rich Williams realized his incredible potential.

"I would watch him kick down on the practice field in summer, and I thought, 'Wow, this kid is pretty impressive," said Williams , now the defensive coordinator at Jay M. Robinson. "I knew he'd be a really special player."

But Pinion quickly separated himself as not only a great player but a great teammate as well.

"A lot of times, kickers and punters kind of do their own thing in high school," Williams explained. "But Bradley was at every workout. He did all the agility drills and all the practice stuff that every other kid did."

Pinion's success at Clemson and now with San Francisco does not really surprise Williams, who said he still follows his only NFL player's career very closely.

"It's exciting to watch him. I think any coach would take pride in watching their players play on Sundays," Williams said, explaining that Pinion has made him a San Francisco 49ers fan.

But as proud as Williams may be of him, Pinion's biggest supporters will always be his first coaches: his parents.

Throughout their son's football career, Robert Pinion and Lori Pinion rarely have missed a game, and in his father's case, a practice.

"It's been a dream come true for him, and it's also been a dream come true for us," Robert said. "We've really been able to really enjoy the ride with him."

Robert was always involved in Bradley's training and said that he often gave his son advice during games on how to correct his mistakes, as rare as they may have been.

"From the time he was in high school all the way through Clemson, I missed one game, home or away," Robert said, explaining that the only game that he and Lori didn't attend was when Clemson traveled to Syracuse in 2013 and their flight was cancelled at the last minute.

After Bradley was drafted by the 49ers, Robert was able to make it to his first regular-season game in San Francisco against the Minnesota Vikings. However, he's had to resort to watching his son on TV for most of his games.

"It was exciting but heartbreaking at the same time not to be there to watch him in person," Robert explained.

Said Lori, "My hardest adjustment has been not being able to watch him play. I went to every single middle school, high school and college game."

That doesn't mean that Pinion's parents don't still play a significant role in his development.

"He calls me after every game," Robert said. "There's a lot of weeks where he'll e-mail me game footage, and then we'll talk about it."

Sweet Home Carolina

Since leaving the Carolinas in 2015, Pinion has travelled far and wide and experienced a vast variety of things, but he has always stayed true to his roots.

Northwest Cabarrus fans can follow his career from the luxury of their couches on Sundays in fall, but Concord natives still have the chance of running into him around the town he loves.

While simply playing in the NFL may be a dream come true for Pinion, his profession has allowed him to realize another dream this past season when the 49ers visited the Carolina Panthers and he got to play in Bank of America Stadium.

"I grew up going to a bunch of the Panthers games, so it was very special when we got to play there," Pinion explained. "It was one of those situations you dream about as a kid."

Not only was the ability to finally play a game in Bank of America Stadium a special moment, but it was a memorable day because Pinion was able to play in front of his family and friends.

"I had over 50 people there," he said. "It was a surreal moment, and I ended up having a pretty good game, which made it even better.

"Just the fact that I was able to perform well in front of my family, and my fiancé (fellow Clemson alumnus Kaeleigh Reece) and all these different people made it a very special day."

Robert agreed.

"It actually brought back a lot of memories," said Robert, who recalled a time when Bradley was 12 and won the NFL's Punt, Pass & Kick competition in the Uptown Charlotte stadium.

"To see him on the same field 10 years later as an NFL player was just almost mindboggling to see the progress and the success that he's achieved over the years," Robert explained.

Lori echoed those sentiments.

"That was awesome, it really was," she said. "It was definitely a highlight being able to see him there."

Although that was Pinion's first time returning to North Carolina for an NFL game, the Northwest Cabarrus product spends much of his offseason here and even recently visited his alma mater to speak with the players.

"I just wanted to talk to them about working hard and just doing the best they can," Pinion said. "With a new coach (Brandon Gentry) and new players coming in, it's always good to see those guys working and get back to where I came from.

"Any time that a player came back like that when I went (to Northwest), it was a very special moment for me."

Gentry, who completed his first season with the Trojans last falls, said Pinion's presence was of great value to the current members of the team.

"I think it solidifies all the things you try to teach kids," Gentry said. "When you see someone who's reached the top of their profession preaching the same thing you're preaching, it's a valuable lesson that gets across to the kids.

"At the very next workout, we had the most kids we've ever had," Gentry said.

Pinion said giving his time to the players is extremely important to him.

"I just want to be an avenue where they can reach out," Pinion said. "I always welcome them reaching out to me at any time.

"The head coach at Northwest has my phone number, and any time (the players) want to reach out and talk to me, whether it be girlfriend problems or football problems, I'm definitely there for them," Pinion added.

But Pinion's desire to help the youth in this area extends well beyond the Trojan football field and locker room.

"I want to help as many kids as I can, that's really a passion of mine," he said. "I love giving back to the community and especially giving back to Concord and to the area that I came from."

Pinion also has helped lots of other area players, as he works out with Dan Orner at his special teams academy in Charlotte.

"I'm there once a week with him training, working on my craft as well as trying to reach out to the younger generation and make them better," Pinion said.

Still a Tiger

After Clemson won the college football national championship this January, senior captain Ben Boulware gave an emotional speech and thanked many of the players who had built the Tiger program up in recent years.

Although Pinion's may not have been one of the specific names Boulware mentioned, his time at Clemson helped set up a great program that has accomplished many things in the past few seasons.

In 2012 and 2013, during Pinion's freshman and sophomore campaigns at Clemson, he averaged just under 40 yards per punt but improved greatly to almost 43 yards during his junior and final season at Clemson.

This noticeable improvement played a big role in the rise of his draft stock and, ultimately, why he decided it was in his best interest to skip his senior year with the Tigers.

Despite his early departure, Clemson coach Dabo Swinney still speaks highly of Pinion and his impact on the program.

"We are certainly proud of what Bradley has accomplished," Swinney said. "But it is not a surprise -- he had a very strong leg from the time he got here. He was always effective as a punter and on kickoffs, and that ability to do both at the NFL level is important."

Although he now plays 2,600 miles away, Pinion still feels very much a part of the championship program.

"It's really cool to see my alma mater do really well and win a national championship," Pinion explained. "To just be a part of that and see the atmosphere that Coach Swinney has created has been something else.

"To know that I may not have affected it directly, the national championship, but to know I was a part of it in the past few years like Ben Boulware said," explained Pinion. "We started it six years ago when I got there, so it's really cool to see what Clemson's doing."

While his current work schedule may conflict with most of his Tigers' games, Pinion was able to make it to one big game this year.

"I was down at the national championship game (in Tampa, Florida), and it was probably one of the best moments of my life just seeing those guys and seeing the excitement they had on the field," Pinion said.

Pinion has also remained active with the program and returns to Clemson in the offseason to train and help the Tigers' specialists.

Because he left for the draft early, Pinion had just his diploma from Northwest Cabarrus as he moved to the West Coast. But that did not last long as he completed his course shortly after leaving Clemson so that he could get his degree.

"I am proud of Bradley in that he went to the NFL after his junior year but has already come back and gotten his degree," Swinney praised.

The decision to leave Clemson for the pros was not an easy one, but was also not one that he has ever regretted.

"I made the decision myself to come into the NFL, and that was a dream of mine," said Pinion. "I'm extremely blessed, and I'm extremely happy.

Pinion is now halfway through the four-year, $2.5 million dollar rookie contract he signed with San Francisco in 2015.

"I wouldn't change anything that I've done," Pinion added. "I've learned from my mistakes, and I've learned from the things that I've done well.

Joe Staley

By Grant Cohn

The day after the 49ers announced Staley was a finalist for the NFL's Art Rooney Sportsmanship Award, to be announced Feb. 3, Staley met with reporters in the locker room to discuss the honor of the nomination and his good sportsmanship.

Reporters were looking for a serious story, a humorous anecdote, any example they could use in their articles of Staley being a good sport and a swell guy.

"Didn't you try to break up a fight a few years ago when you guys were in Tennessee playing the Titans?" a reporter asked.

"No, I started it," Staley said with a sly grin. "Yeah, what a good sport. Great sport. Just making sure everybody's energy levels were up during the game. Felt like there was a lull. Fans weren't getting a show. So yeah, started a fight. Forgot about that. Bernard Pollard. That was when Jim Harbaugh jumped in the middle of it."

That was 2013. Staley was 29. Still developing his sportsmanship.

In 2014, the NFL created the Art Rooney Award, which annually honors the "player who best demonstrates the qualities of on-field sportsmanship, including fair play, respect for the game and opponents, and integrity in competition." The award was named for the late founder of the Pittsburgh Steelers, a man who spent much of his youth as a brawling amateur boxer and later purchased his football franchise with winnings from a racetrack.

Staley has been one of eight finalists for this award each of the past three seasons.

What would it mean to him to win the award?

"It's nice to be recognized," Staley said. "It's about playing the game the right way. People recognize that, just being professional and carrying yourself the right way on and off the field.

"I know it's entertainment for fans and everybody, but it's also a job for us. I approach it every single day as a professional. You're supposed to live up to a certain standard, whether that be Wednesday in the meeting rooms and on the practice field or on game day. There's a certain way to play the game. I don't know if it's something I consciously try to do, but I always try to put my head down and do the right thing."

How did Staley learn these values?

"Definitely started at home," Staley said. "And then, I had a great high school football coach — Ralph Munger. He was pretty instrumental in terms of teaching me work ethic. Because I was really crappy when I started playing football.

"I started when I was 9, and I was always crappy. I was third string all the way until I was a junior in high school. But I loved playing football. Coach Munger ingrained that work ethic in me, that if I wanted to be good at something, I have to work for it. That stayed with me throughout my whole career."

Munger coached Staley at Rockford High School in Rockford, Michigan, back when Staley allegedly was a "crappy" player. Munger laughed at that.

"Joe was very good," Munger said on the phone. "He was blessed with size and speed. And he's got all those personal traits that you appreciate, because he was always a team guy, always unselfish.

"For us, he played tight end, but we also split him out. He could play wide receiver. He could do a lot of different things. You could see that his best years were yet to come.

"He was a fun-loving young man. Very inwardly competitive. Well respected by his peers and by our faculty. Joe is special. High integrity. Great character. Has a great smile. I think his father and him could do a comedy act anywhere, any place for anyone and be well received. Joe is just a guy who's full of life. A fun guy to be around. And yet at the same time, he's an intense competitor, a talented athlete that takes his role extremely seriously."

Munger and Staley still text each other. And when Staley visits home, he goes to Rockford High School to use the weight room and jog around the track.

"The thing I'm most proud of is he's still the same guy," Munger said. "He has never, ever forgotten his roots. He hasn't been spoiled by his status. He continues to represent himself and his family in an extremely positive manner."

Sunday, Staley faced the Jacksonville Jaguars, whose head coach, Doug Marrone, is a former offensive lineman and offensive line coach. Marrone doesn't know Staley personally but observes him professionally.

"He plays with great tenacity, great grit," Marrone said of Staley. "To be able to go out there for as long as he has and play at the level that he's been playing and the consistency in his performance is something that all young players should look up to."

Staley, the role model, said he occasionally encounters bad behavior from opponents during games.

"I've been cursed at a lot," Staley said. "And I've cursed back. I'm competitive. I'm not Mr. Choirboy out there.

"I used to talk more when I was younger. I don't really talk much anymore. And if I do talk to an opponent, I'm usually like, 'Man that was a good move!' That's my little anecdote of being a good sport."

Does Staley congratulate opponents if they beat him?

"Yeah," Staley said. "I had a really rough game in Chicago two years ago against Willie Young. He beat me for one and a half sacks. I sought him out after the game and told him, 'Hey man, great game. I didn't know what to do against you.' Because some days you're not going to have a good game. That's part of respecting the game. You're not just going to be on top of it every single time."

Staley's lowest moment may have come in 2014. The 49ers had just lost in the NFC championship game to the Seattle Seahawks, and Staley was angry. Former Press Democrat sports columnist Lowell Cohn asked Staley a series of questions at his locker and Staley gave terse answers. He wasn't rude, but he wasn't his typical expansive, helpful, fun-loving self.

"I remember that," Staley said.

"Why did you do that?" a reporter asked.

"In the moment, I was upset and had a lot of emotions going," Staley said. "He didn't deserve cruel treatment."

"Lowell didn't think you did anything wrong," the reporter said.

"I did," Staley said.

Jaquiski Tartt brings football, life lessons to Ladd-Peebles Stadium

By Mark Inabinett

July 9, 2017

When the Jaquiski Tartt Next Level Football Camp started at Ladd-Peebles Stadium in Mobile on Saturday, a thunderstorm could be seen in the sky to the south. But the storm blew away from the football field, and the San Francisco 49ers safety's second annual free camp went on.

"I love Mobile, but the weather in San Fran is a whole lot different," Tartt said. "When I first got here, I was looking at the weather it seemed like every hour to make sure the chance of precipitation was going down, and it actually was, and today it turned out pretty good."

While Tartt provided the means for the football camp, Jeremy Towns provided the passion. Tartt and Towns were teammates at Samford. Towns is now in medical school at South Alabama after spending time as a defensive tackle with the Washington Redskins and Buffalo Bills of the NFL.

The threatening weather provided one of the messages that Towns delivered during the camp. He told the youngsters as the event opened that they might get in only 45 minutes of camp because of the storm, but that was a lot like life. You might not get as much time as you'd like or you might only get one chance. Because of that, you have to bring high energy to everything you do all the time.

Tartt said he hoped the youngsters got more out of his camp than football.

"I want to encourage them about God and having faith and being disciplined, able to listen and being responsible," Tartt said.

Tartt is on his summer break between the end of the 49ers' offseason program and the beginning of training camp. Tartt is scheduled to report for his third training camp with San Francisco on July 27.

"It's great to give back to the kids," Tartt said about spending part of his vacation sweating with kids back home. "I know when I was little there wasn't too many NFL football camps going around, and I just thought that would be a great idea to have a football camp."

In addition to Towns, Tartt had Tennessee Titans fullback Jalston Fowler and Oakland Raiders defensive end Chris Casher among those on the coaching staff for the camp.

Trent Taylor

Eric Branch
San Francisco Chronicle
December 8, 2017

Trent Taylor, who stands 5-foot-8 and weighs 181 pounds, has recently been mentioned in the same breath as two giants: Michael Jordan and Randy Moss.

OK, no one is suggesting the 49ers' diminutive rookie wide receiver has reached such heights, but his performance in a 15-14 win over the Bears on Sunday raised his stature during what had been a quiet debut season.

Taylor, a fifth-round pick, had career bests in catches (six) and yards (92) while playing with a stomach illness so severe that he was still nursing chicken noodle soup at his locker Wednesday. Head coach Kyle Shanahan was among those to invoke Jordan's off-his-sickbed 38-point performance in the 1997 NBA Finals on Taylor's big day.

"The coaches were already mentioning that before the game," Taylor said. "It was the kind of the standard for me to have a good game at that point. They already put the pressure on me."

Meanwhile, Taylor has quickly earned the respect of quarterback Jimmy Garoppolo, who declined this week to compare him to his former teammates, Patriots wideouts Julian Edelman and Danny Amendola. The comparison isn't new: Taylor, Edelman and Amendola are all white, height-challenged, shifty slot receivers.

Garoppolo, who completed every pass he threw to Taylor, including a 33-yarder on the winning drive, seems to want Taylor to carve out his own niche: "He's more like a Randy Moss," Garoppolo cracked. "No, he's a really good player, though."

Taylor, who was sporting puffy eyes and a nasally voice this week, brightened when he heard the comparison.

"Yeah, he's probably right," Taylor said, smiling. "Me and Randy Moss have got a lot in common. He's the guy I try to (emulate) the most, for sure."

Shanahan never evoked Moss — a former Raider and 49er who ranks third in NFL history in career receiving yards — but he acknowledged in the offseason that Taylor was his favorite player in the draft after he led the nation in receiving yards (1,803) last year at Louisiana Tech.

Taylor had shown flashes of what attracted Shanahan, but he had just 26 catches for 239 yards entering Sunday's game.

"He's a master of his craft," fullback Kyle Juszczyk said of Taylor. "He does a great job of running his routes in the slot."

Taylor does a particularly good job at running slants: 49ers quarterbacks are 13-for-13 for 160 yards and have a 143.6 passer rating when targeting Taylor on those routes this season, according to Pro Football Focus.

Taylor ran a deep slant on his career-long, 33-yard catch on 3rd-and-9 that set the stage for Robbie Gould's 24-yard field goal with four seconds left in Chicago. It capped a day in which he was connected to another legendary name — his 92 yards were the most by a 49ers rookie since Terrell Owens in 1996 — despite feeling like he didn't want to move.

"When I was on the sideline, I was just trying to stay still," Taylor said. "Take deep breaths. Just try to be as calm as possible and not let my stomach start to turn. I just had to sit there and calm down. Make sure I got my breath back. Get ready for the next play."

After gutting out four quarters, Taylor faced another significant challenge shortly after the game: turbulence.

"That was probably one of the longest plane rides of my life," Taylor said. "But we survived. We made it through. … It was all worth it."

Joe Fann

December 6, 2017

Trent Taylor heeded a quick warning before meeting with reporters on Wednesday.

"I'm still kind of sick so y'all might want to watch out," Taylor said through an apparent stuffy nose.

He was sort of kidding but still mostly serious.

The San Francisco 49ers starting slot receiver had just polished off a bowl of chicken noodle soup at his locker. Taylor's diet remains fairly rudimentary as he's just three days removed from a crippling stomach bug. Despite the illness, Taylor went on to post six receptions for 92 yards in Sunday's win against the Chicago Bears. It was easily the rookie's best performance in 2017.

Taylor went to bed on Saturday night feeling fine before things took a grotesque turn for the worst. He woke up around 1:30 a.m. and started puking. Taylor fell back asleep before Wave 2 had him sprinting for the bathroom again at 4:00 a.m. He then spent several sleepless hours staring at the ceiling, wondering how he was going to make it through the 49ers road game at Soldier Field.

"Regardless of what was happening, I was definitely going to give it a shot," Taylor said. "I knew I was going to be able to play. I wanted to win that game, and I wanted to be out there with my teammates. I wasn't going to let that hold me back."

That was easier said than done.

San Francisco's medical staff infused Taylor with three IV bags, containing a mixture of various vitamins and sugars. That helped marginally, but there was no denying the reality: Trent Taylor had the flu.

A few coaches made a quick cross-sport connection to give their ailing wideout some encouragement. One of Michael Jordan's fabled performances came when "MJ" was severely under the weather. To set the scene, the Chicago Bulls were playing in the 1997 NBA Finals against the Utah Jazz. The series was tied 2-2, and Jordan caught some sort of virus before Game 5. And yet, Jordan propelled the Bulls to a win in a 38-point heroic effort.

Sure, Week 13 of an NFL season for a 1-10 football team doesn't quite match the stakes of an NBA Finals, but those details were irrelevant. This was still Taylor's chance to have his own "flu game".

"The coaches were mentioning (Jordan) before the game," Taylor said. "It was the standard for me to have a good game at that point."

No pressure, right?

Taylor delivered in a big way. His six receptions and 92 yards were both career-highs. Until Sunday, the rookie hadn't even reached 50 yards in a game this season. What's more impressive is that Taylor caught all six of his targets, five of which coming on crucial third downs.

Adrenaline got him through each play, but Taylor still battled exhaustion and full-body fatigue on his way back to the huddle. In between series, he'd find a spot on the sideline and desperately try to find his Zen.

"I was just trying to stay still and take deep breaths," Taylor said. "I tried to stay as calm as possible and not let my stomach start to turn. It was all about getting my breath back and preparing for the next series.

"When the next snap came, it was full-go again."

Taylor's marquee moment came on 3rd-and-8 in the final minutes of the fourth quarter. Taylor, who thrives in 1-on-1 matchups, beat his man on a deep in-cut and was hit in stride by Jimmy Garoppolo. The 33-yard catch-and-run moved the 49ers offense into field goal range and ultimately set up Robbie Gould's game-winner.

Unfortunately, there would be no solace for Taylor on the plane ride home. He described the flight as "the longest of his life" as he was unable to find a wink of sleep. The good news is that the stomach bug has passed, but the bad news is that it's evolved into a gnarly head cold.

Even so, the dramatic 15-14 win marked San Francisco's second win of the season and provided Taylor with a story he'll get to share with his future grandkids.

For one afternoon, in Jordan's city no less, the 5-foot-8, 181-pound rookie got to be "Like Mike".

"It was all worth it," Taylor said.

49ers' Trent Taylor makes big impact as receiver

How do little guys survive and flourish in a giants' league?

Meet Trent Taylor. At 5 feet 7 inches, he's the 49ers' shortest player. He's not a starter on the offense, but he plays a crucial role — slot receiver. On third downs, he's the little guy who lines up in the middle of the field between the outside receiver and the offensive line, and he's the guy who often makes the crucial catch. Through four games, he has caught 11 passes — more than every other player on the 49ers except Pierre Garcon.

The Niners drafted Taylor in the fifth round this year. He was the 26th of 32 wide receivers taken. Out of all those rookie receivers in the NFL, he currently ranks second in catches. The only rookie receiver who has caught more passes than Taylor is another slot specialist — Cooper Kupp of the Los Angeles Rams.

Taylor is part of a growing NFL trend — the small slot receiver. Bill Walsh didn't use one in the '70s and '80s, but Bill Belichick has used small slot receivers for more than a decade — from Wes Welker (5 feet 8 inches) to Julian Edelman (5-10) to Danny Amendola (5-10). The Patriots are at the forefront of popularizing this trend.

"I can't sit here and act like I don't fall into that category," Taylor said at 49ers headquarter the other day. "We have the same body types and we're white. That's a big way to compare us all. It's easy to put us in the same category. But we're all definitely our own person. We all have our own different strengths and skills."

What are Taylor's strengths and skills?

"Quickness, route-running, having an understanding of defenses and how to read them," he said. "That's what gives me the edge over a lot of other guys.

"For the most part, I'm used as a possession receiver, short-yardage stuff, finding the open holes in the defense. The NFL has become more of a passing game lately. To be able to get short yardage in the passing game, you've got to have a guy that's quick and understands the defense and just has that feel for the game. I think that's what this game has grown into. On third down, you have a guy that's reliable over the middle instead of just having the same concepts on the outside."

Being little is an advantage for Taylor. If he were taller and higher-cut with longer limbs, it's possible he wouldn't be quick enough to get open and squeeze through defenders to pick up extra yards after a catch.

"Guys in the slot, you need a certain type of quickness to separate," said 49ers head coach Kyle Shanahan. "When you get into the red zone, when guys aren't defending the go-route, they can squat on you. They don't have to back up. When that's the case, you've got to be able to break people off and double people up and have kind of more like point-guard basketball movements.

"You need your feet under you. Scientifically, it's easier if you're a smaller guy. You're quicker. Same with running backs. Same with point guards. Just that type of movement – quicker, shifty guys tend to be that way."

But small slot receivers must be more than quick. They must be tough and fearless, too. Or else they wouldn't get up after taking a hit from someone twice their size.

What makes Taylor get up? "Just to prove that I can hang," he said. "Those hits don't mean anything to me. Taking shots like that, that's just part of the game. That's what comes with it, and I love football."

Taylor doesn't only take hits — he gives them. Last Sunday against the Arizona Cardinals, Taylor caught a pass near the sideline and, instead of running out of bounds, turned up field and ran over defensive back Tyrann Mathieu. "I wanted to let him know that I was going to be here, that I'm not going to shy away from anything. So, first chance I got to stick it to him, I went for it.

"I take pride in being a competitor. That's kind of how I've always played the game. That's something that my dad always instilled into me – being the fiercest competitor out there."

While Taylor certainly is fierce, he says he still feels fear. "Yeah, for sure. The fear of getting hit. The fear of failure. Those kind of fears are what makes me work harder.

"I've had a bunch of people come up to me like, 'Man, I don't know how you're doing it out there.' Everybody is shocked that I'm here. But this is what I've worked for, so I don't understand why I wouldn't be here. I don't see football as a giant's game. It's a game I like to play."

One step ahead: Quickness isn't 49ers receiver Trent Taylor's only gift

The forehand shot was so well-struck and their opponents so far out of position that the doubles partners relaxed, turned around and started to walk back to their respective spots on the court.

Trent Taylor, however, hadn't conceded the point.

"All of a sudden the ball comes back over the net because Trent somehow, as quick as he was, got over there, barely got his racquet out and knocked the ball back over," his high school doubles partner, Dakota Duron, recalled. "It kind of just dribbled past them and they were just in shock. They turned around and were like, 'Did he just hit that ball back over?' "

That duo succumbed to Taylor and Duron during the state tournament in Louisiana in 2013. So did just about everyone else. Taylor and Duron were the state runners up that year, a remarkable feat considering they hadn't had any formal tennis training until they decided to team up that spring as their senior years drew to a close.

Instead the two had earned a reputation on the gridiron. Taylor was a wide receiver. Duron was his quarterback and had been since the seventh grade.

They approached tennis like football players. They blitzed the net after every serve and then relied on their quickness to get to any shots their opponents lofted over them. Their unorthodox style took the tournament by storm.

"I think we p----- a lot of tennis guys off because we changed their game," Duron said. "We didn't let them use their forehand and backhand. We were getting up on 'em and putting pressure on 'em."

Said Taylor: "We were a lot more athletic than a lot of the tennis guys were. They weren't used to a couple of scrappy guys running around the court. I think it threw most people off."

Taylor's brief but productive doubles experience highlighted all the traits that make him an NFL receiver: quickness, tenacity, smarts – and that he's a wiz when it comes to chemistry.

At Louisiana Tech, Taylor had a revolving door of passers starting with Ryan Higgins in 2013, Cody Sokol in 2014, Jeff Driskel in 2015 and back to Higgins again last season. The two connected so often that Taylor led the nation in 2016 with 1,803 receiving yards.

"It's easy to find this statistically – he had a great relationship with all of (the quarterbacks)," Higgins said. "Because they always knew they could count on him and he'd work hard. I know I can speak for the other quarterbacks – third and short or any important down, you know where that guy is."

The 49ers quarterbacks have had the same experience.

After being drafted in the fifth round, Taylor began catching passes from fellow rookies C.J. Beathard and Nick Mullens before working his way up to starter Brian Hoyer by late August.

In their last game against the Rams, Hoyer looked to Taylor at several critical moments, including on a three-yard touchdown in the fourth quarter, a failed two-point conversion attempt with less than three minutes to play and a third-and-10 play on the 49ers' final, last-gasp possession. Taylor caught the ball for 11 yards, but was flagged for a controversial offensive pass-interference penalty that negated the gain.

 "If you go back and watch that (touchdown) play you see how fast he can get in and out of cuts," Hoyer said of Taylor. "That's what you look for in a guy who's trying to get separation. Especially in man coverage. He's done a lot of hard work. The one thing about guys like that is they can get a little crazy with cuts and all that. He's kind of refined it and made it more smooth and more trustworthy."

The 49ers list Taylor at 5-foot-8, but he's not even that.

His official measurement in the run-up to the draft was 5-7 5/8 inches, making him one of the shortest players available. He had the smallest hands (8 1/4 inches) and the second-shortest arms (28 3/4 inches) of all the receivers invited to the scouting combine in February. Most draft observers figured he'd go in the seventh round or not get taken at all.

The rookie has been seen during informal portions of practice catching passes between his legs or punts behind his back. When he was in grade school playing baseball, he'd field grounders between his legs.

"No one's doing that in elementary school," Duron said. "But he could. He was timing up balls in center field just to make a diving catch. Because he could get under it if he wanted to."

Said Higgins: "Some of the things he's able to do and the tricks he pulls off ... he even does a trick where he kind of flip-kicks a football and it starts spinning, and then puts it through the upright. I just don't see a ceiling for his athleticism."

Duron and the other quarterbacks, however, said Taylor's physical gifts make him notable. It's the mental connection he's developed with them that have made their seasons special.

"I think it goes beyond being quick," Duron said. "He'd make his routes a little bit shorter if he needed to, would make the post route a little bit higher if he needed to. Whatever needed to be done, it seemed like he was seeing what I was seeing. He always seemed to be one step ahead that way."

Trent Taylor: Not Your Typical Underdog Story

By Keiana Martin

Consider rookie wide receiver Trent Taylor your walking cliché. He's got the size of David but the mindset of Goliath.

Taylor has always been a stud athlete.

He compiled 2,700 receiving yards and 38 touchdowns over his final two years in high school. The wide receiver also starred in basketball, track and in an effort to build chemistry with his quarterback, picked up tennis as a senior. The doubles tandem made it all the way to the state finals.

The Shreveport, La., native made the most of what he was given - elite athletic ability without the size to turn heads. Being 5-foot-8 has its limits. Louisiana Tech was the only college program who decided that the 160-pound pass-catcher was worthy of a Division I scholarship.

"I understood why I wasn't getting offered," Taylor said. "I just knew that I needed an opportunity to go prove myself and Louisiana Tech gave me that opportunity and that's all I could ask for."

Taylor continued to put up gaudy numbers. As a senior in 2016, he led the nation with 1,803 receiving yards and added 12 touchdowns. Taylor finished his Bulldogs career with 4,179 yards and 32 touchdowns to go with his program record of 327 career receptions.

Despite the impressive production, Taylor still went unheralded throughout the pre-draft process. The San Francisco 49ers were pleased to land the diminutive wideout in the fifth round of the 2017 NFL Draft.

"I thought he was as good at the slot role as anyone that we were looking at in the draft," Kyle Shanahan said of his 'draft crush.' "What impressed me the most about him besides the separation ability is that when he did get the ball in his hands, he ran angry and pissed off. He got up the field. He's not scared to get hit. He's a very competitive, violent runner and those are the guys who keep you on the field and move the chains."

"I love to hit. Playing defense, that's something I loved to do," Taylor said. "So anytime I got the ball on offense, I'm not scared to lay my head in there and get a hit. It's a part of the game and I love it."

Just as he's done his entire football career, Taylor will have to prove that his size is an asset rather than a limitation. He's one of 13 receivers currently on the 49ers 90-man roster in what is expected to be one of the most competitive position groups come training camp.

That uphill climb is something that Taylor will continue to embrace.

"People (have been) telling me my whole life that I'm not supposed to be here. So, anytime I get the ball, I want to prove them wrong," Taylor added. "Prove that I can compete with the best of them."

By Nick Wagoner

December 14, 2017

Sith lords attending screenings of "Star Wars: The Last Jedi" at Bay Area theaters on Friday night, beware: You might come across the world's biggest Jedi knight.

That would be San Francisco 49ers defensive lineman Solomon Thomas, breaking from his day job and taking in the movie he's been looking forward to seeing for most of the past two years.

"I already have my tickets," Thomas said. "I'm not going to say where I'm going to go see it yet but me and my buddies, we're going to go get dressed up and ready to go.

"I'll be a full-on Jedi, Jedi Knight, Jedi Master."

Of course, this won't be the first time that avid Star Wars fan Thomas is dressed as a Jedi. It's actually been his go-to costume for years. When Thomas was a child living with his family in Australia, his family first turned him on to the movie franchise.

Like many newer Star Wars fans, Thomas actually started with the prequel trilogy, though he didn't see the movies in sequential order. Thomas saw Episodes I and II before skipping ahead to see the original trilogy and finishing with Episode III.

Thomas was instantly taken by the galactic drama and the first character to catch his eye was Jedi Mace Windu, who was the first to boast a purple light saber on the big screen. Thomas also counts Yoda and Chewbacca among his favorite characters.

With Thomas' love for the movies developing, his mother Martha made him a Jedi cloak that he could wear on Halloween, though he occasionally switched things up and painted his face like the villainous Darth Maul. Thomas' love for Star Wars turned into a passion and he even used to send ideas for future films to George Lucas.

To this day, Thomas still breaks out the cloak and wears it for Halloween or on special occasions, such as when he and the Stanford football team went on a group outing to "The Force Awakens" in 2015. Thomas documented that trip on video and spent the video speaking in Yoda's patented jumbled word order for much of it.

Thomas will again break out the costume on Friday night when he finally gets some answers to the many questions he still has from "The Force Awakens."

"The trailer looks so crazy, I'm so excited," Thomas said. "There's so much stuff to find out, so much stuff to reveal and what's going to happen. I'm just excited.

"Everyone is like freaking out over who is Rey and who does she belong to and Kylo Ren and all that stuff, but I'm more excited to see the Darth master. Is it Plagueis, who is Snoke, where did he come from, who is his apprentice and master? All that kind of stuff."

To get ready for his initial viewing on Friday, Thomas recently got a personal tour of the downtown San Francisco location of LucasFilms. There, Thomas got to see many props from the "Star Wars" movies as well as a behind-the-scenes look at how some of the movies are created.

After Friday's first watch has come and gone, Thomas said he will watch the movie in theaters at least twice more.

"I have got to see it in theaters at least three times and get the full theater effect with the large popcorn tub in my hands," Thomas said.

For 49ers' Solomon Thomas, 10 Books A Home's cause hits close to home

By Nick Wagoner

Hidden somewhere in Chris and Martha Thomas' garage in Coppell, Texas, is a giant poster board that to many would look like nothing more than a school project long since abandoned.

The poster, a handmade decision chart belonging to their son, San Francisco 49ers defensive lineman Solomon Thomas, represents so much more. In trying to choose where he would play college football, Thomas took it upon himself to make the poster.

Among the categories are things most teenage boys don't spend much time thinking about. Sure, the quality of the football program and potential playing time were accounted for, but academics, alumni networking opportunities and tutoring programs took up the bulk of the space.

That poster ultimately led Thomas to Stanford and Palo Alto, California, though perhaps that wasn't too difficult of a decision, given his concurrent passions for football and education.

"There were, like, five or six things that were on that criteria board that he used for deciding among all the schools he was considering," Chris Thomas said. "I have got to believe that all of the reading and things he did before went into that process to help him make a very smart decision."

That poster also represents a background heavily rooted in the importance of education and the subsequent opportunities Thomas was afforded that others without similar advantages might not have had.

For proof, look no further than the cleats Thomas will wear in Sunday's game against the Chicago Bears as part of the NFL's "My Cleats, My Cause" initiative. He will wear cleats representing Ten Books a Home, a nonprofit in East Palo Alto, which helps promote early childhood learning.

An emphasis on education

Growing up in a family his mother describes as full "of teachers and preachers," Thomas was never far from a book. His interests ran the gamut of subjects from horses to dinosaurs to Star Wars to The Hunger Games. He also had an affinity for cookbooks, and his parents ensured that he read plenty about civil rights.

Thomas' focus on reading was the product of parents intent on driving home the need to learn. Chris and Martha Thomas met in the early 1980s at the College of Wooster (Ohio), considered one of the premiere liberal arts school in the country. There, both earned degrees, with Chris Thomas becoming the first in his family to attend college and earn a diploma. He now works as vice president of sales and marketing for a marketing company, as part of a long business career that included a five-year stop in Australia with his family while working for Procter & Gamble.

Martha Thomas came from a long line of educators, beginning with her grandmother. Each of her grandmother's kids, including Martha's mom, was a teacher. Now Martha teaches middle school, a job she has held for more than a dozen years all over the country.

"I was very fortunate, blessed with two amazing parents and a beautiful household, and my dad didn't come from much but made his way through education, and seeing that example and seeing how important it is really left a mark on me," Thomas said. "And to know that outside my box, not everyone is like me, and not every child has a parent who preaches education. To many people, that's common sense, but that's not true in every household. It's rare in a lot of households to preach education and have books, to be able to get a good education at a normal school. I just want to make sure that I take what I was fortunate with and give it back to the community and people who weren't."

Eye-opening statistics

At the beginning of this year, Martha Thomas attended a teachers' conference that left a lasting impression. One of Martha's takeaways from the conference was further knowledge of the "30 million-word gap," a study conducted by University of Kansas researchers that showed that children from lower-income families hear 30 million fewer words than children from higher-income families by the time they are 4 years old. Martha also learned about some of the correlations between childhood literacy and incarceration.

"I want to help with getting books in homes, getting kids to realize at a young age that education is important and that they really should find a way to make sure that that's their No. 1 priority instead of other things around them."

The Reading Partners program has research showing that children not reading at or above their grade level by the end of third grade are four times less likely to graduate from high school. That number increases to six times less likely for students from low-income families.

A 2009 study by Northeastern University found that high school dropouts were 63 times more likely to be incarcerated in their lifetime than college graduates. The National Adult Literacy Survey determined that 70 percent of incarcerated adults cannot read at a fourth-grade level.

"My mom started crying when she read some of those statistics to me because it's so sad," Thomas said. "It's been on my mind."

Root of the problem

Since well before the Niners used the No. 3 pick on Thomas in this year's draft, he had an idea that he wanted to use his platform to focus on early education.

While protests of racial inequality during the national anthem expanded earlier this season, Thomas did not kneel. He has, on multiple occasions, stood next to a kneeling teammate with a hand on a shoulder as a sign of support.

"We have talked to him about 'You can protest, but where is the meat of it?'" Martha Thomas said. "'Do you have anything to back up your protest?'"

When the Niners community relations team reached out to ask Thomas if he would like to participate in "My Cause, My Cleats," Thomas immediately said yes with an eye toward finding a cause he cares about that could get at the root of some of the issues being protested.

Like any Silicon Valley resident might, Thomas turned to Google with two themes for the cause he wanted to embrace: It had to be focused on education, and it had to be local.

"I went to school at Stanford, so I was right there in Palo Alto. You always hear about East Palo Alto and how it's a really hard area and they need a lot of help," Thomas said. "I wanted to be able to do something close to where I used to be and where I am now, and I thought I would start searching for nonprofits in East Palo Alto. Ten Books a Home stood out. I thought this was perfect because I wanted to

The cause

East Palo Alto sits next to Palo Alto, with the two cities separated largely by a major freeway. In the 1980s and early '90s, East Palo Alto was known for its crime and poverty, earning the label of murder capital of the United States in 1992.

It was right around that time that Paul Thiebaut III was 13 years old and running the streets of East Palo Alto, dealing drugs while trying to figure out how to avoid prison and stay alive. At various times over the next decade, Thiebaut would drop out of school and find himself either in juvenile detention centers or homeless.

After scraping by for about 10 years, Thiebaut began having conversations with another drug dealer who suggested Thiebaut read Malcolm X's autobiography.

According to Thiebaut, it was the first book he ever read. He was 23.

"It just opened something up in my mind that caused me to want more," Thiebaut said.

One night, as Thiebaut was driving a drug kingpin around the Bay Area, he ended up in a hotel room with about $20,000 worth of ketamine on a table.

"It was like my moment when I knew this was wrong," Thiebaut said. "It was the wrong thing for me to be doing ... And I told him, 'I'm out, man.' So I left that hotel room with him screaming and waving his Glock in the air. I wasn't even sure if I was going to walk out alive. I had to go. I went to college."

Thiebaut attended San Jose State, earning a degree in economics with a minor in business at age 27. From there, he took up tutoring for kids from first grade through high school. He developed his own style to connect with kids. He began by asking each of them what they like to do. Once he learned what a child liked, he began building lesson plans around it.

In 2009, Thiebaut began a nonprofit in East Palo Alto, aiming to make a positive difference in his community. Although the crime rate has improved since Thiebaut's drug dealing days, statistics still show that the student poverty level in East Palo Alto is nearly 100 percent. Thiebaut's organization states that a majority of the students in the Ravenswood School District start kindergarten unprepared.

Now 10 Books a Home operates out of a tiny pink house on a residential street. Inside, Thiebaut keeps dozens of puzzles, games and just about any other learning tool you can imagine. He turned the garage into a children's library full of books, and when a child joins, he or she gets a personalized book case stocked with 10 books, a number that will grow as the child goes deeper into the program.

"I see these parents, I see these children, they are so capable, and they get written off," Thiebaut said. "Just because of geography and the biases and stereotypes that we have built up to associate with those kinds of communities. So when I walk in, it actually taught me that everywhere is East Palo Alto, in a sense. I want to see these kids prove the world wrong, and not because I want anyone to stick a tongue out but because I think that if they can prove the world wrong, the world will realize it can be a much better place."

Each child who joins 10 Books a Home receives one-on-one tutoring every week for two years from a group of volunteers. As part of the process, parents are asked to participate in every session.

At the heart of the program is what Thiebaut calls the "ILM" (Intrinsic Learning Motivation) method. In simple terms, each tutor is trained to talk to the child and the child's parents, find out what he or she likes and use that as a springboard for learning.

Thiebaut has homed in on working with preschool children, a nod to the 30 million-word gap and the importance of ensuring that children from lower-income families begin school with at least the same reading level as their peers, as well as a more diverse and expansive vocabulary.

"I was 23 when I woke up," Thiebaut said. "These kids are 3, and I'm like, 'Yeah, don't wait 20 years. Let's start now.' There's no 3-year-old gangster, there's no 3-year-old bully, there's no 3-year-old drug dealer. None of that. At 3, anything and everything is possible."

Designed by Terrell Nievera, these cleats will be worn by Solomon Thomas during the Niners' Week 13 game on Sunday at Chicago. San Francisco 49ers
The cleats

After Thomas identified 10 Books a Home as his cause, the Niners reached out to Thiebaut. It took Thiebaut all of five seconds to agree and let the team know he had the perfect candidate to meet with Thomas at the team's introductory event.

On Oct. 24, the Niners hosted a handful of their players and representatives from each of their causes. It served as a brainstorming session for the players and the various organizations to come up with designs for their cleats.

It was there at Levi's Stadium that Thomas first met Danny Arrellin, 4, and his mother, Lucia Ledezma. Danny made an immediate impression on Thomas with his energy and enthusiasm, regularly taking off in a dead sprint and making Thomas chase after him like he does a quarterback on Sunday.

Eventually, the two bonded and began dreaming up ideas for the cleats. Danny, who is autistic, began drawing a variety of colors on the cleats, and Thiebaut shared Danny's love for trains as well as numbers and letters as additional inspiration.

"Danny is awesome," Thomas said. "He is energetic, and he's just a kid who is always learning and looks like he's loving life and having a good time. He's a great motivation for me and a great kid to be around."

From there, shoe designer Terrell Nievera was tasked with painting rainbow-colored cleats with numbers, letters and perhaps even a train. The finished product includes the 10 Books a Home slogan ("We don't close achievement gaps. We prevent them") and its logo.

Danny and Thomas reconnected Tuesday night for the unveiling of the cleats, and Danny helped Thomas open the gift-wrapped box of shoes.

"I thought this was the perfect way to start diving into what I'm passionate about, what I care about and what I want to get involved with in the future," Thomas said.

Big plans ahead

At Stanford, Thomas attended a few speeches delivered by former U.S. Secretary of State Condoleezza Rice. Each time, Rice emphasized the importance of making a difference in your home community. For her, that meant East Palo Alto. For Thomas, who still calls the area home as a 49er, it does as well.

In his first offseason, Thomas hopes to visit 10 Books a Home and volunteer to tutor and share his story. He also hopes to use what he learns from 10 Books a Home to help establish his own foundation focused on childhood education.

"I want to help with getting books in homes, getting kids to realize at a young age that education is important and that they really should find a way to make sure that that's their No. 1 priority instead of other things around them," Thomas said. "The goal is to try to get it to where it's as important to them as it was to me."

Thiebaut, meanwhile, is planning expansion to East San Jose in 2018, and Danny has already made such positive progress in his first year in the program that Thiebaut is excited to see what Year 2 will bring. Likewise, he adds that all four cohorts to go through the two-year program are currently performing at or above grade level. Those big plans are all at least a little way down the road but not so far that the wheels aren't already in motion.

"I'm in this community, and it's a place I can go and do physical work as well and not just get the name out there," Thomas said. "I can go back in the offseason and go work with kids and be part of this program and see what this organization is doing and put some of it into my own and make my own someday."

As Thomas is quick to point out, there's plenty of work to be done. But the chance to create awareness for an organization such as 10 Books a Home is a good place to begin taking one rainbow-colored step in the right direction.

Through My Eyes: Dekoda Watson explains the significance of My Cleats, My Cause

By Dekoda Watson
Broncos.com
December 4, 2016

Today, when I'm sitting at my locker in Jacksonville, lacing up my cleats before running out on the field as a member of the Denver Broncos, I'll be thinking about all the kids back in Aiken, South Carolina — my hometown.

The NFL is supporting the My Cause, My Cleats initiative this week, allowing players to wear special, customized cleats in support of a charity of their choosing. On Sunday, I'll be representing my foundation, Koda's Kids.

I started my foundation seven years ago because I've always had a soft heart for kids. A main reason for this was being able to see where I came from. I was blessed and fortunate to have a two-parent home. They're still together, but I had some friends who only had one parent or no parents at all. I don't want any kids to use the fact that they have a broken family as an excuse to say, "Well, I didn't have my parents, so this is why I do X, Y or Z." I understand their situation, but at the same time I know from experience that they can still make something of themselves. I don't want that to be any kid's excuse to not be successful in life.

The design of the cleats was simple: Red and black are my favorite colors and then I needed my logo to be the focus of the cleats. The symbol represents my foundation, so I needed it to stand out. I think they stand out for a good reason.

The biggest challenge in running a foundation, the thing that's the most vital, is publicity and awareness. I'm so passionate about kids that I'll do whatever it takes. I'll design a pair of cleats, host a fundraising golf tournament, football camp or do any interview with whoever is willing just to raise awareness and funding for my foundation. That way I can ensure the kids growing up in Aiken can live a better life.

When I put these cleats on, the only thing I'm going to be thinking about is just how proud I am to wear these for what they represent. It's probably the closest game I'll have to Aiken and I know there's going to be plenty of people that will see them. It's going to mean so much for me and for all the kids that my foundation supports and encourages.

I am just so proud. This is something I've been working on for seven years, and now I'm finally able to show it off not only off the field, but on the field as well.

Thank you, NFL.

Muscled-up Ahkello Witherspoon aims to establish himself at cornerback

By David Lombardi
The Athletic
October 25, 2017

It happened at the goal line in early August, during Ahkello Witherspoon's third training camp practice in the NFL.

The 49ers were running a goal line team drill, but they weren't in a live tackling period — meaning that defenders weren't allowed to take ballcarriers to the ground.

So Witherspoon eased up after Carlos Hyde barreled through the line of scrimmage. He figured the play was wrapping up.

Hyde didn't slow down. He galloped onward and leveled Witherspoon.

"He ran a bit further than I was prepared to go," Witherspoon said, downplaying the collision when recalling it last week. "That was it."

But later in the same conversation, Witherspoon did acknowledge that the incident showed him that the rules of physicality are different at the NFL level, and that the moment accelerated his drive to master that part of the game.

Along with Chidobe Awuzie and Tedric Thompson — who now play for the Cowboys and Seahawks — Witherspoon formed one of college football's best secondaries at Colorado last year. The Buffaloes actually allowed the fewest yards per pass attempt in the nation in the 2016 regular season.

But Witherspoon's lankiness, which led to struggles in run support, fueled his detractors. At 6-foot-3, he's tall for a cornerback, and he came out of college thin. The 49ers are asking Witherspoon to eventually emulate Seattle's Richard Sherman — who packs the same height at the position — but that wasn't a plausible model until Witherspoon put on weight.

He has.

Witherspoon said he's added seven pounds of muscle — he now weighs 197 pounds — and that figure may even seem conservative to the naked eye.

"He looks huge on film," defensive coordinator Robert Saleh said. "He's gotten bigger, and he's turning into a man."

Witherspoon notched his first two tackles 10 days ago in Washington, showcasing the low, driving form that 49ers secondary coach Jeff Hafley has been preaching to him this offseason.

"It's a lot easier to tackle when you come in with a plan," Witherspoon said. "In college, I think I was taught generically. Technique didn't really apply to me specifically. Face up, chest out, and wrap up. I mean, that's never going to happen with me. I'm never going to hit a running back square up.

"Here, they teach techniques that can apply to you individually, that apply to different body types."

As the lead cornerback for the 49ers' scout team, Witherspoon has recently employed his new know-how against notoriously physical receiver Pierre Garçon in practice.

It's been baptism-by-fire, as the 211-pound Garçon is particularly unforgiving against players lighter than him.

"He's unique in that he runs like a running back after the catch," Witherspoon said. "He's the one initiating contact. So just take out his thighs — don't even mess with him when he's doing all that head-butting — he can't run without his legs."

Saleh approved of the practice results enough to create a game-day cornerback rotation and thrust Witherspoon into it with Rashard Robinson and Dontae Johnson. The 49ers' Cover 3 scheme, which puts eight men in the box, needs more muscle to lock up receivers on the perimeter, so Witherspoon's chance to assert himself is now.

That became doubly apparent when Robinson committed his fourth pass interference penalty, the most of any player in the NFL, while surrendering a critical third-down conversion on Sunday.

This stronger version of Witherspoon, of course, is nowhere near a finished product. The rookie third-round pick has played 34 and 35 snaps, respectively, over the past two weeks, and he is still looking for his first pass breakup.

And Sunday's matchup against Dez Bryant, one of the best receivers in the NFL, was yet another trial-by-fire experience. Bryant beat Witherspoon for two catches, but the coverage wasn't bad on either of them.

In fact, Witherspoon thought he had an interception on Bryant's second reception, when he correctly read the receiver's fake out and broke on Dak Prescott's slant pass.

"I just didn't drive through him hard enough," Witherspoon said.

Bryant out-muscled him for the catch. It was another teaching moment for the rookie, who's had plenty of them since becoming a professional — but none more physically painful than Hyde's railroading almost three months ago.

Extra point: On Monday, Kyle Shanahan hinted that the 49ers might re-sign veteran cornerback Leon Hall so that they can keep Jimmie Ward at free safety while nickelback K'Waun Williams is hurt.

On Tuesday, the 49ers did just that, inking Hall after cutting him last week. They also signed defensive lineman Datone Jones, a first-round pick in the 2013 draft.

The 49ers released defensive lineman Xavier Cooper and tight end Logan Paulsen — who had already been cut last week only to be re-signed before Sunday's game — to make it work.

With George Kittle and Garrett Celek getting the tight end work, Paulsen seems to be an odd man out, especially since he's not the designated lead blocker when fullback Kyle Juszczyk is healthy.
